First and foremost, I am grateful to Florinda De Simini for encouraging me to apply for a position in her SHIVADHARMA PROJECT (ERC no. 803624), for generously sharing all the relevant manuscript materials with me, for providing invaluable advice whenever needed, and for leading the project in the most friendly and generous way through happy times as well as difficult Covid-affected years. While working on the Vṛṣasāra-saṃgraha, I was also affiliated with another ERC project, the DHARMA PROJECT (ERC no. 809994). I am grateful to all my colleagues involved in that endeavour, including Arlo Griffith, Emmanuel Francis, Annette Schmiedchen, Astrid Zotter, and Dániel Balogh.

As always, I must express my gratitude to my former supervisor, Alexis Sanderson, and to Dominic Goodall and Harunaga Isaacson, for initiating me into Sanskrit philology and the study of Śaivism.

My colleagues and friends working in Naples or visiting for shorter periods helped me on a daily basis, during our regular reading sessions and in countless other ways. I am thankful to them (in alphabetical order): Alessandro Battistini, Michael Bluett, Lucas den Boer, Martina Dello Buono, Giulia Buriola, Daniela Cappello, Csaba Dezső, Marco Franceschini, Torsten Gerloff, Kengo Harimoto, Gergely Hidas, Nirajan Kafle, Chiara Livio, Timothy Lubin, Nina Mirnig, Andrew Ollett, Dorotea Operato, Martin Orwin, Luca Piscopo, Alexander von Rospatt, S. Preface

Aims and problems

What is the raison d'être of this edition? It is essentially a new copy, a carefully prepared new version of a mediæval Sanskrit text called Vṛ̥ṣasāra-saṃgraha, based on multiple witnesses, augmented with an analysis of its contents, contextualisation, and an annotated English translation. As for the critical edition, while I went to great lengths to understand the textual history behind the manuscripts used, it is, quite obviously, a deeply contaminated version of a text transmitted through contaminated witnesses. Nevertheless, I hope that this version comes as close as possible to what the authors' and redactors' original intentions might have been at the time of assembling these chapters—approximately between the seventh and tenth centuries.

Of course, we do not know if there was a single moment when the intention to compose a new text on Dharma—i.e. 'Hindu' religious duties—under the title Vṛ̥ṣasārasaṃgraha was conceived, or whether there was one single 'original copy,'¹ but the present edition definitely aims to be the most meaningful and most readable among all available copies.

Still, this book is only a version of a text that likely never existed exactly in this form, inevitably displaying signs of being an eclectic edition. Moreover, it may unintentionally exhibit characteristics of the twenty-first century (beyond the modern Devanāgarī typeface or occasional choices shaped by our contemporary understandings—and misunderstandings) mixed with characteristics of the first millennium. We know that '[a]ll editing is an act of interpretation.'² Many of the editorial decisions I made were influenced by, sometimes based on, opinions expressed by colleagues during our regular Śivadharmā reading sessions. Thus, this edition is a result of the interpretative efforts of a group of scholars—and this may sometimes, though hopefully rarely, have led to contradictions. All remaining shortcomings are, of course, my responsibility.

To complicate matters further, we are publishing this long text in two volumes, with the second volume still in progress when the first is released. This may produce various problems: of interpretation, of internal references, of repetition, and, most importantly, of presenting a text with embedded and recurring layers cut in half. To mitigate some of these issues, I completed the editing and study of the most significant chapters in the second part of the text before finishing the first part (although, as the editorial process progresses, all chapters seem increasingly significant). A further, minor issue arises when I discuss topics that I have already covered in Kiss 2021: some overlap is inevitable.

What, then, is the purpose of this edition? The main objective of the ŚIVADHARMA PROJECT has been to better understand the function of individual texts within the so-called Śivadharmā corpus—as well as their relations and interconnectedness, or their lack thereof—and thus to grasp the raison d'être of the corpus itself. My attempt here is rather modest: to understand what the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha tried to convey when it was composed, and to explore why this text came to be inserted into the multiple-text manuscripts that transmit the so-called Śivadharmā corpus. But even if we do not fully understand the purpose and function of the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, I believe that to make a pre-eleventh-century Sanskrit text easily accessible in the twenty-first century is, I believe, a noble aspiration.

And as a bonus, the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha is a colourful and fascinating text that never fails to intrigue and entertain its reader: it contains philosophical and yogic teachings, and fanciful narratives, in a lovely dialect of Sanskrit, clues for understanding the history of Śaivism and its intermingling with Vaiṣṇavism, as well as swearing and humour. Enjoy!

Introduction

Śivadharmā corpus

The Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha is a 24-chapter-long Sanskrit Śaiva text of the so-called Śivadharmā. We have no evidence that it was ever transmitted independently of this collection of texts,³ that has come down to us in multiple-text manuscripts typically containing the following eight works: Śivadharmasāstra (ŚDhŚ), Śivadharmottara (ŚDhU), Śivadharmasaṃgraha (ŚDhSaṃgr), Umāmabheśvarasaṃvāda (UMS), Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda (UUMS), Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha (VSS), Dharmaputrikā (DharmP), and the Śivopaniṣad (ŚivaUp).

Much has now been written on the corpus itself and on the individual texts it comprises. For an introduction, an overview of the secondary literature, a nearly up-to-date bibliography, and the results of recent research related to the Śivadharmā, see De Simini and Kiss 2021. Important publications that appeared after the release of that volume include Harimoto 2022 the Munich MS (MS M), and the formation of the Śivadharmā, and Bisschop et al. 2025, which offers a critical edition, translation, and analysis of chapter ten of the Śivadharmasāstra.

Since the VSS's links to other texts of the corpus—except possibly the Dharmaputrikā—are relatively weak, I will refer to the Śivadharmā corpus and its texts only when they are relevant for the present inquiry.

³ For cases that may seem exceptions (Ko₇₇ and K₄₁ CHECK if more) see the manuscript descriptions on pp. 61ff.

Title

The title *Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha*⁴ can be translated as ‘Compendium on the Essence of the Bull [of Dharma].’ The last two elements (sāra-saṃgraha) need little explanation: this work is a ‘compendium,’ a ‘collection’ or ‘summary’ of (saṃgraha) the ‘essence’ (sāra), of its topic—that is, a distilled version of relevant teachings. The words ‘compendium’ and ‘collection’ clearly reflect the composite nature of the VSS; see details on the structure of the text and on its possible sources on pp. 11ff.

The remaining question is whether the bull in the title is only a reference to a representation of Dharma or whether it also hints at Śiva’s bull, his vehicle or mount, sometimes called Nandi or Nandin in other works.⁵

Dharma is frequently referred to as a bull, often depicted as losing a leg in every Kalpa. This portrayal appears in Dharma literature from at least the time of the Mahābhārata; see, e.g., MBh 3.188.10–12,⁶ and Manu 1.81a (catuspāt sakalo dharmah) and 8.16a (vṛṣo hi bhagavān dharmā).⁷ In addition, in Śaiva contexts, the bull of Dharma does feature as Śiva’s vehicle. See, e.g., Bakker’s argument, who, after analysing seals containing images of bulls, remarks:⁸

The topicality of the Śaiva accommodation of the Dharma in the second half of the sixth century is nicely illustrated by a myth found in the original Skandapurāṇa [...]; the uncontrollable, wild bull (vṛṣa) is domesticated by Śiva’s Gaṇapa Prabhākara [...] In this way the bull is transformed into Śiva’s

⁴ Read Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha for Vṛttasārasaṃgraha in Petech 1984, 84.

⁵ There is no trace of Nandi/Nandin as identified with the bull in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha. On the possible time after which Nandi or Nandin, originally a gaṇa, was considered a bull, see Bhattacharya 1977 and Goodall et al. 2005, 100–108 and 171–172.

⁶ *kṛte catuspāt sakalo nirvyājopādhivarjitah |

⁷ See, e.g., Couture 2006. Gutiérrez (2018) sums up the trope thus (in the section ‘In animal terms’): ‘The emphasis on the whole body, with all four legs, assures the maintenance of stability in dharma’s structure, which in turn structured Brahmanical society.’

⁸ Bakker 2014, 69.

vehicle (vāhana).

To put the same argument more bluntly:

Making the bull Śiva's vehicle implies that Śiva has become the supreme lord of the Dharma, or that the Dharma has been accommodated in [Ś]aivism.⁹

The possibility that the bull in the title Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha refers not only to Dharma as a bull, but also to Śiva's vāhana has been mentioned in De Simini and Mirnig 2017,¹⁰ and briefly discussed in Kiss 2021,¹¹ with the conclusion that while the bull as a synonym of Dharma is mentioned in the text repeatedly, somewhat surprisingly, and perhaps significantly, there is no clear reference to Śiva's mount in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha. [... Nevertheless, it] is not inconceivable that the redactors of the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha had the same association in mind, namely that the bull in question is both Dharma and Śiva's mount.¹²

Sanderson (2015, 210 n. 136) comments on the idea of vṛṣa being Dharma in general, and on the bull appearing on the coins of the Hephthalite Hun Mihirakula in particular, also referencing the VSS:

To laud the bull (vṛṣa) would be surprising if the intended meaning were the bull that is Śiva's mount, but not if the word

⁹ Bakker et al. 2014, 65 n. 210. Bhattacharya (1977, 1552) suggests that 'In the Purāṇas the bull (Vṛṣabha or Vṛṣa) of Śiva is identified with Dharma, "virtue personified". This is a new development to sanctify the animal vehicle of the god. This new situation took place with the religious rite when an offering of a bull to a Brahmin deemed to be of a high religious merit.'

¹⁰ P. 238 n. 13.

is intended in its figurative meaning, namely dharmah, or sukṛtam ‘the virtuous actions [prescribed by the Veda].’ For this meaning of vṛṣaḥ see, for example, Amarasimha, Nāmaliṅgā-nusāsana 1.4.25b (sukṛtam vṛṣaḥ), 3.3.220 (sukṛte vṛṣabhe vṛṣaḥ); Halāyudha, Abhidhānatnamālā 1.125cd (dharmah punyam vṛṣaḥ śreyah sukṛtam ca samam smṛtam); Manu 8[.]16a (vṛṣo hi bhagavān dharmas...); and the Gwalior Museum Stone Inscription of Patañgaśambhu (Mirashi 1962), l. 15, vṛṣaikaniṣṭho ‘pi jitasmaro ‘pi yaḥ śaṅkaro ‘bhūd bhuvi ko ‘py apūrvvaḥ, concerning the Śaiva ascetic Vyomaśambhu: ‘He was in the world an extraordinary new Śiva, since he too was vṛṣaikaniṣṭhaḥ (‘devoted solely to pious observance’; in Śiva’s case ‘riding only on the Bull’) and he too was jitasmarah (‘one who had defeated sensual urges’; in Śiva’s case ‘the defeater of the Love god Kāmadeva’). This is also the meaning of vṛṣaḥ in the title Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, one of the works of the Śivadharmā corpus (see, e.g., Sanderson 2014, p. 2), i.e., ‘Summary of the Essentials of the [Śiva]dharma’.

In the last sentence, Sanderson implies that the VSS is organically part of the teachings that we may collectively call the Śivadharmā, and he thus supplies ‘Śiva’ when translating the title Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha. A closer examination of the VSS reveals no direct references to either Śiva’s bull or to the bull embodying the Śivadharmā. Instead, the bull in the VSS is repeatedly associated with the Dharma which is the four āśramas (see, e.g., VSS 3.1–5 and 4.74). My conclusion here is that while the word vṛṣa in the title may indeed refer to Śiva’s bull, this reference is always only implied and never explicitly stated, whereas the bull as the personification of Dharma as the four āśramas appears explicitly and repeatedly. Thus the title lacks any explicit hint to Śaivism,¹³ which aligns well with the text’s blurred and multi-layered affiliation to Dharmaśāstra, Vaiṣṇavism, and Śaivism.¹⁴

Finally, as a fanciful experiment, and if one accepts that the VSS originated in Nepal,¹⁵ one could wonder whether the title Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha has anything to do with the Licchavi king Vṛṣadeva. Sanderson (2009, 74) mentions that Vṛṣadeva is ‘described in an inscription of his eighth-century descendant Jayadeva as having inclined towards Buddhism;¹⁶ a view confirmed by a local chronicle, which attributes to him the establishing of Buddhist images,’ and that this king established ‘the Caitya of the Sīnagu-vihāra (the Svayambhūnāth Caitya).’ More importantly, Sanderson summarises the information found in the Chāṅgu Nārāyaṇa Pillar Inscription (east shaft),¹⁷ noting that Vṛṣadeva was the great-grandfather of Mānadeva, whose ‘dated inscriptions range in date from 459 to 505/6’ [CE].¹⁸ This would place the reign of Vṛṣadeva around 400 CE.

The early fifth century may look too early for the date of composition of the VSS, and any connection between this king and the text is impossible to prove at the moment. However, it is equally impossible to dismiss it entirely. If such a connection exists, it might explain the slightly unusual nature of the title (‘... the essence of the bull’).

Genre

Some texts of the Śivadharmā corpus have, at certain points in their textual history, been recognised as Purāṇas or Upapurāṇas (see, e.g., Hazra 1952 and 1956). Could the VSS be considered a Purāṇa? There are at least two reasons to support this idea.

One is the section spanning VSS 1.62–75, which provides a list of so-called *vedavyāsa*s, transmitters of Purāṇas, from Brahmā to Vyāsa Dvaipāyana, Romaharṣa, and his son. Why would a text include such a list in its first chapter if not to suggest that it is describing its own origins?

Another argument is that the topics dealt with in the VSS are exactly what we expect from a Purāṇa. The famous purāṇapañcalakṣaṇa includes, following Wilson’s translation (see Rocher 1986, 26), the following: (1) primary creation, cosmogony and chronology (sarga); (2) creation, destruction of the world (pratisarga); (3) genealogies (vaṃśa); (4) Manu eras (manvantaras); (5) history (vaṃśānucarita).¹⁹ Arguably, all of these elements are present in the VSS—most appearing in chapter one and again in chapters twenty-one and twenty-four—along with narratives of the deeds of gods (e.g., in chapter twenty-three), and more. It is possible that certain sections of the VSS were originally intended to form a separate purāṇa. The part in question could be the outermost layer of the text (see pp. 11ff).

¹⁵ See pp. 19ff.

¹⁶ See Vajrācārya 1973, 148, l. 9: sugataśāsanapakṣapātī.

Could the VSS alternatively be classified as a Dharmaśāstric text? The VSS does contain features characteristic of Dharmaśāstra, such as descriptions of rules of conduct (chapters 3–8) and discussions of the varṇas and āśramas (chapters 11 and 19). However, other elements—such as narratives (chapter 12), yogic teachings (chapter 16), lists of tīrthas (chapter 10), and the frequent use of poetic metres (e.g. upajāti and śārdūlavikrīḍita)—are less obviously Dharmaśāstric.

Folio 251v of paper MS K₄₁ includes a scribal addition that provides a richer and more nuanced definition of the genre of the VSS, paraphrasing Mahābhārata 1.56.21:²⁰

pādam ādyaṃ²¹ idaṃ śāstraṃ yo 'dhīyāta jitendriyaḥ |
tenādhītaṃ sarvvadharmam iti nāsty atra saṃśayaḥ ||
arthaśāstraṃ idaṃ puṇyaṃ dharmmaśāstraṃ idaṃ paraṃ |
mokṣaśāstraṃ idaṃ proktaṃ śivenāmitatejasā ||

Should someone read [only as much as] the first pāda [of] this śāstra with his senses subdued, [it would count as if] they had read all the Dharmic teachings. There is no doubt about this. This virtuous Arthaśāstra, this excellent Dharmaśāstra, this śāstra on liberation was taught by Śiva, whose splendour is immeasurable.

According to this definition, the VSS is both an Arthaśāstra and a Dhar-

¹⁹ See, e.g., ŚivaP 7.1.41: sargaś ca pratisargaś ca vaṃśo manvantarāṇi ca | vaṃśānucaritaṃ caiva purāṇaṃ pañcalakṣaṇam ||.

²¹ Understand pādamātram?

maśāstra, and also a yogic text offering instructions on mokṣa. One could cautiously characterise the VSS as a heterogeneous text containing Dharmaśāstric, Purāṇic, yogic, and narrative elements, similar to its starting point and model, the Mahābhārata.

Structure

As described in more detail in Kiss 2021, the VSS contains at least three discernible structural layers: a general Dharmaśāstric layer; a more or less Vaiṣṇava layer; and a Śaiva layer. Figure 1 is a diagram reproduced from the same article, showing the textual divisions more precisely.

Each layer is characterised by a dialogue between two interlocutors. The layer that I label general Dharmaśāstric is a dialogue between king Janamejaya and the sage Vaiśampāyana; the Vaiṣṇava layer is presented as a dialogue between Vigatarāga, who is Viṣṇu in disguise, and Anarthayajña, the ascetic; the Śaiva layer is a dialogue between Śiva and Devī, as related by Nandikeśvara.

The transitions between the layers are smooth. That is to say, Nandikeśvara’s narrative is mentioned, introduced, and told by Anarthayajña, whose dialogue with Vigatarāga is in turn narrated to Janamejaya by Vaiśampāyana.

Another way to represent the overall structure of the VSS visually is shown by Figure 2 on p. 13. The VSS is represented as a lotus whose petals represent chapters. White petals indicate chapters within the general Dharmaśāstric layer; light grey indicates the Vaiṣṇava layer; dark grey indicates Śaiva chapters. The divisions are not clear-cut: the first few verses of chapter one belong to the general layer, and transitions also occur within chapters. Additionally, the layers are not hermetically sealed, and there is some ‘leaking’ between the chapters. Śaiva chapters may contain Vaiṣṇava material, and vice versa. The labels beside the petals represent keywords indicating the main topics of each chapter. Large check marks indicate the presence of Anarthayajña the ascetic in the given chapter, while smaller check marks indicate references to Anarthayajña’s ascetic practice, repeatedly called anartha-yajña, i.e. ‘non-material’ or ‘internalised sacrifice or worship.’ Anarthayajña in both senses seems to be one of the main foci of the VSS.

The main theme of the Dharmaśāstric layer is Janamejaya’s desire to hear from Vaiśampāyana the condensed and ultimate Dharmic teachings of the Mahābhārata.

A brief overview of the Vaiṣṇava chapters would be the following: Anarthayajña, a Vaiṣṇava ascetic, who propagates a system of internalised āśramas—or rather, a system beyond the traditional āśramas—and who was born into an obscure or fluid varṇa (brāhmaṇa / kṣatriya), is tested by Viṣṇu; he passes the test and follows Viṣṇu to Viṣṇuloka.

The Śaiva layer is a collection of chapters addressing internalised pilgrimage places, a tale on a rich man giving away his wife to a Brahmin, embryology, karma, the soul (jīva), yoga, and more.

Another general observation is that roughly one-fourth of the text elaborates on rules of religious conduct (yama-niyama). Also, chapter two seems slightly out of place, being a clearly Śaiva chapter inserted into the Vaiṣṇava layer, within the corresponding dialogue of the Vaiṣṇava interlocutors.

It is not inconceivable that the Śaiva layer—which contains a teaching on non-material sacrifice (vinārthena tu yo yajñah, VSS 11.5a)—is the oldest part of the VSS. The Vaiṣṇava layer may have been developed later, with the legend of Anarthayajña constructed around that concept and phrase.

Connection to other texts and traditions

Mahābhārata and Purāṇas

The VSS's indebtedness to the Mahābhārata (MBh) is evident from its very first verses. As already noted, the frame story in the VSS comprises a dialogue between Janamejaya and Vaiśampāyana, echoing the setting of the frame story of the Mahābhārata. Janamejaya is the king at whose snake-sacrifice Vaiśampāyana recited the whole Mahābhārata for the first time. This important moment is where the frame story of the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha takes off: Janamejaya has listened to the entire Mahābhārata, but having had the desire to hear the ultimate teaching on Dharma, he is bound to remain unsatisfied. Asked by Janamejaya for a higher teaching on Dharma which can lead to liberation, Vaiśampāyana relates a dialogue between Vigatarāga (in fact Viṣṇu in disguise) and Anarthayajña, an ascetic.²²

Thus the frame story in the VSS suggests that the text is to be ideally read as a summary or higher synthesis of the Dharmic teachings found in the MBh.²³ The VSS's connection to the MBh is also evident from quotations from and paraphrases of MBh passages; e.g., VSS 1.4ab = MBh 13.112.9ab, VSS 1.29d = MBh 12.220.41d, VSS 3.15cdef ≈ MBh Suppl. 1.36.10, VSS 3.16cd ≈ MBh 12.8.17ab, VSS 3.29–32 ≈ MBh 13.117.37–38 VSS 3.34ab = MBh 13.116.14ab, VSS 4.5ab ≈ MBh 1.77.16, VSS 4.10 = MBh 1.69.22, VSS 6.20–22 ≈ MBh 6.39.14–16 (= BhG 17.14–16), VSS 8.21 ≈ MBh 12.214.9, etc., although as always, it is not certain if these borrowings come directly from the MBh or through the vehicle of some Purāṇas or the Mānavadharma-śāstra.²⁴ The story of the mongoose referenced in VSS 4.48 appears as MBh 14.92–93. The 25-tattva system in chapter 20 echoes and is partly based on MBh 12.247.1–10 (Mokṣadharmā).²⁵

Moreover, a significant number of passages in the VSS derive from Purāṇas and from Manu. Examples for Purāṇic parallels include VSS 1.28 ≈ KūP

²³ Although towards the very end of the text, we are told that this teaching is also the fine essence of the Purāṇas, Vedas, and Upaniṣads (purāṇavedopaniṣatsusāram).

²⁴ E.g., VSS 4.78 ≈ MBh 5.40.3 ≈ Manu 11.56.

Pāśupata and tantric influence

One of the major questions concerning the Śivadharmas corpus is whether it was aware of or influenced by Tantrism. This question is perhaps more important in the case of earlier Śivadharmas texts, such as the Śivadharmasāstra and the Śivadharmottara, than for the VSS, which was likely composed later. Tantric influence in the 7-10th-century, or more likely 9-10th-century, VSS would not be surprising; what is more revealing is whether this influence is early (5-8th century) or late (9-10th century), which may help determine the text's date.

The description of Śiva's Universe (śivāṇḍa) in chapter two contains clear references to the five Brahma-mantras (usually regarded as Vedic in origin, but possibly entering the Pāśupata and later Śaiva tantric traditions from other sources),²⁶ or five faces of Sadāśiva: Īśāna, Tatpuruṣa, Aghora, Sadyojāta, and Vāmadeva (2.26–33). Their traditional division into kalās also appears (2.31–32). Other glimpses into the Pāśupata realm can be seen in chapter eight. In verse 8.2, the Pāśupata tradition is explicitly named alongside the 'Śaiva' school. Additionally, the religious observances given in verses 8.13–18, particularly the Dog and Cow Observances (8.15–16) evoke Pāśupata practices.²⁷ Verses 8.35–43 describe various modes of ritual bathing. The first, Fire Bath, is explicitly referred to as a 'Pāśupata observance' (vrataṃ pāśupataṃ), and is praised as the most important (pāśupataṃ śreṣṭhaṃ) in verse 8.39. (Note that chapter eight, despite these influences, is part of a layer of the text that otherwise could be labelled as Vaiṣṇava.)²⁸

As for any possible Mantramārgic or Saiddhāntika influence, Sadāśiva, Paraśiva, and Śiva as Paramātmā are mentioned in 16.34 as corresponding to breaths.²⁹ Sadāśiva appears in a visualisation in VSS 6.16, and is said to be the original teacher of the internalisation of the āśramas, bestowing this knowledge on Maheśvara (11.4, 25). The term dhyāna generally means visualization, similarly to its tantric usage, in verses 4.72–73 (Śaiva), 6.7–18 (mostly Śaiva, but said to be taught by Hari), 10.23 (a visualisation of the deity in the centre of a lotus), 10.25–26 (an obscure visualisation possibly echoing Niśvāsa uttarasūtra 5.16), and in chapter 16, the main yogic teaching, and in chapter 22.³⁰ Faint echoes of the Niśvāsa kārīkā appear in chapter ten (VSS 10.27–29), and in chapter sixteen (VSS 16.1), both Śaiva chapters, and some clearer parallels in VSS 20.4, 22.29–32ab. A stanza resembling a verse from the Niśvāsa mukhasūtra (NiśvMukha 4.65, echoed also in the Kulasāra) appears in 16.30. An obscure reference to a 36-tattva system appears in 4.73, possibly indicating familiarity with a full-fledged tantric ontological system, in stark contrast with the highly detailed account and propagation of a 25-tattva-system in chapter 20.³¹ Similarly, the terms sakala-vikala in 9.5 may betray some knowledge of Śaiva tantric theology. Mantras resembling those of the tantric Mantramārga, apart from om, are largely absent in the VSS, however chapter twenty-two presents an obscurely, perhaps unbreakably, encoded ten-syllable mantra.

Rather randomly, the ten types of dhyāna mentioned in VSS 22.29–35 (1 ghoṣaṇī, 2 piṅgalā, 3 vaidyutī, 4 candramālinī, 5 candrā, 6 mano'nugā, 7 sukṛtā, 8 saumyā, 9 nirañjanā, 10 nirālambā, description breaks down after the sixth item) echo Kubjikāmatatantra 25.172ff:

athānyat sampravakṣyāmi avasthāṃ jñānabodhikāṃ |
ghoṣaṇī piṅgalā caiva vidyunmālā ca candriṇī ||25.172||
mano'nugā ca sukṛtā saumyā caiva nirañjanā |
nirālambā tathā devī anyā caiva mahābalā ||25.173||

Finally, the Pāñcarātra tradition is mentioned several times (10.33, 16.36–37), but its presence, similar to some MBh passages,³² tells us little about the text's date.

In summary, the Pāsupatas are clearly known and highly regarded in the VSS, and while tantric influence is subtle, the cumulative evidence suggests that Tantra was present in the vicinity of the text's conception.

Śivadharmā texts

As already mentioned, in general, the VSS's connection to other texts of the Śivadharmā is weak, i.e., strong and direct textual parallelism can rarely be detected. Possible exceptions include the following. VSS 3.47cd appears (among other places) as ŚDhU 4.44ab; the praise of the cow in VSS 4.36ff is somewhat similar to ŚDhU 12.92ff (VSS 4.38a = ŚDhU 12.102d, 103d, 104d); VSS 4.38 could be a paraphrase of ŚDhU 12.92; VSS 7.5 is similar to ŚDhU 1.27 (and MBh suppl 14.4.2285–86, and NāradaP 1.13.71); and the five types of yajña in VSS 6.1ff is somewhat similar to what ŚDhU chapter three teaches.³³ In addition to these, the embryological teachings of VSS chapter thirteen are remarkably close to parts of ŚDhU chapter eight. More importantly, there are clear and strong links between the yogic visualisation teachings taught in VSS chapters six, sixteen, and twenty-two, and those taught in Dharmaputrikā chapters one, two, and four. Here is a brief summary of the parallelism between the VSS and the DharmP, to be further discussed in volume two. VSS 6.7–11 teach the so-called dhyā-nayajña, or ‘sacrifice/worship by visualisation,’ which is fivefold: it concerns the Sun, the Moon, Fire, crystal, and the Subtle Tattva. Even though the phrasing and the context is different, this teaching is remarkable close to DharmP 4.5cd–14 (Kafle’s draft edition):

There are even clearer indications of possible interaction between the VSS and the DharmP, or of a common source, in the sixteenth chapter of the VSS. VSS stanzas 16.27–29, on the distinction between mānasa and yau-gapadya yoga, appear verbatim in the DharmP, there as discussing the first two items of a longer list (DharmP 1.54–56), and VSS chapter sixteen contains several other passages that are closely parallel with the DharmP. Furthermore, the two teachings mentioned above, that is, the five types of meditation (sūrya, soma, agni, sphāṭika, susūkṣma) and the categories mānasa and yau-gapadya yoga, augmented with three other types of yoga (saṃkṣipta, viśālā, dvikaraṇa), are presented as the ‘ten yogas’ in VSS 22.18–27, a passage closely parallel with DharmP 1.54–63. These observations suggest some link between the VSS and the DharmP, but it is difficult to see its true nature. The fact that the VSS tends to relate the same content in a language that is usually more problematic or non-standard than that of the DharmP may or may not help us determine which text served as source to the other. A possible scenario could be that the VSS was the source and the DharmP's redactors cleaned up, organised, and expanded the VSS's teachings.

Other potential evidence of intertextuality between the VSS and other texts of the Śivadharmā are still to be found and studied.

Buddhist influence

The presence of Buddhist influence in the VSS is again subtle but noticeable. The four brahmavihāras—maitrī, karuṇā, muditā, and upekṣā—are mentioned in 4.71 as 'the four āyatanas,' possibly indicating only a superficial familiarity with the concept.³⁴ They are also referenced in 11.34 and 11.56 in the context of the internalization of the vānaprastha's and parivrājaka's modes of life. Additionally, a rule given in 11.46 concerning begging might echo a Buddhist precept. Viṣṇu, one of the interlocutors in chapters 1–9 and 19–21, assumes the name Vigatārāga ('passionless, dispassionate') when disguised as a Brahmin, a name that may carry faint Buddhist connotations. A possible influence from the Buddhacarita is seen in 4.54–57 and 70, while the teachings on mauna in 4.69 seem similar to Buddhist teachings. In summary, VSS chapter 4, and to some extent chapter 11, may display signs of Buddhist influence. This may contribute to the text's broader program of offering a foundational Dharma text for devotees of all religions present at the time and place of its composition.

Dating and provenance

There are several reasons to believe that Nepal, specifically the Kathmandu valley, is the most likely location for the composition or final redaction of the VSS. The most probable period for this composition is the first half of the poorly documented ‘transitional period’³⁵ in the history of Nepal. This is a ‘relatively obscure period [...] [b]etween the Licchavis, who last appear in epigraphical record in 737 [CE], and the Malla kings, who ruled from 1200–1768.’³⁶

To support these assumptions, we can consider the following: the location of the manuscript evidence; place names and individuals mentioned; and a possible influence of any local language on the style and grammar of the text.

All MSS known to us that transmit the VSS hail from Nepal. This in itself is not strong evidence but it stands in stark contrast with the MSS situation of the ŚDhŚ and the ŚDhU.³⁷

The geographical locations mentioned in the VSS include the tīrthas mentioned in chapter ten: Himavat (the Himālayas), Kurukṣetra, Prayāga, Vārāṇasī, Yamunā, Gaṅgā, Agnitīrtha, Somatīrtha, Sūryatīrtha, Puṣkara, Mānasa, Naimiṣa, Bindusāra (= Bindusaras), Setubandha, Suradraha or Surahrada, Ghaṇṭikeśvara, and Vāgīśa. These may hint at the area where the VSS was composed by giving more significance to locations nearby and by being more specific when mentioning local sacred places. Some names on the list above are easy to identify and at the same time probably too often included in lists such as this one to be indicative enough: Himavat, Kurukṣetra,³⁸ Prayāga, Vārāṇasī, Yamunā, Gaṅgā, Puṣkara (modern Pushkar), and Naimiṣa.³⁹ All these are locations in modern North India, or in the case of Himavat, for our purposes and more precisely, in North India and Nepal. Agnitīrtha, Somatīrtha and Sūryatīrtha could also be locations in North India, although they are more obscure than the ones above. For Agnitīrtha, see, e.g., Padmapurāṇa 3.45.27ab: agnitīrtham iti khyātam yamunādakṣiṇe taṭe; and Padmapurāṇa 6.139.1ab: sābhramatyuttare kūle agnitīrtham iti śrutam; therefore Agnitīrtha may be placed at the southern banks of the Yamunā or at the northern banks of the Sābhramatī river

Sūryatīrtha is sometimes placed in Kurukṣetra.⁴⁰ Going further in the list, Mānasa is generally thought to be '[a] lake on the peak of the Himālayas,'⁴¹ modern Manasarovar.⁴² Bindusāra, which most probably stands for Bindusaras, can be a sacred place north of Mount Kailāsa,⁴³ two miles south of Gaṅgotri,⁴⁴ or alternatively Sitpur in Gujarat, north-west of Ahmedabad.⁴⁵

In contrast with these, Setubandha is the traditional name for the ridge of rocks between South India and Śrī Laṅkā, and Ghaṇṭikeśvara could be a sacred place in Orissa.⁴⁶ Vāgīśa seems difficult to locate, but it is most probably a sacred place east of Kathmandu. This toponym comes up in Nepālamāhātmya 3.21–25 as a location south of and not far from the Hanumadīśvara-līṅga, which is in the southern outskirts of Bhaktapur in Nepal, at the confluence of two rivers (according to Acharya 1992, 37–38 and 298):

the best of the twice-born, the truest of sages, climbed the mountain on which fresh grass was growing(?)⁴⁷ together with the sages. In a valley of the mountain which was embellished with various waterfalls, he installed a liṅga called Vālmikīśvara. Having installed that great liṅga, Vālmīki, the truest of sages, surrounded by groups of sages, returned to his own āśrama on the banks of the river Tamasā. If one sees the Vālmikīśvara [liṅga], one will have the power of speech (vāg-vibhūti). That is why the wise call it the Vāgīśvara-liṅga.

I have reproduced a map from the beginning of Acharya 1992 as Figure 4 on p. 27 below. On this map, Vāgīśvara is placed north-east of Bhaktapur.

The only toponym left from the list with which we started this section is Suradraha.⁴⁸ This sacred place is mentioned as the most important one in VSS 18.15, in a chapter that lists personal names, placenames, rivers, deities, etc., that are considered the best (śreṣṭha) of all others in the same category:

devatānāṃ hariḥ śreṣṭhaḥ śreṣṭhā gaṅgā nadīṣu ca |
anāśanas tapaḥśreṣṭhas tīrthaśreṣṭhaḥ suradrahaḥ || 18.15

The best god is Hari.⁴⁹ The best river is the Ganges. The best austerity is fasting. The best pilgrimage-place is Suradraha.

This suggests that the location of Suradraha could potentially give us a hint on the geographic centre of the community in which the VSS was commissioned or composed. Unfortunately, up to this moment, I have not been able to obtain any useful information on Suradraha. Nevertheless, I suppose that it should be a sacred place in the Kathmandu valley. The word draha is attested in Monier-Williams' Sanskrit-English Dictionary as a variant of brada ('pond'). In classical Newar the corresponding form is daba (Malla 2000, 218). Suradaha may stand for Sūradaha, that is Sūryadaha, which is a 'pond situated in Devakuru' according to Mehta and Chandra (1972, 850).⁵⁰ In fact, Sūryahrada, that is, Sūradaha, is one of the so-called yamaka-lakes in Devakuru in the North in Jaina cosmography (see Kirfel 1920, 235–236).

All the above is based on VSS chapter ten. All locations have been entered in the map which is Figure 3 on p. 26. The impression one gets is clearly a north-Indian or Nepalese focus.

Chapter twelve also contains toponyms that could refine or contradict what we have seen so far. The narrative of this chapter starts in Kusumanagara at the confluence of the Gaṅgā and the Gaṇḍakī rivers, which is Pāṭali-putra (12.4 and 12). As the story develops, Vipula, our hero, departs from Kusumanagara to travel to a far-away land, which is identified by a fellow traveller as the city of Naravīrapura in the Deccan (12.60). It is difficult to find a Naravīrapura that would fit the context. I suspect that what could have been meant is Karavīrapura, possibly modern Kolhapur in Maharashtra.⁵¹ Since this placename, and the Sahya mountains (12.93),⁵² come up in the framework of a dreamlike, fanciful part of the narrative, playing the role of ‘the far-away, magical land,’ a Nepalese origin of the VSS is still tenable.⁵³

Perhaps the most telling of all toponyms found in the VSS is Mṛgendra-śikhara, where Anarthayajña’s āśrama is situated, ‘on the southern slopes of the Himalayas.’⁵⁴ This name comes up several times in the Nepālamā-

bātmya and thus features on the map in Acharya 1992 (Figure 4). Mṛgendraśikhara is a mountain situated north of Kathmandu. Today the area is called Śivapurī. Nepālamābhātmya 7.32ff tells a story about king Sūryaketu, a Viṣṇu-worshipper, who is attacked by king Hamsadhvaja, the ruler of Mithilā. Sūryaketu is advised by Nārada to go and hide at Mṛgendraśikhara (Nepālamābhātmya 7.48):

*nārada uvacā |
mṛgendraśikharam gatvā nivāsaṃ kuru pāṛthiva |
yatrotpannā mahāramyā vāgvatī saritām varā |
tasmin sthāne suguptaṃ ca nivāsaṃ kuru bhūpate ||*

Nārada spoke: Go to Mṛgendraśikhara, O king, and stay there.
O king, set up your hiding place there where the beautiful Vāgvatī, the best of rivers, rises.

Nārada goes on to describe legends connected to Mṛgendraśikhara. After Viṣṇu assumed his (half-man, half-)lion-form and killed Hiraṇyakaśipu, he retreated to the Himālayas. The part of the mountain where Viṣṇu stayed is called Mṛgendraśikhara exactly because he stayed there in lion-form. Seeking to meet Viṣṇu, the grateful Prahlāda follows the god. He cannot find him, instead he starts performing penance. Śiva appears and he is pleased with Prahlāda's penance. The Vāgvatī river rises from his laugh (Nepālamābhātmya 7.50–58). These are related in a similar fashion in the Vāgmatīmābhātmyaprasaṃsā.⁵⁵

The VSS specifies that Anarthayajña's āśrama was on the banks of the

*śṛṇu rājann avabito yogendrasya mahātmanah |

‘Vaiśampāyana spoke: Listen, O King, attentively. I shall tell you about the āśrama, the varṇa, and the jāti of the great and noble yogin, O king. In the southern region of the Himālaya, on the Mṛgendra peak, O king, on the banks of the river Mahendrapathaga, O King[, was his āśrama]’.

Mahendrapathagā.⁵⁶ A candidate for this, based on the fact that its name seems a synonym and on its location, could be Indramārgā mentioned in Vāgmatīmāhātmyaprasaṃsā 2.9, a river flowing from the sacred place called Indramārga in the valley of Mṛgendrasīkhara. The verse states that bathing at the confluence of the Indramārgā and the Vāgmatī transports one to Indraloka. Indramārgā is identified as modern Dhobi Khola.⁵⁷

The location with which the ascetic Anarthayajña is connected strongly suggests the Kathmandu valley as the geographical focus of the VSS because he is a key figure and main interlocutor in the VSS, possibly the reason behind the composition of the text.⁵⁸

Turning to names of individuals mentioned in the VSS, those that might betray anything about the place or time of composition of the text include King Siṃhajata and queen Kekayī, rulers of Nara- or Karavīrapura in the narrative of chapter twelve. Unfortunately, so far I have not been able to link these names to any historical or legendary persons. The name of the hero of the same chapter, Vipula, may be familiar from MBh 13.40.16–13.43.16.:

Devaśarman asks his disciple, Vipula, to protect his wife, Ruci, primarily from Indra's amorous advances, while he is away from home. Vipula decides that the only way he can protect Ruci is from within, i.e., by entering her body by yogic powers. Vipula succeeds in protecting Ruci's reputation and departs to practise extreme austerities. Later he encounters several people (in fact, as we learn later, Day and Night, and the six seasons) who mention 'Vipula's path leading to the other world' (vīpulasya pare loka yā gatis, MBh 13.42.27cd) as something horrible. He wonders what sins he may have committed that could yield such unfortunate consequences. He realizes that by not telling Devaśarman that he actually entered Ruci's body, he lied and thus may have committed a horrible sin. When Devaśarman learns about this, he praises Vipula for his services instead, and all three, Devaśarman, his wife, and Vipula, go to heaven.⁵⁹

Thus, ironically, while the Vipula of the MBh is famous for protecting somebody else's wife, a rather different Vipula in VSS chapter twelve donates his own wife to a Brahmin as soon as the latter expresses interest in her. It is more than possible that the two characters have no connection at all.⁶⁰

Other characters in VSS chapter twelve—Kapila, Vipula's father; Bhīmabala, a traveller; Puṇḍaka, the foreman of the guild; and Caṇḍa and Vi-caṇḍa, two royal envoys—seem to be of little use for us to ascertain the time and place of composition or redaction of the VSS.

Going further, as mentioned above, any discernible influence of a local, vernacular language on the style or grammar of a Sanskrit work could also be useful to locate the text in question geographically. The language of the VSS displays numerous oddities that could be explained by the interference of some other language, most likely early classical Newar. On this, see a separate section below on pp. 30ff.

In addition, the quotes from Manu in the VSS usually contain variants that can be found in the apparatus in Olivelle's critical edition of Manu (2005) as belonging overwhelmingly to what Olivelle calls the 'Northern Transmission'.⁶¹ This again confirms a North-Indian or Nepalese origin for the VSS.

The obvious terminus ante quem for the composition or redaction of the VSS is the date of the earliest MSS that transmits it. The earliest dated MS containing the VSS is Ko₇₇, dated to Nepal Saṃvat 156, i.e., 1035-36 CE.⁶² In a multiple-text MS⁶³ that is potentially earlier than Ko₇₇, the VSS

⁵⁹ See a summary of Vipula's story in the MBh also in Sukthankar 1944, 317–318.

⁶⁰ Nevertheless, see the word vipule used in VSS 12.155b potentially referring to the famous story in the Mahābhārata.

⁶¹ See, e.g., pāpakṛt in VSS 3.34d (≈ Manu 5.52) attested in Olivelle's Devanāgarī MSS Pu⁵, Pu⁷, Pu⁹; nānyatra manur abravīt in VSS 3.35d (≈ Manu 5.41) attested in Śāradā MSS sOx¹, sPu⁶ and Devanāgarī MS Tr²; kūṭa in VSS 4.79 (≈ Manu 11.57) in a MS from Kathmandu (BKt⁵), in Devanāgarī/Old Nāgarī MSS (Lo⁴, nPu¹, Pu², Pu⁴, Pu¹⁰), as well as in two South-Indian MSS (GMd¹, TMd³).

⁶² See Shastri 1928, 721 and De Simini and Mirnig 2017, 591. The date is clearly visible as 'samvat 156' in the last line of the penultimate folio side of Ko₇₇/8.

⁶³ See more detail on this MS, which is now to be found in Munich, in Harimoto 2022.

is written in a hand that appears later than that used for some of the other texts in that MS.⁶⁴ The final colophon of the VSS (and the DharmP) in this MS (f. 50r) is followed by the date [Nepāla] ‘samvat 192,’ i.e., 1071-1072 CE.

These two MSS make it impossible to date the VSS later than the first half of the 11th century CE, and parts of the text may be considerably older. Archaic features that may indicate that the VSS, or parts of it, were composed much earlier than the early 11th century include the following. Chapter ten,⁶⁵ while it teaches the yogic tubes (nāḍī) Suṣumnā and Iḍā, is silent on Piṅgalā, which is a situation similar to that in the 6-7-century *Niśvāsa nayasūtra*⁶⁶ (see details in the notes to the translation). Similarly, 11.23a (nivṛtṭyādi caturvedaś) mentions four Śaiva kalās, instead of the expected and somewhat later, and in character tantric, five, namely nivṛtti, pratiṣṭhā, vidyā, śānti, and śāntyatīta. In the same chapter, the order in which the āśramas are taught (grhastha, brahmacārin, vānaprastha, parivrājaka) is reminiscent of Āpastambadharmasūtra 2.9.21.1, and is relatively rare, as opposed to the traditional order (brahmacārin, grhastha, vānaprastha, parivrājaka) found, e.g., in Manu. (See Kiss 2021, 195–196.) Another feature that might point towards a date considerably earlier than the 11th century is the system of tattvas in chapter 20: the mahābbhūtas of classical Sāṅkhya are called dhātus here, the tanmātras of classical Sāṅkhya are called guṇas,⁶⁷ the buddhi of classical Sāṅkhya is called matī, and the highest tattva is singular unlike the multiple puruṣas of classical Sāṅkhya. These may well be archaisms included in the VSS consciously, but they could also indicate that the time of composition of the VSS is much closer to pre-classical Sāṅkhya than what the MS evidence suggests.⁶⁸

⁶⁴ Harimoto 2022, 597–598: ‘This Śivadharma ms consists of two major parts, easily distinguishable by different hands: one that appears to be produced in 9th-c. Nepal [...], and another seemingly from a century or so later [...] The next set of folios making up this Śivadharma ms consists of three titles: the *Uttaromāmaheśvarasamvāda (24 folios), the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha (50 folios), and the Dharmaputrikā (11 folios). We do not know the original order of these three works because each section starts with folio 1. Moreover, even though these three titles appear to be written by the same hand (probably somewhat later than the first part), there is no certainty that these folios were produced to complement the first part.’

All in all, in light of all the above, it is difficult to be more precise on the dating of the VSS than saying that its production must have happened before the end of the 10th century, or the beginning of the 11th century CE if our oldest dated MS that transmits the VSS is close in time to the actual composition or redaction of the text. The date could also be considerably earlier than the 10th century, and therefore a tentative dating for the VSS would consider the 7th to 10th centuries CE.

Language

Newar influence?

The oddities of the language of the VSS go beyond the idiosyncrasies of epic Sanskrit. This dialect exhibits some similarities to Śaiva Aīśa Sanskrit,⁶⁹ and frequently applies peculiar metrical licences, alongside a special vocabulary, morphology, and syntax. Analysing this language could, ideally, help us define the identity of the author(s) or redactor(s) of the text and confirm our views on its place of composition.

To support a working hypothesis, I will mention parallels between the language of the VSS and early classical Newar—since the VSS was most probably produced in the Kathmandu valley⁷⁰—whenever possible. (This is not to suggest that the phenomena discussed must necessarily originate in Newar influence; other local Prākṛts may also have played a role.) Of course, the assumable date of the composition of the VSS, which is without much doubt pre-early-11th century, does not allow any direct comparison with contemporary Newar language texts.⁷¹ Therefore I have to project a much later Newar grammar onto an earlier and less well-known state of the language, which is not without risks.

In the following, I will only give a brief overview of the most important phenomena. For details, see the observations on the constitution of the Sanskrit text in the footnotes to the translation, as well as the Index.

Number and gender

One of the most evident deviation from Pāṇinian grammar in the text of the VSS is a general disregard of grammatical concord in number and gender.⁷² See, for example, a plural verb (perhaps metri causa) with a singular subject in VSS 1.25ab:

rātryāgame pralīyante jagat sarvaṃ carācaram

When [Brahmā's] night falls, the whole moving and unmoving universe dissolve[s].

Or a neuter plural participle picking up a neuter singular and a feminine singular noun in 1.61ab:

pramāṇaṃ nāma saṃkhyā ca kīrtitāni samāsataḥ

The numbers [pertaining to] the measurements have been taught in brief.

Another clear example is 6.12c, where grammatical gender is totally ignored:

kāni lokāḥ prapadyante

Which worlds can be attained?

⁷² Compare Kölver's introductory remarks in his investigation of 'Newarized Sanskrit' (1999, 202) in the Svayambhūpurāṇa thus (ibid. 192): 'Number is often ignored [catvāro 'pi maṇḍalañ ca 429,19 (cf. 429, 21), narāḥ pañcagatiñ ca na labhec ca 428,12], as is gender

[tvam ekam āgataṃ na hi 464, 10 'only you have not come'; °nāgakanyā ... vṛṣṭipūrṇaṃ kṛtam 470, 8 'the Nāga girl made (it) full of rain'], and case

[manuṣyāḥ ... tasmai ... pūjitam 426, 2 etc. 'men worshipped him; he was worshipped by people'; bhavatām apy arthāya karomy upāyakam mayā 452, 5 'I am making an expedient for your sake'].'

Even when the VSS appears to quote from the Bhagavadgītā, it tends to cause confusion for no evident reason:

anudvegakarā vāṇī priyaṃ satyaṃ hitaṃ ca yat (VSS 6.21ab) anudvegakaraṃ vākyaṃ priyaṃ satyaṃ hitaṃ ca yat (BhG 17.15ab)

This line in the Bhandarkar critical edition of the MBh does not have any significant variants, and the VSS's version is much more problematic grammatically than the assumable source—one can only wonder why.

This confusion—or often metrically motivated disregard—of standard Sanskrit grammar when dealing with number and gender becomes almost predictable when a noun phrase involves numerals.⁷³ See, e.g., verse 1.2cd:

parva cāśya śataṃ pūrṇaṃ śrutvā bhāratasaṃhitām
 Having listened to the Mahābhārata, to all its hundred section[s] (parvan)...

Here, one would expect either a plural genitive (parvāṇāṃ śataṃ), a compound (śataparvāṇī), or a plural accusative (parvāṇi śataṃ). Similarly, gatis ca pañca vijñeyāḥ in 3.5a stands for gatayaś ca pañca vijñeyāḥ ('and the paths are to be known as five'), partly metri causa; and an interrogative quantifier (kati, 'how many?') can trigger the same: gatis tasya kati smṛtāḥ (3.1d; 'how many are its path[s]?'). It is worth noting that classical Newar rarely applies any plural marker in noun phrases with numerals.⁷⁴ Moreover in Newar, 'nouns denoting inanimate objects are indifferent as to number.'⁷⁵ A further clear example is verse 3.6cd:

tasya patnī mahābhāgā trayodaśa sumadhyamāḥ
 He has thirteen beautiful wives with nice waists.

⁷³ I am thankful to Judit Törzsök, who first pointed out to me the regular nature of the phenomenon itself as seen in the VSS, and who later drew my attention to the similar Newar grammatical rule (personal communication, Nov 29, 2023), which led me to an investigation of a possible link between the Sanskrit of the VSS and classical Newar.

⁷⁵ Jørgensen 1941, 5 and 17.

Here, with no variants in any of the manuscripts consulted, only the very end of the noun phrase (sumadhyamāḥ) bears the required plural ending. This again is what we often observe in Newar.⁷⁶ A good example of total number-blindness is 5.17cd:

kīrtitāni viśeṣeṇa śaucācāram aśeṣataḥ

... the practice of purity is definitely expounded in great detail.

Note that there would have been little difficulty in composing the same line in standard Sanskrit, e.g., beginning with kīrtitaṃ ca... Instead, this line betrays the author's indifference towards grammatical concord.⁷⁷ It is also possible that the participle kīrtitāni here functions as a finite verb in the plural: 'they teach [the practice of purity].' In this case, there is some sense of number, but coupled with a blurred boundary between active finite verbs and passive participles.

A special case occurs when the text appears to quote from an external source but chooses to change the plural to the singular. E.g., VSS 4.77 cites Manu 11.55, a verse that also features in the MBh and in the YājñS.⁷⁸ In all its versions, pāda c of this stanza contains a plural when labelling a list of the five 'grievous sins,' except in the VSS, which prefers a singular.⁷⁹

There seems to be a marked tendency towards the singular in the VSS's language. In general, gender confusion, and to a certain degree number confusion, are not unusual in epic Sanskrit and in Aiśa Sanskrit,⁸⁰ but their

⁷⁷ Compare Kölver's remark on the phrase āgataḥ sarve nāgāḥ in a verse in the Svayambhūpurāṇa (on p. 459 in Shastri 1894): 'this is a remarkable lack of sensitivity as to the category of number' (Kölver 1999, 195).

⁷⁸ Manu 11.55 (in Olivelle's edition): brahmahatyā surāpānaṃ steyaṃ gurvaṅganāgamah | mahānti pātakāny ābuh samsargaś cāpi taiḥ saba ||; MBh Suppl. 12.30: brahmahatyāṃ surāpānaṃ steyaṃ gurvaṅganāgamam | mahānti pātakāny ābuh saṃyogam caiva taiḥ saba ||; YājñS 3.228: brahmahā madyapaḥ stenas tathaiva gurutaḥ pagah | ete mahāpātakino yaś ca taiḥ saba saṃvaset ||.

⁷⁹ VSS 4.77: brahmahatyā surāpānaṃ steyo gurvaṅganāgamam | mahāpātakam ity ābus tatsaṃyogī ca pañcamah ||.

⁸⁰ See, e.g., Oberlies 2003, 121, 292–304, and Kiss 2015, 81 and 85, and the Index extent in the VSS suggests a very strong external influence—presumably that of classical Newar.

Case and syntax

An extreme example of a total disregard for Sanskrit syntax is found in VSS 17.20:

*bbūmipradātā dvija hīnadīnaḥ
samyddhasasyo jalasaṃnikṛṣṭaḥ |
sa yāti lokam amarādhipasya
vimānayānena manohareṇa ||*

He who donates to a poor and distressed Brahmin land that yields plenty of corn and is in the vicinity of water will go to the world of the king of the immortal ones [i.e. of Indra] on a fascinating aerial vehicle.

Surprising as this translation may seem, it is, judging from the context, rather secure. Pādas ab probably stand for what, in more standard Sanskrit, would read: dvijāya hīnadīnāya sasyasamyddhām jalasaṃnikṛṣṭām bhūmiṃ yo dadāti. Instead, the phrase is constructed with what looks like a series of nominatives and a vocative, with little or no regard for the expected case endings: endings seem to function more as decorations than as grammatical markers.

This is difficult to explain purely in terms of Newar influence, since classical Newar does have a dative case marker (added to the genitive for animate nouns). It is also striking that pādas cd of the same verse are composed in perfectly standard Sanskrit.⁸¹

There are dozens—if not hundreds—of syntactical oddities in the VSS, even if not all are as baffling as the example above.⁸² Somewhat similarly to what Kölver describes in his analysis of the language of the Svayambhūpurāṇa, a Nepalese composition (Kölver 1999), there often (but not always) appears to be a lack of understanding of the passive, coupled with the application of the ergative, one of the basic syntactical tools of classical Newar.

therein.

⁸¹ See a similarly puzzling situation in the Brahmayāmala, which is briefly described in Kiss 2015, 74 as follows: ‘One of the most intriguing questions concerning the Bra[hma]Yā[mala] is not why its language deviates from Pāṇini so often but rather why sometimes it falls back to perfectly standard Pāṇinian language for fairly long passages.’

⁸² Most of them are addressed in the footnotes to the translation.

A good example is found in 12.113cd:

indreṇāsmi phalaṃ dattaṃ sa phalaṃ datta me bhavān

It was Indra who gave me the fruit and I gave that fruit to you.

Again, this is the translation that seems to fit the context. Here the skeleton of pāda c is a well-constructed passive: indreṇa phalaṃ dattaṃ, but then, instead of adding a dative or genitive (e.g., indreṇa me phalaṃ dattaṃ), the author chooses a finite verb (asmi). In pāda d, after seemingly treating phalaṃ as a masculine noun, and leaving datta in stem form metri causa, and using me for mayā,⁸³ this time he ends the phrase with a noun in the nominative (bhavān) instead of the dative or genitive. Why not write dattaṃ tad eva te mayā,⁸⁴ or dattaṃ tava tad eva ca?

Constructions with datta/kathita plus an expected dative are especially prone to confusion. See, e.g., VSS 1.62cd–63ab and 10.2d:

*brahmaṇā kathitaṃ pūrṇaṃ mātariśvā yathātatham
vāyunā pāda saṃkṣīpya prāptaṃ uśanasam purā*

[The Purāṇas] were taught by Brahmā to Mātariśvan [= Vāyu] in their entirety, in their true form. Vāyu abridged the verses and then gave [them] to Uśanas.

bravāmi vaḥ purāvṛttaṃ nandinā kathito 'smy aham

I shall teach you an ancient legend that Nandi told me.

Again, there is some struggle first with an expected dative here: it ends up in the nominative (mātariśvā). Then an expected agent in the instrumental, or rather another dative, becomes an accusative (uśanasam). Thirdly, kathito 'smy stands for kathitaṃ mama or kathitaṃ mahyam.

Somewhat similar are constructions with a past participle plus asmi in place of an active finite verb. See, e.g., 13.68cd, 14.56ab and 15.15cd:

⁸³ This often happens in epic Sanskrit, see Oberlies 2003, 4.1.3, pp. 102–103.

⁸⁴ Although this solution carries the metric fault of being iambic.

eṣa garbhasamutpattiḥ kathito 'smi varānane

This is how I have told you the formation of the embryo, O Varānanā.

āgneyadbātum somaṃ ca kathito 'smi varānane

I have taught, O Varānanā, the Fiery constituents and the Soma-ones.

kathito 'smi samāsenā kim anyac chrotum icchasi

Thus have I briefly described [to you, O Mahādevī, the soul.]
What else would you like to hear?

These resemble a phenomenon Jørgensen observed in a Sanskrit passage in the Newar Vicitrakarṇikāvadānoddhṛta, where the phrase na jñāto 'ham must be interpreted as 'I did not know'.⁸⁵

Occasionally, the agent of an active construction with a transitive verb simply imitates an ergative structure: viṣṇunā... papraccha (1.8), dhanyās te yair idam vetti (4.75ab), sa[!] hovāca pathikena (12.60a).⁸⁶

Another typical syntactical pattern in the VSS is a verb meaning 'to tell, teach' followed by a noun in the genitive. See, for example, 4.69ab:

caturmaunasya vakṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvāvahito bhava

I shall tell you about the four cases of observing silence. Listen, be attentive.

One could argue that pāda a is simply elliptical and that a verb like lakṣaṇam or svabhāvaṃ ('the characteristics/ essence [of X]') is missing. 1.37ab and 4.17ab display similar structures:

brahmāṇḍānām prasaṃkhyātum mayā śakyam katham dvija

How could I enumerate [all the details of] the Brahmāṇḍa[s], O twice-born?

evam satyavidhānasya kīrtitaṃ tava suvrata

⁸⁵ Jørgensen 1931, 77 and 328. Compare tat phalaṃ sa niveditaḥ ('he gave that fruit') in VSS 12:67d.

⁸⁶ This happens also in Aśa. See, e.g., Siddhayaogeśvarīmata 18.23: pūjayet ... mantriṇā (Törzsök 1999, 42).

Thus have [I] taught you the rules of truth, O virtuous one.

This phenomenon is difficult to explain as the result of Newar influence, since classical Newar would usually also require an extra word (such as kham ‘thing, topic, word, story’) in such constructions. While it may fall into one of the categories that Jørgensen (1941) describes in his §26 g, h, and i, where he gives examples of the use of the genitive, it is more plausibly part of a broader class of phenomena that Edgerton, in his discussion of Buddhist Hybrid Sanskrit, labels ‘genitive with miscellaneous verbs.’⁸⁷

These kinds of deviations from standard Sanskrit syntax require that the translation be, to some extent, intuitive and context-driven, rather than mechanically adhering to the rules of standard Sanskrit grammar.⁸⁸

Cardinal and ordinal numbers

Although the VSS does use simple ordinal numbers such as prathama, dvi-tīya, and trītiya, with higher numbers there seems to be no clear distinction between cardinal and ordinal usage: cardinals are frequently used where ordinals would be expected. See, for example, 20.8ab and 11ab:

caturviṃśati yat tattvaṃ prakṛtiṃ viddhi niścayam dvāviṃśati ahaṃkāras tattvaṃ uktam maṇiṣbhiḥ

Know the twenty-fourth Tattva certainly as Prakṛti. The twenty-second Tattva is Ahaṃkāra according to the wise.

This phenomenon is known, to some extent, from epic Sanskrit,⁸⁹ but is even more characteristic of classical Newar.⁹⁰

Stem form nouns

Stem form nouns, or uninflected nominal bases (prātipadikas), are extremely common in the language of the VSS. While such forms are not alien to the ⁸⁸ Kölver’s ‘dative for direct object’ (Kölver 1999, 195, 4.2.1(b)), i.e. constructions such as tasmai prapūjitaṃ meaning ‘X worshipped him,’ cannot be found in the VSS. Although the VSS is obviously earlier than anything Jørgensen describes, it may be of some interest that according to him (1941, §27b), this is a late phenomenon in Classical Newar.

Aiśa Sanskrit of Śaiva Tantras,⁹¹ the sheer frequency in the VSS is striking and reminiscent one of the zero suffix of the nominative and accusative—or rather of the ‘casus indefinitus’ or ‘absolutive case’—of classical Newar.⁹² Very often, these uninflected forms are required to restore the metre, making them difficult to emend. Moreover, they frequently they blend in sandhi with the following word, thus reinforcing their presence.

Vocabulary

The special vocabulary of the VSS includes the following: karbacit for karhicit (in some MSS in 4.3b, and 4.47b): see Edgerton 1953, vol. 2, s.v. karbacit; br̥di as nominative 10.27cd, 20.17a, 22.24ab: see diśi in Aiśa, Kiss 2015, 83; tīrya for tīryaṇc/tīryak (3.5c, 4.6a, 4.30a, 8.4c, 12.150, 18.12, 18.15, etc.); me instead of mayā (8.30d, 11.4b, 12.24b, 12.55a, 12.113d, etc.): see Oberlies 2003, 4.1.3 [pp. 102–103]; ābhūta[sam]plavana for ābhūta[sam]plavana (2.13a, 12.151b); puna for punar (1.3a): see Middle Indic puna mentioned in Edgerton 1953, vol. 2, s.v. punā; nirdeha for videha (1.12d); koṭya for koṭi (thematization, 1.52c); ālayana for ālaya (possibly 2.3a); īrṣyatā for īrṣyā (2.6d); vaṇi for vaṇij (thematization, 9.16a); sara for saras (thematization, 10.27a); sakhāyā for sabhāyā (12.36c); śreṣṭhi for śreṣṭhin (thematization, 12.63a, 12.80a); śaśi for śaśin (thematization, 12.110d).

Metre

Perhaps the most striking metrical feature of the text is its generous use of the poetic licence sometimes labelled ‘muta cum liquida,’⁹³ that is, allowing a syllable to remain light (laghu) before certain consonant clusters that would normally render it heavy (guru).⁹⁴ Syllables beginning with pr, br, kr, and also hr, especially (in theory exclusively) at the beginning of words, are well-known candidates for this licence.⁹⁵ In the VSS, tr, dr, bhr, vr, śr, and also śy,⁹⁶ śv, sv, and dv, can also trigger this phenomenon.⁹⁷ All these syllables involve conjunct consonants with a semivowel in second position. Since the sound in first position is not always a plosive (‘muta’), the term ‘muta cum liquida’ is actually less than perfect in our case. I therefore propose the terms ‘krama licence’ or ‘kramasaṃyoga.’ To give reasons for this, and for context, it is perhaps not useless to briefly show what a well-known author on prosody, Kedārabhaṭṭa (11th or 12th century),⁹⁸ who is frequently quoted by Mallinātha, has to say on this phenomenon in his Vṛttaratnākara (here given together with Sulhaṇa’s Sukaviḥṛdayanandinī commentary):⁹⁹

*padādāv*¹⁰⁰ iba varṇasya saṃyogaḥ kramasaṃjñikah |
purahsthitena tena syāl laghutā ’pi kvacid guruḥ || 1.10 ||

In this [field, i.e. in chandaḥśāstra], conjunct consonants (saṃyoga) in a word-initial syllable (padādau varṇasya) is called a ‘sequence’ conjunct (krama[sam̐yoga]). [A syllable that counts as] heavy because one such [consonant cluster] stands in front ⁹³ I.e. ‘stop with liquid.’ The term ‘muta’ stands for a ‘plosive’ sound or ‘stop’. For a recent contribution on this phenomenon, see, Sen 2006 (discussing it as it appears in Latin).

⁹⁴ On its appearance in Śaiva Tantras, see, e.g., Goodall 2004, lxxxi and Goodall et al. 2015, 441. The latter concerns the syllable spa in sparśan in Niśvāsa nayasūtra 2.55cd: sparśatanmātra sparśan tu gr̥hṇate tvacam āśṛtaḥ.

⁹⁵ See, e.g., Apte 1890, Appendix A p. 1. Note that even here, the phenomenon extends beyond plosive sounds: h is rather a fricative.

⁹⁶ See, e.g., the cadence of 5.15b: śukaśyenakān for UU-U-

⁹⁷ See Oberlies 2003, xxxvii for an even wider range of conjuncts triggering the same in the MBh.

A ‘word’ is [a unit of speech that] ends in an inflection. A ‘conjunct’ is in a ‘syllable’ which is at the beginning of such a word. ‘In this’ field of science, it is to be known under the term ‘sequence’ (krama). By that sequence which stands in front, [a syllable] at the end of the previous word, even if it acquired heaviness [by position], may acquire lightness. ‘Sometimes’ [means:] as required. If you have doubts about this combination of consonants called ‘sequence’ (krama), [I reply:] the old teachers such as Piṅgalanāga and poets such as Kālīdāsa accepted [this] rule. The conjunct (saṃyoga) is the sequence[-type] (krama) [i.e. word-initial] conjunct (saṃyoga) [in this case]. Among [the possibilities,] for example with the conjunct gr. Here is an example of that:

taruṇaṃ sarṣapaśākaṃ navaudanaṃ picchalāni ca dadbhīni
alpavyayena sundari grāmyajano miṣṭam aśnāti || 1.11 ||

Tender mustard seed, fresh porridge, and creamy curds: men in the village eat these kinds of savoury dishes, O pretty girl, because they do not have much money.¹⁰¹

The example verse given above (1.11) is in āryā, and the metric pattern of the second half-verse is, strictly speaking, the following:

-- | U - U | - U - ! | - U U | -- | U | - - | - |

For any āryā, this is unmetrical for it yields 28 moræ, instead of the expected 27. By treating the final syllable of sundari short, in spite of the following grā, the pattern conforms to the expected pattern:

-- | U - U | - U U | - U U | -- | U | - - | - |

The commentator gives several more examples, involving the syllables gra, bhra, and bbhra, and confirms that the rule applies only to word-initial con-

¹⁰¹ I.e.: ‘you are pretty, don’t waste your time with poor village men.’

sonant clusters:

padādāv iti kim | anyatra mā bhūt |

Why ‘at the beginning of a word’? [Because] elsewhere it should not be.

Here follow some examples from the VSS. The syllables with the krama conjunct consonant, before which the syllable is not turned into heavy, are encircled, and the metre is given in parentheses.

- 1.1c: harīndra(bra)hmādibhir āsamagraṃ (upajāti)
 4.67c: prajñābodha(śru)tiṃ smṛtiṃ ca labhate mānaṃ ca nityaṃ
labbed (śārdūlavikrīḍita)
 4.89a: iti yama(pra)vibhāgaḥ kīrtito ’yaṃ dvijendra (mālinī)
 5.5cd: parastrīpara(dra)vyeṣu śaucaṃ kāyikam ucyate (pathyā)
 5.9cd: vānaprasthasya(tri)guṇaṃ yatīnāṃ tu caturguṇaṃ (na- vīpulā)
 5.15ab: haṃsasārasacakrābhvakukkuṭān śuka(śye)nakān (pa- thyā)
 6.13ab: brahmalokaṃ tu(pra)thamaṃ tattvapraṛticintayā
(na-vīpulā)
 8.33a: tasmān mauna(vra)taṃ sadaiva sudṛḍhaṃ kurvīta yo nīcitam (śārdūlavikrīḍita)
 10.31b: īśānenābhijūṣṭam hr̥di(bra)da vimalaṃ nādaśītāmbu-
pūrnaṃ (sragdharā)
 11.9ab: manaḥśuddhis tu(pra)thamaṃ dravyaśuddhir ataḥ
param (na-vīpulā)

These indeed follow the rule of having the special conjunct with the semi-vowel at the beginning of a word in the sense that the word can be a member of a compound.¹⁰² As noted above, since conjuncts such as śr and hr show up in this phenomenon, the phrase ‘muta cum liquida’ is slightly misleading, and therefore I use the phrase ‘krama licence’ instead. To understand how unique the VSS’s indulgence in this krama licence is, the epics and the Purāṇas should perhaps be examined from this perspective.

¹⁰² There are some problematic verses that I ignore here. They are unlikely to change the overall picture.

Another metrical oddity, or rather, metrical licence, applied regularly in the VSS, exclusively in non-anuṣṭubh verses, is that a word-final light syllable can count as heavy. Here are some examples, with the light syllable now turned heavy encircled:

3:42d: etatpunyapha(la)m abhimsakajanaḥ prāpnoti niḥsaṃśayaḥ
(śārdūlavikrīḍita)

4.5a: *na narmayu(kta)m anṛtaṃ hinasti (upajāti)*¹⁰³

4.39c: aśeṣaya(jña)tapadānapuṇyaṃ (upajāti)

4.59c: vijñānadha(rma)kulakīrtināśa (upajāti)

4.59d: bhavanti vi(pra)damayā vibhīnāḥ (upajāti)

5.20a: śaucāśaucavidhijña mānava ya(di)kālakṣaye niścayaḥ
(śārdūlavikrīḍita)

6.18b: jijñāsyantāṃ dvijen(dra)bhavadahanakaraḥ prārthanā-

kalpavṛkṣaḥ (sragdharā)

7.13b: saubhā(gya)m atulaṃ labheta sa nara rūpaṃ tathā śob-
hanam (śārdūlavikrīḍita)

8.44d: na bhavati punaja(nma)kalpakotyaṃyute 'pi (mālinī)

11.42b: saṃsāroddhara(na)m anityahara(na)m ajñānanirmūlanam
(śārdūlavikrīḍita)

11.42c: prajñāvṛddhika(ra)m amoghakaraṇaṃ kleśārṇavot- tāraṇaṃ (śārdūlavikrīḍita)

11.42d: janmavyādhika(ra)m akarmadahanam sevet sa dharmo-

ttamam (śārdūlavikrīḍita)

12.150c: nityaṃ rogādhivā(sa)m aniyatavapuṣaṃ trāhi mām
kālapāśāt (sragdharā)

When the syllable that is turned into heavy is followed by -m (see 3.42d, 4.5a, 7.13b, 11.42bcd, and 12.150c among the examples above), the phenomenon can be treated as the one described in Edgerton 1953, vol. 1, §2.68–69, p. 19–20:

2.68. As in M Indic generally, anusvāra is often used instead of any final nasal. This seems to be more than a merely orthographic matter. For it occurs before vowels, in what must have been close juncture [...]

2.69. Most texts make use of this practice in verses for metrical convenience. It is absolutely standard practice in all verses to use final m before a following initial vowel if meter requires a short final syllable, but ṃ if a long is required. No editor has seen this clearly; all editions are confused and inconsistent in this respect. So are the mss. to some extent; but they follow the rule in an overwhelming majority of instances, and there can be no question of its original validity; the exceptions are mere corruptions of tradition.

Upon re-examination, none of the witnesses of the VSS that were collated, or only consulted for this purpose (C₉₄C₄₅C₀₂K₈₂K₁₀K₇MP₅₇Ko₇₇Ko₇₆), seems to use an anusvāra in the above cases. There is only one exception: M writes anīyaharaṇaṃ, °vṛddbhkaraṃ and °vyādbhiharaṃ in 11.42 before vowels (but not samsāroddharaṇaṃ!). The same MS has neither ṃ or m in 12.150c (°vāsa anīyata°). One could argue that this lack of awareness of ṃ before a vowel indicating gurutva in almost all cases in all MSS are ‘mere corruptions of tradition,’ and then typesetting such -m + vowel combinations as -ṃ + vowel would be commendable. On the other hand there is little evidence that in the transmission of the VSS anusvāras were used in this way. This is why I hesitate to apply ‘Edgerton’s rule’ in this edition. Another argument against applying it is all the cases in which the syllable turned into heavy ends in a vowel (4.39c, 4.59cd, 5.20a, 6.18b, and 8.44d among the examples above). There can be no orthographical indication of gurutva there; there may have not been any need of it in the other cases either. In general, all the metrical laxity discussed above may originate from the authors’ or redactors’ insensitivity to the difference between light/short and heavy/long syllables, or short and long vowels, possibly from the underlying Newar language.

Authors, redactors and target audience

It is more than likely that the VSS was produced by a group of authors and redactors, rather than by a single individual. First, the extent of the text and the variety of its topics cast doubt on whether one author could have undertaken the task. More importantly, the language varies from chapter to chapter: the peculiarities of the Sanskrit used in the VSS, as described above, do not appear to the same degree in every the chapter. For example, the language of chapter three display strong signs of a possible Newar influence, and chapter seventeen is rather problematic and non-standard, containing some of the most ungrammatical sentences in the entire work,¹⁰⁴ whereas, i.e., chapter seven is relatively well-written, in a simple and clear style—though still far from perfect Sanskrit.

Thus, one could picture a group of Paṇḍits—in our case, probably in 9-10th-century Kathmandu—none of whom possessed a high degree of mastery in Sanskrit, likely with a Newar background, and a broad knowledge of the Mahābhārata, the Purāṇas, Dharmaśāstra, and some limited acquaintance with Śaiva Tantra and Buddhism. They might have distributed among themselves the task of writing different parts of the text on various topics, in an effort to create a new Dharmaśāstric work that introduced some radical innovations concerning the āśrama-system, the varṇas, on Śiva's world (the Śivāṇḍa), and so forth. Surely, the different layers of the text—general Dharmaśāstric, Vaiṣṇava, and Śaiva—were composed by authors or redactors with varying religious and intellectual backgrounds. While each individual chapter exhibits its own linguistic and compositional issues, the final redaction—that is, the overall design of the final structure and the assembly of the text as we now have it—is a brilliant achievement: transitions between chapters and between doctrinal layers are, in most cases, not only smooth but may also encode a hidden message, suggesting a progression from the everyday (Dharmaśāstra) to the religious (Vaiṣṇava), and from the exoteric to the esoteric (Śaiva).¹⁰⁵

As for the target audience, it is difficult to say anything definite. One of the aims of the article Kiss 2021 was to search for clues regarding the rôle of the VSS in the Śivadharma corpus; it also touches upon the possible social milieu and intended audience(s) of the VSS. The conclusion therein (pp. 200–201), focusing on the fusion of Vaiṣṇava and Śaiva material in the VSS, and on the reinterpretations of the āśrama system in its eleventh chapter, includes the following:

¹⁰⁴ See p. 34.

The Vṛ̥ṣasārasaṃgraha’s role in the Śivadharma corpus is then twofold: it provides a text that is suitable for Vaiṣṇavas and Śaivas, presenting its teachings on different levels of an esoteric scale, the Śaiva teachings being closest to the core, and always providing an internalised, secret version of topics discussed in the other layers; and it also reinvents the traditional āśrama system in a Śaiva way, but in such a manner that would be acceptable for other religious groups. This may be an attempt to further develop an idea that appears in both the Śivadharmaśāstra and the Śivadharmottara.¹⁰⁶

Indeed, one of the most striking features of the VSS is its structure, in which Vaiṣṇava material frames Śaiva teachings (see pp. 11 ff. above). Its intended audience must have included adherents of both religious traditions. Even the title is not unambiguously Śaiva, as previously discussed (see pp. 6ff. above). Thus, we probably cannot maintain that the text is primarily Śaiva or that its main target was lay Śaivas. Rather, it seeks a balance between Vaiṣṇava and Śaiva teachings, and this duality most likely reflects the religiopolitical reality of its time.

What must be stressed is the text’s radicalism in certain chapters—for example, in chapters 2, 11, and 19. These chapters appear to deconstruct the religious duties of the householder, internalise the social disciplines (āśrama), and reinvent the origin of the social classes (varṇa), respectively. This radicalism and innovativeness may have been among the reasons for the composition of the VSS.

¹⁰⁶ [Footnote in the original:] These texts use new phrases for the four āśramas: Śivadharmaśāstra chapter eleven uses the terms śivagr̥hāśramin, śivabrahmacārīn, śivavaikhāṇasa and śivavratīndra, while the Śivadharmottara 12.203–207 uses śivabrahmacārīn, śivāśramadharmasthaḥ gr̥hasthaḥ, śivāśramavanastha, and for the fourth category both the terms pāśupata and mahāvratadhara. On this topic, see De Simini 2016a, 52–53 and Bisschop, Lubin and Kafle 2021, 17 ff. [i.e., Bisschop et al. 2021, 17 ff.]

A mixture of radical innovations, an idealistic rejection of the traditional varṇāśrama-system, and the praise of yogic practices and the Pāśupata tradition may have been intended to appeal both to the lay Śaiva and Vaiṣṇava householder and to aspiring yogins and ascetics.

Why was the VSS included in the Śivadharmā corpus?

It is difficult to ascertain why, when and how, the VSS was included in the Śivadharmā. The corpus itself, as De Simini (2016b, 233) writes, ‘as we know it seems to be an invention of Nepal’. To summarise the relevant part of Harimoto 2022 on the formation of the Śivadharmā, it appears that the earliest unit formed as a collection of texts may have comprised the Śivadharmasāstra and the Śivadharmottara—two texts probably composed, or at least known, outside Nepal—and the Śivadharmasaṃgraha, whose provenance remains obscure. These were later joined by the UMS, and then by the beginning of the tenth century CE, by the Śivopaniṣad. This development is inferred from some of the colophons in the Munich MS (MS M): the colophon of the UMS, the fourth text in that MS—likely copied from an earlier exemplar—suggests that the corpus was considered fourfold, whereas the colophon of the Śivopaniṣad, the fifth text, presents it as fivefold (Harimoto 2022, 600–603). In MS M, the VSS appears to have been written in a later hand, perhaps indicating that it was added subsequently.

The VSS may have already been existence, most probably in the Kathmandu valley, well before the beginning of the tenth century (see p. 19ff). It was probably added to the collection after the original set of three or four texts had been augmented with additional texts in Nepal. The VSS must have been considered a valuable work, and its survival was secured by its attachment to a prestigious corpus. Alternatively, it may have been commissioned by a king in Kathmandu after a preliminary version of the corpus had already become well-known, in response to a perceived need to add a locally composed text.

Contents of chapters 1–12

The following are brief descriptions of the topics covered in chapters 1–12 of the VSS, which have been edited and translated in this volume. These are accompanied by brief discussions and some analytical remarks.¹⁰⁷

Adhyāya 1

After a maṅgala-verse that addresses a deity whose identity is obscure (verse 1.1; is it Śiva or the impersonal Brahman?), we enter the first layer of the text, which consists of a dialogue between Janamejaya and Vaiśampāyana. This layer could be labelled Dharmaśāstric. Janamejaya seeks to hear the essence—the ultimate Dharmic teaching—of the Mahābhārata. In response, Vaiśampāyana begins relating a dialogue in which Viṣṇu, disguised as a Brahmin, tests an ascetic named Anarthayajña, renowned for performing non-material, i.e., internalised, sacrifice (anarthayajña, the subject of adhyāya eleven), and a devotee of Viṣṇu (as revealed in adhyāya twenty-one). This marks the beginning of the layer that could be labelled Vaiṣṇava (see pp. 11ff).

The first topic they discuss is brahmavidyā (1.9–10), an ambiguous definition of the impersonal Brahman and/or the syllable om. The next topics include kāla ('death, time'), the origin of the body, karma (1.11–17), and the divisions of time (from truṭi and nimeṣa up to kalpas, 1.18–30), which lead to a teaching on numbers, ranging from one up to two hundred quadrillion (para, 1.31–35). Verses 1.36–39 introduce a list of the rulers of the eight regions of Brahmā's Egg (Brahmāṇḍa, that is, the universe, 1.40–48). In addition, Viṣṇu is presented as the ruler of the centre of the Brahmāṇḍa (1.49), reaffirming the general Vaiṣṇava character of this layer. Verses 1.50–57 give the numbers of subordinates to each ruler mentioned above. Verses 1.58–61 teach the measurements of the Brahmāṇḍa. Finally, verses 1.62–75 list the redactors and transmitters of the Purāṇas, from Brahmā to Vyāsa Dvaipāyana, Romaharṣa, and Romaharṣa's son Amitabuddhi.

Seemingly a reaction, counterpart, or addendum to the previous chapter which discussed Brahmā's Egg, this chapter introduces Śiva's Egg (Śivāṇḍa), potentially an innovation of the VSS. Śiva's Egg is portrayed as an esoteric, mysterious, and thus superior part of the universe, accessible only through Śaiva yogic practices (śivayoga, 2.34). A description is given of an idealistic and egalitarian society ('There is no master or servant there, nobody to be punished and no punisher,' etc., 2.5ff). The text goes on to deconstruct the 'Hindu' religious universe and the Dharmic ritual life of the devotee, eliminating the Kalpas and karma (2.11–12), all mythological creatures (2.14–15), and ritual action (2.16).

Following this, the text describes the details of the Śivāṇḍa—its height and width, its lovely flowers, fruits, golden trees, gem trees, coral gem thickets and ruby plants (2.17–25). The chapter then introduces a scheme that divides the Śivāṇḍa into five regions, each connected to one of Śiva's five faces, and subdivided into the thirty-eight kalās of the five Brahmamantras.

This chapter can be perceived as an innovative attempt to reinforce the Śaiva character of the text, counterbalancing the previous chapter. It also seems to reflect tantric, or pre-tantric, Pāśupata ideas and further emphasises the text's yogic character by implementing another esoteric, meditative layer of the universe above, or outside the Brahmāṇḍa (śivāṇḍābhyantareṇaiva, 1.39a). One could theorise that this chapter is a tantric, or Pāśupata, insertion in a non-tantric text, but the fact that the Śivāṇḍa was already mentioned in chapter one suggests that the two chapters were likely composed at the same time.

Overall, the concept of the Śivāṇḍa appears to be a bold attempt to transcend the fundamentals of varṇāśramadharmā in a radical manner by relativising basic social and moral distinctions. This perhaps distantly echoes Pāśupata teachings, and suggests that Śaivism—or perhaps tantric Śaivism—is superior to generic Dharmaśāstric tenets. This radicalism, perhaps the main motive behind the composition of the VSS, is perceivable again in chapter eleven, which discusses the internalisation of the āśrama-system, and in chapter nineteen, where it is suggested that the varṇas originate from a social contract.

This chapter starts with general questions about Dharma, including the etymology of the word dharma, Dharma's embodiments—especially as a bull—and the family of personified Dharma (3.1–13). Dharma is declared to be the embodiment of Śruti and Smṛti (3.14–15). Smṛti is described as concerning the varṇāśrama-system, as well as rules of conduct, i.e., the yama and niyama rules, which are the focus of 3.16–8.44. Each rule is five-fold. The yamas are: ahiṃsā, satya, asteya, ānṛśaṃsya, dama, ghṛṇā, dhanya, apramāda, mādhurya, and ārjava. This list is more similar to ones found in the Mahābhārata than to yogic lists such as the one in the Yogasūtra,¹⁰⁸ but the closest parallel is found in the Viṣṇudharmottara.¹⁰⁹

The rest of this chapter elaborates on the first yama, non-violence (ahiṃsā), focusing particularly on the five kinds of violence (3.18–23). After a general praise of non-violence (3.24–32), the text discusses restrictions on meat consumption, quoting Manu in 3.34–37.

Verses 4.1–17 discuss the second yama, truthfulness (satya). After defining truth (satya, 4.1), rules for speaking the truth are presented, illustrated with references to mythological stories.

Verses 4.18–30 cover the third yama, refraining from stealing (asteya). The fourth yama, absence of hostility (ānṛśaṃsya), is introduced in verses 4.31–49. It consists of being kind to Śiva, to fathers and mothers, cows, and guests, with particular emphasis on the praise of cows and rules of hospitality. The story of the mongoose in the MBh (MBh 14.92–93) is mentioned in this context.

Verses 4.50–59 elaborate on the fifth yama, self-restraint (dama), possibly drawing on the Buddhacarita, with further references to mythological stories. The sixth yama, concerning taboos (ghṛṇā) is addressed in verses 4.60–67. These taboos concern restrictions on sexual partners, taking away others' wealth and lives, hurting others, and commensality.

The seventh yama is dhanya, which I translate as 'virtue' (4.68–76). Five areas of practising virtue are mentioned here: maintaining silence in four situations; conquering the fourfold enemy—desire, anger, greed, and delusion; the 'four sanctuaries' (caturāyatana), which are in fact the Buddhist brahmavihāras; four types of meditation (on ātman, vidyā, Śiva, and the Subtle One); and Dharma as a four-legged bull. The basic pattern is that each of its five subcategories has a fourfold structure.

¹⁰⁸ See, e.g., Mahābhārata 12.8.17ab: ahiṃsā satyavacanam ānṛśaṃsyaṃ damo ghṛṇā. On yamas and niyamas in the ŚDhŚ and related texts, see also Bisschop et al. 2021:11–17.

The eighth yama provides instructions how to avoid mistakes and committing sins (apramāda, 4.77–82), with verses 4.77–81 following Manu. The ninth yama is charm (mādhurya), which involves being kind both mentally and through bodily actions (4.83–85). The tenth and final yama is sincerity (ārjava, 4.86–89), completing the section on the ten yamas.

Adhyāya 5

This chapter begins the section on the niyama rules, which are śauca, ijyā, tapas, dāna, svādhyāya, upasthanigrāha, vrata, upavāsa, mauna, and snāna. This list also appears in the Liṅgapurāṇa (1.8.29cd–30ab) and the Viṣṇudharmottara (3.233.202). The discussion on the first niyama, purity (śauca, 5.4–20) seems incomplete. As usual, we expect a list of five sub-types, but there seem to be only four here. The third and fourth types (mātrā- and bhāva-śauca) are rather vague, and no details are given about them. While the first two—bodily purity and purity of food—are discussed to some extent, partly drawing on Manu in verses 5.5–9 and 5.10–16, the rest of the discussion is quite general. It seems likely that the author of this section borrowed a list of four or five items from an external source but felt unable to elaborate on some of them.

Adhyāya 6

The second niyama, sacrifice (ijyā), is discussed in verses 6.1–18. It again includes five types: material sacrifice, sacrifice through work and through recitation, knowledge, and meditation. Corresponding or similar teachings on the ‘five mahāyajñas’ can be found in texts such as the Bhagavadgītā (4.28), Manu (3.69–71), and Śivadharmottara (1.10). The section on sacrifice through meditation (dhyānayaajña) describes visualisations that lead one to Brahmaloka, Viṣṇuloka, Śivaloka, etc., if practised at the time of dying. The visualisations themselves are reminiscent of some of the teachings in the Dharmaputrikā.¹¹⁰

The third niyama, penance (tapas) is the focus of verses 6.19–28. with verses 6.21–22 echoing the Mahābhārata.

¹¹⁰ See p. 18.

Adhyāya 7

This chapter addresses the fourth niyama, donation (dāna). The five sub-categories here are donation of food, clothes, gold, land, and cows (7.1–25). The chapter concludes with praise for the practice of donation (7.26–28).

This chapter is relatively well-written, composed in simple and generally straightforward language, in contrast to some passages in the previous chapters that contain radically non-standard Sanskrit. One cannot help feeling that the author or redactor of this and some of the following chapters is different from those of chapters one and two, for example.

Adhyāya 8

In a similarly more or less straightforward chapter, six additional niyama rules are taught. The fifth niyama, study (svādhyāya) is covered first (8.1–6). The five pillars of the intellectual milieu in which this teaching was likely composed are Śaivism, Sāṃkhya philosophy, the Purāṇas, Smārta texts (i.e., Dharmaśāstra), and the Mahābhārata (8.1). Śaivism is defined through the dichotomy of the Śaiva and Pāśupata traditions. The Sāṃkhya-tattvas are said to be taught in groups of five, suggesting a 25-tattva system. The Mahābhārata is identified as itihāsa.

Verses 8.7–12 list the five types of sexual offences that constitute the sixth niyama rule (upasthanigrāha).

Verses 8.13–18 address the seventh niyama, religious observances (vratā). Four of these observances are, in principle, imitations of animal behaviour: cats, herons, dogs, and cows. The fifth is somewhat obscure but could be an imitation of Bhīṣma's dying scene in the Mahābhārata. All of these observances are radical and may be based on Pāśupata practices.

Verses 8.19–24 teach dietary restrictions as the eighth niyama rule (upavāsa), with verse 8.21 drawing on the Mahābhārata. Verses 8.25–33 describe the ninth niyama, mauna, outlining when to remain silent and what to avoid saying, including abusive speech and insults.

Ritual bathing (snāna) concludes the chapter in verses 8.34–44. This tenth niyama rule, and consists of five types: fire-bath, water-bath, Vedic bath, Wind bath, and divine or heavenly bath.

This chapter also concludes the entire section, which has taught twenty major rules in total, each theoretically consisting of five subcategories.

Adhyāya 9

This chapter turns to a discussion of the three Guṇas, sattva, rajas, and tamas. The treatment of the topic seems less philosophical and more moralising and classificatory. It categorizes gods, people, animals, plants, activities, and foods into Sāttvika, Rājasa, and Tāmasa, as well as into superior, mediocre, and low variants of Sāttvika, Rājasa, etc. Mixed categories such as Tāmasa-Rājasa are also mentioned.

The chapter concludes by introducing the yogic or moral concept of a state of being beyond the Guṇas (9.39–43), again most probably inspired by the MBh.

Adhyāya 10

At the very beginning of this chapter, our interlocutors, Vigatarāga and Anarthayajña, hand over the narration to Nandikeśvara, who immediately begins recounting a dialogue between Śiva and Devī. This marks a shift to a new layer of the text, which can be labelled Śaiva. The topic discussed is internalised pilgrimage places (tīrtha).

The significance of this chapter lies in the possibility that the topographical names mentioned, and their hierarchy, may provide clues about the text's place of composition. Another clue—this time for the dating of the text—is that, while the yogic tubes Suṣumnā and Iḍā are mentioned in verses 10.17 and 20–21, there is no clear mention of Piṅgalā, the third tube traditionally associated with them, anywhere in the text. For more details on both topics, see pp. 19ff.

Adhyāya 11

This chapter is crucial for understanding what the VSS may have aspired to achieve and why the main interlocutor of the Vaiṣṇava chapters is named Anartayajña. The primary focus here is 'non-material' sacrifice, or anarthayajña, which essentially represents internalized sacrifice or worship, or rather the internalisation of all aspects of the religious life of a 'Hindu' devotee, within each of the four social disciplines (āśrama).

Given the omnipresence of the name and concept of Anarthayajña/anarthayajña, this chapter could be central to the development of the entire text. See pp. 12ff and Kiss 2021 for more details.

Adhyāya 12

Although non-violence is mentioned alongside hospitality as a topic to be discussed in this chapter, it is clear that hospitality is the primary focus of this long chapter. Following verse 12.3, we find a charming, fairy-tale-like narrative about the adventures of Vipula, a merchant of Pāṭaliputra. Vipula is forced to give his wife to a visiting Brahmin to honour his promise to his guest, which leads him to leave his home and wander southward. At this point a series of miraculous events unfolds, triggered by the fact that a magical fruit with the power of bestowing youthfulness is gifted to him by a monkey. Instead of eating the fruit, Vipula gives it away, and the king of Naravīrapura (i.e., Karavīrapura?) orders him to obtain more such fruits.

A quest for more fruit leads Vipula to the Gandharva king, god Sūrya, Soma, Indra, Viṣṇu, and ultimately to Brahmā's palace.

The story ends abruptly, giving the impression that it was part of a longer narrative. Although the story's starting point is the necessity to satisfy a guest's wishes (ātithya, or the rules of guest reception), another key focus appears to be the rewards of donation or gifting (dāna): Vipula gifts his wife to the Brahmin; a monkey gives him a magical fruit; he gives the magical fruit to the foreman of the guild; the foreman gives the fruit to the king; it turns out that the fruit was originally given to the monkey by the Gandharva king; who in turn received it from Indra; and so forth.

One of the lessons suggested by the story's conclusion—where Vipula is honored by Brahmā and other gods—is that donors eventually receive great rewards. The narrative also features a recurring theme of testing people while in disguise: Viṣṇu tests Anarthayajña disguised as Vigatarāga (see 1.7–8), and now Vipula seems to be tested by a Brahmin who may in fact be Dharma himself (12.37).

Topics in chapters 13–24

Here follow some preliminary summaries of the chapters in the second half of the text, to be edited and translated in volume two.

Adhyāya 13

After possibly referring back to chapters ten, eleven, and twelve, Devī now asks Mahādeva what purpose the easy method (sukhopāya) serves when people and divine beings remain indifferent. Mahādeva's reply contains references to the three guṇas and this prompts another question from Devī about them.

The reply that follows touches upon the three Sāṃkhya categories prākṛta-, vaikṛta-, and dakṣiṇābandha—and transmigration (13.1–14). This triggers another question about the formation of the embryo (garbhōtpatti). The rest of this chapter deals with this topic, as well as the pain of being reborn (13.15–68).

Adhyāya 14

A continuation of the previous chapter, this one deals with the question of differences in bodily appearance among humans: why are some people short or fat, others tall or thin? Mahādeva explains that food consumed and actions taken during pregnancy are the main causes (14.1–5). Devī's next question concerns bodily defects in a child, such as blindness, lameness, being born hump-backed or as a dwarf. Again, it is the pregnant woman who is to blame (14.6–29).

Then the reasons why a child is born male, female, or gender-neutral (apums) are given: it depends on the proportion in which the male semen and the female blood (14.30–32) mix. The production of semen is discussed (14.33–38), as well as the possibility of remembering past lives (14.39–40), and the signs of pregnancy and the signs whether a boy or a girl has been conceived (14.40–46).

The production of bodily hair is then discussed (14.47–52), alongside the topic of somadhātu and agnidhātu (14.47–56).

Adhyāya 15

The first section of this chapter deals with the characteristics of the soul (jīvalakṣaṇa, 15.1–15). Then, prompted by Devī's request, Mahādeva provides a list of what constitutes the best within various categories: the best of the four āśramas, the four varṇas, sacrifices, recitations, deities, rivers, and so on (15.16–29).

Adhyāya 16

This chapter discusses yogic practices. The introduction (16.1–13) contains some verses that parallel various texts: a citation in Kauṇḍinya's commentary on the Pāśupatasūtra, the Mahābhārata, the Bhaviṣyapurāṇa, and the Agnipurāṇa.

The next section (16.14–18) is more specific about yogic techniques (yogavidhi): eight sitting postures are listed (padmaka, svastika, niṣkala, añjali, ardhacandra, daṇḍa, paryāṅka, bhadra), and a ṣaḍaṅga-type yogic system is explicitly introduced (pratyāhāra, dhyāna, prāṇāyāma, dhāraṇā, tarka, samādhi).

From verse 18 onwards we find a series of verses that have close parallels in the Dharmaputrikā (16.18–29). The signs of successful practice are enumerated (16.30–32). Verses 16.33–35 give hints on liberation without yogic practice.

Next (16.33–47), a new topic is introduced, namely the five important branches of knowledge (śāstra): Sāṃkhya, Yoga, the Pañcarātra, the Śaiva revelation, and Vedic knowledge (echoing and altering Mahābhārata 12.336.1). Devī expresses her satisfaction with what she has heard (16.48–50) and asks Maheśvara to continue and teach her about donations (dāna).

Adhyāya 17

The topics in the first part of this chapter are as follows: the donation of food, clothes, land, cows, gold (17.1–25). This is followed by miscellaneous verses connected to donations and the corresponding rewards that manifest in the next life (17.26–33).

Next come some verses alluding to Purāṇic stories about donation (17.34–36), and the topic of donating one's own flesh and blood, son and wife (17.37–52), again citing legends from the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas.

The chapter ends by a brief discussion of the levels of donation (17.53–57) and their respective rewards.

Adhyāya 18

The main topic in this chapter is the marks that indicate that a man has been to heaven or hell before being reborn in his present life. For example, if somebody regularly gave food to the poor, he will depart to Īśaloka and, in his next life, will be rich. Alternatively, if one kills a Brahmin, one goes to hell, will spend millions of years as an animal and then will be reborn as a diseased and poor man.

Several examples of this sort are given throughout the chapter.

Adhyāya 19

Verses 19.1–19 deal with the importance and sacredness of the cow. Then the origin of the social classes (varṇa) is discussed, stating that originally there was only one varṇa,¹¹¹ and it was only later that the four classes developed driven by the need to distribute tasks (19.20–36).

Next, the types of penance, worship, and sacred places connected with the individual varṇas are listed.

Adhyāya 20

This chapter deals with a Mahābhārata-type 25-tattva ontological system, as opposed to a Classical Sāṃkhya-type teaching: no tanmātras are mentioned, instead the term guṇa is used; instead of mahābhūtas, dhātus are presented. Also, buddhi is called matī, and the 25th tattva is simultaneously Śiva, Brahmā, and the Puruṣa.

Verses 20.23–32 deal with the prāṇas. Verses 20.83–89 discuss the state of unmanastva.

Adhyāya 21

In this chapter Viṣṇu reveals his real form to Anarthayajña, who has not been aware that the Brahmin Vigatarāga, whom he has been teaching is in fact Viṣṇu in disguise. Anarthayajña praises Viṣṇu, who, being satisfied, takes him by the hand and leads him to Viṣṇuloka.

By this we are brought back to the outermost layer of the text: the dialogue between Janamejaya and Vaiśampāyana. The topic here is the æons (kalpa).

Adhyāya 22

Here Janamejaya enquires about Anarthayajña. In reply, Vaiśampāyana gives details about Anarthayajña's dwelling place,¹¹² and religious practice called anarthayajña, described in more detail in chapter eleven.

Yogic practices that echo chapter sixteen are described. A cryptic ten-syllable mantra is presented in an encoded form, followed by verses on religious conduct (ācāra), women, and various categories of professionals of religious practice (vīpra, muni, bhikṣu, nirgranthi, parivrājaka, ṛṣi).

¹¹¹ ekavarṇo dvijaś cāsīt sarvakalpāgrāmaḥ agrataḥ (19:21). 'Before the very beginning of all æons, there was one single class of Brahmins.'

¹¹² See pp. 23ff.

Adhyāya 23

Janamejaya asks Vaiśampāyana about the reason why gods and demons fight. This leads to a discussion on dharma and adharma, and on good and bad conduct. This is followed by verses on how sleep arises.

Adhyāya 24

Janamejaya wishes to hear about the divisions of the world and the heavens: the hells (naraka), the netherworld (pātāla), the seven islands (dvīpa), Śivaloka, and so on.

The text ends with praise of the sāstra itself and with the enumeration of the rewards that one receives if one reads, recites, or listens to this text.

Introduction to the Critical Edition

Preliminary remarks

It is perhaps worth clarifying why the versions of the VSS and other texts of the Śivadharmā corpus as printed in Naraharinath 1998 are not satisfactory,¹¹³ and why there is a need to produce high-quality critical editions of them. One could simply refer the reader to the apparatus in this new edition: the readings given in Naraharinath's editio princeps rarely prove useful or are accepted against the manuscript evidence. One could also point out further problems in Naraharinath's edition, such as countless typos, misreadings, and readings and omissions that may come from his low-quality sources,¹¹⁴ and a lack of any critical apparatus or any documentation of the witness(es) used.¹¹⁵ In addition to this, although it does not affect this volume, a great chunk of the text, VSS 17.38–18.16, is missing in Naraharinath.

It would be more difficult than this to vindicate in detail the methodology I have applied. I find Hanneder's words on textual criticism comforting:

[T]extual criticism is often viewed as something to be learned by practice rather than from reading about it. ... In fact, both translating and editing are something most Indologists have learned in a pragmatic way through examples from within the field, and some have managed to become quite good at it. ... [I]n

¹¹³ As West (1973, 61) puts it, following a long tradition of philologists: 'Is your edition really necessary? That is the first question.'

¹¹⁴ Just to quote a few from the first few verses: sahasrādhyāyār uttamam for sahasrādhyāyam uttamam (1.2b), nāradasaṃhitām for bhāratasaṃhitām (1.2d), śaṅkha for śaṅkuḥ (1.34b), omissions in 1.34cd–35, etc.

¹¹⁵ He must have worked from paper manuscripts, see p. 73.

most cases this approach is sufficient ...¹¹⁶

My experience is that when preparing critical editions, each text, and sometimes each manuscript or each chapter, horribile dictu, each verse, requires a slightly different approach, and these approaches keep changing during the editorial process. For example, the idea that there could be a connection between the linguistic oddities of the VSS and classical Newar arose relatively late, and it did change my views on some textual problems and some of the solutions thereof, and led me to change some of my previously proposed emendations. Thus editing is always subjective in the sense that the method applied is influenced by the editor's knowledge of the text, the genre, the milieu, etc., or in the case of this edition, the collective knowledge of all my colleagues who took part in VSS reading session and brainstorming meetings throughout the years.

Since it is not unlikely that originally the VSS had multiple authors and redactors, the text itself is also unlikely to be homogenous: each chapter may have its own style and its own types of textual problems. In addition to this, all MSS we have access to surely transmit a highly contaminated version of the text. This makes the construction of a stemma codicum more or less useless in this case.

Witnesses

In the pre-modern era, the VSS has been transmitted exclusively in multiple-text manuscripts that were produced in Nepal. Even when a manuscript of the VSS seems to be a single-text MS, chances are high that it originally belonged to a multiple-text manuscript.¹¹⁷ In the manuscript descriptions

¹¹⁶ Hanneder 2009, 5.

below, in addition to some general remarks, I will mainly focus on information relevant to the VSS. For much more detail on the overall features of these manuscripts, see De Simini 2016b, Bisschop 2018, Bisschop et al. 2021, Bisschop et al. forthcoming, and the catalogues I mention at some of the individual manuscript.¹¹⁸

In recently published and forthcoming critical editions of and articles on the Śivadharmā corpus,¹¹⁹ the sigla of the manuscripts used are made up of a letter signifying the script (e.g. ‘N’ for Nepālākṣara/Newari), a superscript letter for the current location where the manuscript is deposited (e.g. ‘C’ for Cambridge), and two (sometimes only one or even three) subscript digits echoing the last digit(s), if any, of the reference number of the manuscript in the library where it is located or, in the case of NGMPP reel numbers, the last two digits of the first part of the reel number.¹²⁰ Since in the case of the VSS all the manuscripts I utilised are written in some variant of the Nepālākṣara script,¹²¹ in this publication I omit the first letter, making the letter for the current location non-superscript. This helps keeping the apparatus readable. In the manuscript descriptions below, I give this omitted and implied ‘N’ in brackets as a reminder.

Note that here I mention not only those MSS that have been collated for the whole of, or parts of, the critical edition, but also some that were candidates for the task but later were dismissed.

It is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 258 folios and transmitting eight texts: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmahēśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 6) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 7) Dharmaputrikā, 8) Śivopaniṣad.

The VSS occupies 45 folios: it starts on f. 193v. The recto side, online image no. 381, is an empty folio side. The text ends on f. 239r (online image no. 473). The text of the VSS is transmitted fully, without any folios or major sections of the text missing. The leaves transmitting the VSS are well-preserved. Some folio sides are faded and most folios are somewhat damaged on the right side, sometimes at other parts, and it seems from the images that some opaque-looking tape has been applied to protect these damaged sections. In my critical edition the broken off, completely lost, akṣaras are represented by ---, the illegible akṣaras under the tape by – ~ (‘illegible’). The quality of the readings of this manuscript is one of the best among the available witnesses, comparable only to K₈₂ and P₅₇, making it one of the most important sources for the VSS.

¹²⁴ F. 247r line 6. The CUDL website transcribes this colophon as: saṃvat 259 śrāvaṇaśukladvādaśī[pya]di 8 trayodaśīyām (retrieved 8 Dec 2021). The element *dvādaśīpya*di could be read as dvādaśīyā di, perhaps a mistake for dvādaśīyām di (di for a misplaced diva/divā?), and the symbol that does look like a figure ‘8’ of a slightly later period than the manuscript itself (resembling the mathematical symbol <) might also be a kākapada. Alternatively, one could understand yā as a Newar genitive marker, dvādaśī-yā di meaning ‘the day of the twelfth.’ Another faint kākapada is perhaps to be seen under daśī, therefore it is possible that the scribe’s intention was to delete dvādaśī and correct it to trayodaśīyām, and then the date becomes 11th of July. Kengo Harimoto has suggested that the unclear element (*yādi/pya*di) is in fact ghaṭī, and after comparing these two syllables to other instances of gha and ṭa, one cannot but agree. In this case this should be an indication of the exact time (Skt. ghaṭī/ghaṭikā, Newar ghaṭī) the scribe finished copying the text. It is still not clear if we should take dvādaśī or trayodaśīyām as the date. For help on the conversion of the date and for a detailed discussion on the colophon I am indebted to Kengo Harimoto.

script is Nepālākṣara. It is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 247 folios. Eight texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Śivopaniṣad, 5) Umāmaheśvarasaṃvāda, 6) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 7) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 8) Dharmaputrikā.

The VSS occupies 37 folios plus one folio side: it starts on f. 201v line 4 (online image no. 404), and it ends on f. 238v line 3 (online image no. 478). The readings of this manuscript seem to follow those of K₈₂ remarkably closely while transmitting the Śivadharmottara (as observed by De Simini and Harimoto).¹²⁵ This is more difficult to see in the case of the VSS, but indeed, they seem closely related.

(N)C₀₂ Cambridge University Library, Add. 2102. All available folios of this MS have been collated for chapters 1–12 of the critical edition in this volume. See a detailed description of this manuscript in the CUDL online catalogue.¹²⁶ According to this catalogue, the date of creation is the 12th century, and the dimensions of the manuscript are 4.8 × ca. 52.5 cm. The script is Nepālākṣara. It is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 96 folios. Six texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmottara, 2) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 3) Umāmaheśvarasaṃvāda, 4) Śivopaniṣad, 5) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 6) Dharmaputrikā (only f. 322v). Note that the Śivadharmottara starts on f. 51r, thus the part that most probably contained the Śivadharmasāstra is lost.

The VSS starts on f. 267r line 1 (online image no. 181). The online description labels this image as f. 237r. This first folio in fact has no visible foliation. The previous text, the Śivopaniṣad, ended on f. 236v, with pāda b of verse 7.122,¹²⁷ which is not the end of the Śivopaniṣad: about eighteen verses, probably transmitted in one single folio, are lost. This means that, if the foliation and the order of the folios are presented correctly, and if the portion containing the VSS indeed belongs to the same manuscript, folios 237–266, i.e. thirty folios, are missing. They must have transmitted the Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, which takes up twenty-three folios in C₉₄, and twenty folios in C₄₅. Thus this MS did most probably transmit all eight texts of the Śivādharma corpus.¹²⁸

This first folio of the VSS is in a hand which is different from the rest of the manuscript, but the hand changes back in the next folio.¹²⁹

In this multiple-text manuscript, the VSS is transmitted in an incomplete form, that is to say, a number of folios are missing (most notably chapters 15–17). The first partially visible folio number is in image 184: the numeral characters 200+60 are visible (268v, according to the CUDL online catalogue). In image 186, the folio number 269 is clearly visible (f. 269v). On folio 270v, the continuous text is interrupted at verse 2.21c (kāmarū°), ff. 271 and 272 are missing, and the text resumes on f. 273r with verse 3.30b ([abimsā pa] ramaṃ sukhāṃ). Folio 291 is missing (verses 12.87cd–12.113). On folio 296v (image no. 234), the text breaks off again at vātaśūlāir upadrutā | śukro (at verse 14.22b),¹³⁰ the next folio being 306r (starting with car-matās ca dvijasundarīṣu, verse 18.27b; nine folios, including chapters 15 to 17, are missing entirely).

Again, there are two missing folios after bandhus sarvva° in verse 18.47c on f. 306v. The text resumes on f. 309r (image 237) with °ṇeṣu ca sarvveṣu vidvān sreṣṭha sa ucyaṭe (verse 19.52cd). Another folio is missing between iṣṭāniṣṭadvaya° (verse 20.22, f. 309v) and snāyu majjā sirā tathā (verse 20.51d, f. 311r). The VSS ends on f. 322v (image no. 262) with the concluding colophon vṛṣasārasaṅgraha samāpta iti. This folio also contains the beginning of the Dharmaputrikā, but this multiple-text manuscript contains no more folios.

¹²⁸ Compare with the claim of the online catalogue: “The present manuscript probably contained seven texts.”

¹²⁹ Cf. the metadata on the CUDL site: ‘1 folio of the same dimensions is a modern supply for the beginning of the Vṛṣasārasaṅgraha.’ A hardly readable note in pencil to the same effect is visible at the top of the first folio side (f. 267r, ‘mode.....supply beg of Vṛṣasāra-saṅgr.’). I am not sure how ‘modern’ this supplement is, but it seems indeed likely that a lost first folio was supplemented with a later copy. To match the end of this new copy with the beginning of the next, older, folio, a scribe more or less erased the beginning of the first line in the old folio, rather than the last line of the younger folio. This slightly illogical decision may mean that the younger copy was not tailor-made for the old portion, but rather that it was taken from a younger manuscript which was perhaps considered more legible. Otherwise it would have been more practical to stop copying the first folio at the point where the next begins. See some more detail on this folio on p. 74 below.

¹³⁰ Of course, my verse numbering in chapters 13–24 may change slightly during the editing process.

In the apparatus, the siglum C_Σ signifies all three Cambridge MSS described above.

Kathmandu palm-leaf manuscripts

(N)K₈₂ NGMPP A 1082/3, NAK 3/393. This MS has been fully collated for chapters 1–12 of the critical edition in this volume. See a brief description of this MS in the NGMCP online catalogue.¹³¹ According to this catalogue, the dimensions of the manuscript are 55.6 × 5.5 cm. It is dated to Nepāla Samvat 189 (1068–69 CE).¹³² The script is Nepālākṣara and it is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 274 folios. Eight texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmabheśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 7) Dharmaputrikā, 8) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda.

As for each text in this collection, the foliation for the VSS restarts from f. 1v (f. 1r is a cover) and the text spans ff. 1v–46r. This is a beautifully written and well-preserved manuscript which gives accurate, or at least useful, readings and has proved to be essential for the reconstruction of the VSS.¹³³

(N)K₁₀ NGMPP A 10/5, NAK 1/1261. This MS has been fully collated for chapters 1–12 of the critical edition in this volume. See a brief description of this MS in the NGMCP online catalogue.¹³⁴ According to this catalogue, the dimensions of the manuscript are 55 x 5.5 cm. It is an undated palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 74 folios. Four texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmottara, 2) Umāmabheśvarasaṃvāda, 3) Śivopaniṣad, 4) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha.

Some folios feature drawings. A great number of the leaves that transmit the VSS are damaged and, at least judging from the microfilm images, faded and slightly disordered. The folio numbers are rarely visible. The VSS starts on exp. 44 (upper leaf, no folio number is visible here). The text continues on the lower leaf and then on the upper leaf on exp. 43 (going backwards, so to say) up to 1.60 (viṃśakoṭīṣu gulmeṣu ūrdhva°). Verses 1.60d–2.22 seem to be missing. The lower leaf on exp. 43 contains verses 2.23–2.39. The single leaf in exp. 42 contains verses 2.40–3.16a. Exp. 41 contains a single leaf of the Umāmabeśvarasaṃvāda, ending in a colophon for its chapter twenty-two, and still going backwards, the preceding folios continue transmitting the Umāmabeśvarasaṃvāda. Exploring the presence of the VSS in this manuscript further, one should look at the expositions after no. 44. Exp. 45 contains the end of the Śivopaniṣad. The single leaf on exp. 46 is almost illegible but most probably contains a fragment of the Gautamadharmasūtra. The second line just above the string hole on the left reads... vīrud vanaspatīnāṃ ca puṣpāṇi svavad ādadīte..., which is a fragment of Gautamadharmasūtra 2.3.25 (12.28). The remaining parts of the VSS are to be found on exp. 47ff. The upper leaf on exp. 47 continues with VSS 3.16b–36ab, while the lower leaf contains a text that I have not been able to identify. The lower leaf in exp. 48 transmits 3.36cd–4.11ab, the upper one 4.11b–30a. The lower leaf in exp. 49 contains 4.30ab–47ab, the upper one 47d–68a, and so on so forth. Thus when reading the text from these images, after exp. 48, one has to start with the lower leaf and continue with the upper one.

(N)K₇ NGMPP B 7/3 = A 1082/2, NAK 1/1075. This MS has been fully collated for chapters 1–12 of the critical edition in this volume. See a brief description of this MS in the NGMCP online catalogue.¹³⁵ According to this catalogue, the dimensions of the manuscript are 58 × 6 cm. The script is Nepālākṣara. Dated to Nepāla Samvat 290 (1169–70 CE). It is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 289 folios. Eight texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmabeśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 7) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 8) Dharma-putrikā. Ff. 209v–264v contain the VSS.

This is a nicely written manuscript, giving generally useful and convincing readings.

(N)K₃ NGMPP A 3/3 (= A 1081/5), NAK 5-737. I have collated this

¹³⁵ https://catalogue.ngmcp.uni-hamburg.de/receive/aaingmcp_ngmcpdocument_00062373

MS only for verses 1.1–15ab to test it. See a brief description of this MS in the NGMCP online catalogue.¹³⁶ According to this catalogue, the dimensions of the manuscript are 58.5 x 5.5 cm. The script is Nepālākṣara and the MS is dated to Nepāla Samvat 321 (1200–01 CE). It is a palm-leaf multiple-text manuscript containing 215 folios. Eight texts are transmitted in this manuscript: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasamgraha (only a few folios are extant, e.g. ff. 124 and 143), 4) Umāmabheśvarasamvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Uttarottaramahāsamvāda, 7) Vṛṣasārasamgraha, 8) Dharmaputrikā.

The VSS begins on f. 227 (image no. 177) and appears to conclude after starting chapter 23 on f. 264 (image no. 218). However, the last image (no. 253) still contains a fragment of VSS chapter 13. The microfilm images are somewhat blurred, making it difficult to confidently decipher the text, and the readings do not seem promising.

Other palm-leaf MSS preserved in Kathmandu, but not used for this critical edition include the following:

NGMPP A 11/3, NAK 5–738¹³⁷—the microfilm images of the folios containing the VSS are often blurred to an extent that makes them difficult to use.

NGMPP C 25/1, Kesar Library 218—this multiple-text manuscript preserves only a few misarranged folios of the VSS.

Paris manuscript

(N)P₅₇ This is a multiple-text palm-leaf manuscript written in Nepālākṣara script and preserved in the Collection Sylvain Lévi at the Institut d'études indiennes, Collège de France as MS Skt 57-B 23. I have collated the readings of this MS for VSS chapters one (available only up to 1.58a), three (available only up to 3.14), and eight. It contains 249 palm leaves. Folios 214 and 216 are missing from the part of the manuscript that transmits the VSS, thus we do not have verses 1.58d–2.21ab, as well as 3.14–4.7. In addition, verses 12.152–16.19 and 17.51–18.20ab are missing. Foliation appears on the verso side: in the left-hand margin in Newar alphabetical numerals and in the right-hand margin in arabic numerals by a second hand. The portion that contains the VSS is relatively well-preserved and the text is written in a clear hand. Although it is an undated manuscript, it could be dated to the 11th century CE on palaeographical grounds. It contains the following text in the order they are presented in the manuscript: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmabheśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 7) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 8) Dharmaputrikā. The VSS appears on ff. 212–252. This source gives reliable readings and contains relatively few scribal mistakes.¹³⁸

Munich manuscript

M This MS is preserved at the Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich, Germany.¹³⁹ It has no access number. I have collated the readings of this MS only for VSS chapters one and five as a test. I received the digital images of this MS from Kengo Harimoto shortly after he had taken pictures of it in Munich on Nov 16, 2021. This MS contains the following texts: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Umāmabheśvarasaṃvāda, 4) Śivopaniṣad, 5) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 6) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 7) Dharmaputrikā. The section that must have contained the Śivadharmasaṃgraha, ff. 82–121, is lost. The portion that contains the VSS and the Dharmaputrikā is dated (f. 50r line 5): || iti vṛṣasārasaṅgrabe caturviṃśatimo dhyāyaḥ samāptaḥ | samvat 192 māghakṛṣṇadivāpāñcamyām || postakalikhitam iti ||. The year 192 in Nepāla Samvat converts to 1071–1072 CE. The part of the MS the precedes the VSS looks considerably earlier and is potentially an important witness for other texts of the Śivadharm corpus. An interesting feature of this MS is that it gives the number of verses contained in each chapter in the colophons. Ten folios that transmitted the VSS are missing: f. 5 (VSS 3.4–3.33), ff. 11–13 (VSS 6.20–8.45), ff. 24 (VSS 13.9–13.36), and ff. 39–43 (VSS 20.38–22.35).

The foliation for the VSS restarts and the hand in which the VSS and the Dharmaputrikā are written are different from, and most probably later than that of the texts that come before them in this bundle.

The MS often transmits unique and interesting readings but rarely convincing ones, and in general does not seem to be superior to any of the MSS described above. But at some points I did follow its reading against the other witnesses, e.g., at 5.1b.

Kolkata manuscripts

(N)Ko₇₇ MS G4077 in the collection of the Asiatic Society, Kolkata.¹⁴⁰ This is a palm-leaf MS, transmitting the VSS in 52 folios. The MS is dated to July 6, 1036 CE (Nepāla Samvat 156; see De Simini 2017, 542), which makes it ‘the oldest known dated attestation of the corpus’ (De Simini 2016b, 250–251). In spite of this, after collating this MS for 1.1–16, and examining its transmission of verses 8.1–8, I abandoned it because its readings did not provide valuable insights.¹⁴¹

(N)Ko₇₆ MS G 4076 in the collection of The Asiatic Society, Kolkata.¹⁴² Shastri 1928 (716–718) gives a detailed description of this manuscript along with the text of VSS 1.1–16. According to Shastri, the dimensions of the MS are 22½ × 2 inches (57.15 × 5.08 cm), the text is complete, and the script is of the twelfth century CE.

This manuscript may appear as a rare instance of the VSS being transmitted independently, and not in a multiple-text manuscript, but it seems very likely that it was originally part of MS G 3852, a Śivadharm corpus ¹⁴⁰ I am grateful to Daniella Cappello and Marco Francheschini for managing to obtain digital copies of most of the folios of this MS.

Tübingen manuscript

(N)T₈₂ MS Ma I 582 in the Universitätsbibliothek of Tübingen, a beautiful and nicely written MS with an exquisite painted cover, seems to contain only one stray folio (f. 272) from the first twelve chapters of the VSS, covering VSS 3.5–3.29a. This folio has been collated. There are sixteen additional folios in this MS that transmit passages from the second half of the text.

Oxford manuscript

(N)O₁₅ This palm-leaf manuscript is deposited in the Bodleian Library, in Oxford, under shelf mark Sansk. a. 15. It is dated to Nepāla Samvat 307 (1186–87 CE), and it contains 335 folios, transmitting the following texts: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmaheśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 7) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 8) Dharmaputrikā.

A cursory examination of the text reveals rather disappointing readings, therefore I have not included in the apparatus any of the collation done.

London manuscript

(N)L₁₆ This is a paper manuscript in the Library of the Wellcome Institute for the History of Medicine under shelf number WI δ 16 (I–VIII). It contains 406 folios and the following texts: 1) Śivadharmasāstra, 2) Śivadharmottara, 3) Śivadharmasaṃgraha, 4) Umāmaheśvarasaṃvāda, 5) Śivopaniṣad, 6) Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda, 7) Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha, 8) Dharmaputrikā. This MS is described in Wujastyk 1985.

While collating MS L₁₆ for VSS chapter 22, I realised that it was most likely a direct or close copy of K₈₂. A few examples to prove this will suffice.

K₈₂ (f. 40r) reads:

[spha]ṭikāṃ-ram [= kāṃbaram] eva ca | daśayogāsanāsīno

L₁₆ (f. 381v) gives:

sphaṭikāṃsatam eva ca || devayogāsanāsīto

supplying sa for the lost syllable and misreading the damaged da as de and the śa as va.

Here K₈₂ (f. 39v) reads:

[japo yogas tapo] dhyānaṃ svādhyāyaś ca daśa smṛtaḥ with dhyā and svā damaged;

L₁₆ (f. 381r) cannot read the bit that is completely lost, and it misreads the damaged dhyānaṃ as dhānaṃ, svādhyā as sādhū:

In the next example, the text is supposed to read kare grhya tapodhanam | tataḥ so 'ntarhitas tatra tenaiva.

K₈₂ (f. 39r) gives:

[kare] --- dha\na tataḥ so 'ntar\bitas tatra tenaiva

L₁₆ (f. 380r) gives:

kare --- dhatām tataḥ || sati hitas tatra tenaiva trying to make sense of the fragments. The examples above suggest that L₁₆ was copied directly from K₈₂ when the damage had already been done to K₈₂. For this reason, I have not collated its readings for VSS chapters 1–12.

Kathmandu paper manuscripts

(N)K₄₁ NGMCP A 1341/6, NAK 4–93. Paper, 82 folios, probably from the 17th century (see the description of K₁₀₇ below). This MS contains two texts: the Śivadharmasaṃgraha (ff. 91r–135v) and the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha (ff. 204r–243v). This MS was collated only for chapters one and eight in this volume, but consulted often at problematic passages. As already seen from the folio numbers, this multiple-text manuscript must have contained more than two texts originally, most probably of the Śivadharm corpus. The script of this MS seems extremely similar to that of K₁₀₇, a MS dated to 1688 CE (see below). Thus it seems probable that this MS is also from the 17th century.

K₄₁ is a good example to see how relatively late witnesses, paper MSS, can be important. Its readings are relatively independent of most palm-leaf MSS, and seem to shed some light on what source(s) Naraharinath may have used because there are a great number of instances where E and K₄₁ (and K₁₀₇, see below) read together against most other witnesses. E.g., C₉₄, C₄₅, C₀₂, K₈₂, K₁₀, K₇, K₃, and M read bhāratasaṃhitām, or a slightly corrupt form of the same, in 1.2cd, while the two paper MSS K₄₁, and K₁₀₇, and Naraharinath's E read (a clearly wrong) nāradasaṃhitām. Similarly, in 1.17cd most witnesses read vettum arhasi, while K₄₁, K₁₀₇, and E (and

M!) read vaktum arhasi. In 1.44b, K₄₁ and E read *mṛddhe*¹⁴³ instead of śṛṇu and śṛṇge in all other witnesses. In some instances, the paper MSS K₄₁ and K₁₀₇ give readings that might be old or ‘original.’ E.g., 20.40d is missing in a great number of MSS (C₉₄, C₄₅, K₈₂, K₁₀), K₇ gives (improvises?) a less than perfect tān nibodha dvijottamaḥ,¹⁴⁴ while K₄₁, K₁₀₇, and E give a similarly imperfect vijñeyā ca manṣibhiḥ.¹⁴⁵ Sometimes these two paper MSS either alter the text, or again, preserve older readings. E.g., in 16.34 K₄₁, K₁₀₇, and E give bhagavān uvāca against all other witnesses’ mahēvara uvāca. After 12.30d (vipulaḥ punar abravīt), K₄₁, K₁₀₇, and again E, insert a somewhat unnecessary vipula uvāca. These and many other examples could prove that Naraharinath used manuscripts that were close to K₄₁ and K₁₀₇, and some of the oddities in his edition originate in fact in actual readings rather than misreadings or 20th-century alterations.¹⁴⁶

Another fascinating phenomenon in K₄₁ is traces of editorial activity. There is a rather peculiar kākapada, or editorial sign to mark omission, that could help us catch a perhaps 17-19th century editor red-handed while he is inspecting, correcting, and sometimes altering the text, and also while he is consulting older palm-leaf MSS. The sign can be spotted, e.g., in K₄₁ on top of a ku, indicating that the syllable ru, given in the top margin, should be inserted there; doubled in the same MS to indicate a larger omission; in MS NGMPP C 57/5, another paper Śivadharm corpus multiple-text MS, to indicate a alternative reading; and in the much older palm-leaf MS, K₈₂, to indicate a missing passage, which is in fact to be found in at least two paper MSS (K₄₁ and K₁₀₇) and in Naraharinath’s edition (see Figure 5).

Consulting Einicke 2009, a rich catalogue of editorial marks, one gets the impression that this type of kākapada, which has a dot in it, is not frequently seen. Two instances of such a kākapada occur in two NGMPP Viṣṇudharmaśāstra MSS from 1661 and 1713 CE,¹⁴⁷ one in the above men-¹⁴³ K₁₀₇ reads a similar ṛddhe.

¹⁴⁴ One would expect the vocative dvijottama.

¹⁴⁵ The correct sandhi would be vijñeyāś ca.

¹⁴⁶ Compare this with Bisschop et al. 2021, 58–59, especially the following piece of information: ‘According to the information kindly provided by Diwakar Acharya (personal communication), it may have been based on a Devanāgarī manuscript from the time of Raṇa Bahādūr Shah (1775–1806).’

¹⁴⁷ MSS G 18/2 and B 218/2, Einicke 2009, 161–162 and 236.

tioned Śivadharmā MS NGMPP C 57/5 from 1826 CE,¹⁴⁸ and in a Kāla-cakratantra MS written in old Bengali script from 1446 CE, which has (most probably much later) corrections in Nepālākṣara script.¹⁴⁹

It is difficult to escape the impression that we are dealing with the same editor, whose distinguishing mark is a kākapada with a dot. If indeed MS C 57/5 (1826 CE) also bears his hallmark, then he must have been a pundit from the 19th or 20th century. He seems to have performed some rather detailed and focused editorial activities, and must have had access to some of the old palm-leaf MSS. One telling example for this is his marking the omission in K₈₂ of two anuṣṭubh verses on heavens after VSS 24.72 (see image on the right in Figure 5). As hinted at above, these verses, potentially later insertions, occur in the paper MSS K₄₁ and K₁₀₇, and in Naraharinath. To spot this, our anonymous editor had to carefully compare the old palm-leaf MS with the 17th-century paper MS.¹⁵⁰

These observations also shed some light on the origin of the first folio of C₀₂, which is in a hand that looks later than that in the rest of that MS.¹⁵¹ Most old palm-leaf MSS start with karmabetuḥ śarīrasya etc. at VSS 1.14ab, while the two paper MSS K₄₁ and K₁₀₇, and Naraharinath read anarthayañña uvāca || karmabetuḥ śarīrasya. The only palm-leaf MS that reads with the paper MSS is C₀₂, on its only folio that is written in a later hand. This at least tells us that the supplied first folio in C₀₂ comes from a source that is closer to the paper MSS than to the old palm-leaf MSS, and it could also be another piece of evidence for editorial activity

¹⁴⁹ Einicke 2009, 65–66 and 328. On p. 66, Einicke remarks: ‘Besonderheiten: Korrekturen einzelner Zeichen in späterer Newārī-Schrift am Rand’.

¹⁵⁰ More on this in volume two.

by someone who carefully examined these sources, and in addition, introduced fresh contamination. For this kind of easy-to-spot contamination, a good example is the insertion of the somewhat unnecessary vipula uvāca in palm-leaf MS *C*₀₂ after 12.30, inspired by paper MS *K*₄₁, and/or *K*₁₀₇ (see Figure 6). Note the tiny kākapada with the dot on the palm-leaf on the left and the insertion in a different hand in the margin below. It seems probable that our anonymous editor went through some paper MSS and noted differences in the palm-leaf MS *C*₀₂ (and in *K*₈₂, see Figure 5).

(N)*K*₁₀₇ NGMCP C107/7, NAK 9/537. Paper. Size: 37.1 × 10.8 cm. 174 folios. This MS is dated to NS 809 (1688–89 CE),¹⁵² Folios 1–88 are missing. These must have contained the Śivadharmasāstra and the Śivadharmottara.¹⁵³ The MS thus contains only six texts: 1) Śivadharmasamgraha ff. 89r–133v, 2) Umāmaheśvarasamvāda ff. 134r–163v, 3) Śivopaniṣad ff. 164r–181r, 4) Uttarottaramahāsamvāda ff. 182r–206v, 5) Vṛṣa-sārasaṃgraha ff. 207r–251v, 6) Dharmaputrikā ff. 252r–262v.

The script of this 17th-century MS seems extremely similar to that of *K*₄₁, therefore the latter can also be dated to the 17th century. I collated only VSS verses 1–15 as a test, the result of which failed to convince me to use this MS further.

¹⁵²  (f. 262v). De Simini reads NS 803 (2016b, 253 n. 51). I prefer reading NS 809.

¹⁵³ Cf. De Simini 2016b, 252 n. 48. See also an unfinished table of contents on f. 262r, which confirms that at least the Śivadharmasāstra was part of this bundle: || asyānukramah || prathama śivadharmo nāma.

Naraharinath's edition

(N)E Much has been said of Yogi Naraharinath's pioneering but problematic edition (the editio princeps) of the Śivadharmā corpus (Naraharinath 1998).¹⁵⁴ My impression of the text of the VSS in Naraharinath's edition (pp. 580–678) is that its quality is considerably inferior to those of the other texts of the corpus. It may or may not be Naraharinath's fault; others must have been involved in the process of transcription, and the number and nature of the innumerable mistakes all over the text may also suggest a general problem with the typesetting process. In addition to this, it is now gradually becoming clearer and clearer that Naraharinath must have used late paper MSS, and some of the oddities in his text and some of the alterations that are difficult to explain come in fact therefrom. See the description of K₄₁ and K₁₀₇ above. In spite of all the noise in Naraharinath's edition, it was useful to have his text as a starting point, and it is sometimes useful to consider his readings. Therefore I have recorded the readings found in his publication for all twelve chapters given in my critical edition.

¹⁵⁴ See, e.g., De Simini 2016a, 66, n. 190; 2017, 542, Bisschop 2018, 58–59, and Bisschop et al. 2021, 55.

Editorial conventions

The critically edited Sanskrit text is to be found at the top of each page:

- Cruces (†...†) embrace a highly corrupted word or passage that I have not been able to improve upon.
- Headings given in [square brackets] have been supplied to clarify the context. These are not supposed to be part of the original Sanskrit text.
- Verse numbering has been supplied by the editor; none of the witnesses had any verse numbering.

The apparatus is fully positive and contains a maximum of three registers. When all three registers are present, they contain information as follows:

- The bottom register reports the variants found in the manuscripts. Each entry starts with a verse number which is usually followed by a pāda sign. Both are given in boldface (e.g., 25b). The next element is the lemma, a word, phrase, or fragment from the main text, followed by a lemma sign (|). The lemma sign is followed by a list of the sigla of the MSS that read the same as the lemma, up to a comma. Next, the rejected variants are listed, each followed by the sigla of the MSS that read the given variant. A sigma sign (Σ) stands for all available witnesses used for the given chapter, except for one or two variants in a maximum of two witnesses. C_Σ signifies all available Cambridge MSS. A siglum followed by superscript ^{ac} marks the reading of a MS before a scribal alteration/correction (ante correctionem). A siglum followed by superscript ^{pc} marks the reading of a MS after a scribal alteration/correction (post correctionem). Corrections by the editor are marked by ‘corr.’ after the lemma sign (| corr.), emendations by ‘em.’, and conjectures by ‘conj.’ Whenever these alterations to the text were suggested by others, I give their last names after corr., em., or conj. (e.g., conj. DEVADATTA). The difference between corrections, emendations and conjectures is somewhat subjective in nature. Corrections are applied in cases where the editor considers the reasons for his alteration of the text self-evident and in little need of explanation. In the case of an emendation, one or more parallel passages in support of the alteration, or a description of the palæographical phenomena that resulted in the corruption, is usually given in the footnotes to the translation of the given passage. Effort has also been made to support conjectures with evidence, but conjectures are considered more tentative than emendations.¹⁵⁵

A bullet (•) in the apparatus separates different entries that correspond to the same pāda. ° indicates that the lemma or variant is part of a longer compound or word. ˘ indicates an akṣara illegible to me. --- indicates a complete loss of a number of akṣaras, usually due to damage. The number that is often placed on --- (e.g., -3-) indicates the approximate number of lost akṣaras. Letters enclosed by (parentheses) indicate that their reading is uncertain. Unmetrical pādas are marked by '(unmetr.)' only when it is not fully obvious, i.e. they are usually not marked when there is one or more syllables more or less than required in an anuṣṭubh in a variant. Sometimes '(hypometr.)' or '(hypermetr.)' are also used for hypometrical and hypermetrical verses, respectively.

- The middle register contains testimonia, i.e. passages from other sources or from elsewhere in the VSS that are parallel or similar to the corresponding verse in the VSS and that can explain, support, or contextualise the passage or stanza in question. An entry starts with the verse number and pāda sign of the VSS stanza in question. I then give the title of the source from which the passage has been drawn and the exact verse number preceded by '=' if the parallel passage is identical with the reading of the VSS. '≈' is supplied instead of '=' if the parallel passage is similar but not identical with the reading of the VSS. Testimonia are preceded by 'cf.' if the passage is somewhat similar to the textus criticus of the VSS, or can throw some light on it because it treats a similar subject.
- The top register reports lacunæ, and missing passages, in the MSS, and also, at the beginning of chapters, provides list of witnesses used for the given chapter.

¹⁵⁵ See a more detailed discussion on emendations and conjectures in TÖRZSÖK 1999: lxxv–lxxviii.

The transcription of the MSS, both in the critically edited version and in reporting variants, involves some inevitable falsification:

- I have not attempted to always report differences in readings between akṣaras that are usually interchangeable in the Nepālākṣara MSS (व-व, व-च, त-न, य-प, ष-स, but I always report them when both readings are theoretically possible (e.g. चन्दन-वन्दन, जय-जप).
- I have ignored all instances of gemination of consonants in ligature with semivowels in the main text and when reporting lemmata (e.g. कर्म rather than कम्म), but I always report rejected variant as they appear in the source whenever possible. If the same rejected reading appears with different orthography in different sources, I usually report it as it appeared in the source collated first; thus rejected variants are also often slightly falsified.
- I have altered anusvāras and homorganic nasals, including m, in the main text, as required by standard orthography.
- Avagrahas are largely missing in the MSS. I have always silently supplied them in the textus criticus and in the lemmata, but I have not supplied them when reporting variants.

CHECK

- orthography: deviant orth, sandhi, punctuation? - avagrahas usually supplied but sometimes found in the MSS, not used by me for crasis (e.g. a+a=ā) - daṇḍas: usually 4 pādas to a verse, but I have made arbitrary decisions based on sense-units because none of the sources really indicate where a verse ends (||).
- falsifications everywhere on purpose and accidentally

[Chapter One]

[stutiḥ — Invocation]

anādimadhyāntam anantapāraṃ
susūkṣmam avyaktajagatsusāraṃ | harīndrabrahmādibhir āsamagraṃ
praṇamya vakṣye vṛṣasārasaṃgraham || 1:1 ||

Having bowed to the One who has no beginning, no middle part and no end, whose boundaries are limitless, who is very subtle and who is the unmanifest and fine essence of the world, and also to Indra, Brahmā and the other [gods], I shall recite [the work called] ‘A Compendium on the Essence of the Bull [of Dharma]’.

1.1 Metre: upajāti. This verse echoes VSS 20.3:

nādimadhyam na cāntam ca yan na vedyam surair api |
atisūkṣmo hy atisthūlo nirālambo nirañjanaḥ ||

This could suggest that pāda c above might be parallel with na vedyam surair api. Perhaps understand asamagraṃ [vedyam] (‘incompletely [known]').

Pāda a is also reminiscent of, among other famous passages, BhG 11.19:

anādimadhyāntam anantavīryam anantabāhum śaśisūryanetram |
paśyāmi tvāṃ dīptabūtāśavaktraṃ svatejasā viśvam idam tāpantam ||

See also BhG 10.20cd:

aham ādīś ca madhyam ca bhūtānām anta eva ca ||

A faint reference to the BhG seems proper at the beginning of a work that claims to deliver a teaching based on, but also to surpass, the MBh (see following verses of the VSS).

Compare also, e.g., KūP 1.11.237:

rūpaṃ tavāśeṣakalāvibinam agocaraṃ nirmalam ekarūpam |
anādimadhyāntam anantam ādyaṃ namāmi satyaṃ tamasasḥ parastāt ||

In general, to say that a god has no beginning and no end in a temporal or spacial sense is natural (anādi ... antam), but to have no ‘middle part’ (madhya) in these senses is slightly less so. Thus the rather commonly occurring phrase anādimadhyāntam is probably a fixed expression usually referring to a deity that is endless, eternal and immaterial. As to which deity or what form of a deity this stanza refers to, one could argue that it is Śiva, his name missing in pāda c, but the phrasing of the verse is vague enough to keep the question somewhat open: the impersonal Brahman might be another option, even more so if we look at verses 1.9–10, whose topic is brahmavidyā.

In pāda b jagat-susāraṃ is most probably not to be interpreted as jagatsu sāraṃ (‘the essence in the worlds’). Another way to translate avyaktajagatsusāraṃ would be: ‘who is the fine essence of the unmanifest world.’

Dialogue of Janamejaya and Vaiśampāyana]
śatasāhasrikam grantham sahasrādhyāyam uttamam |
parva cāsya śataṃ pūrṇam śrutvā bhāratasaṃhitām || 1:2 ||

Having listened to the Bhāratasaṃhitā [i.e. the Mahābhārata], the supreme book of a hundred thousand [verses] and a thousand chapters (adhyāya), with all its hundred sections (parvan),

atrptaḥ puna papraccha vaiśampāyanam eva hi |

Strictly speaking, pāda c is unmetrical, but it is better to simply acknowledge here the phenomenon of ‘muta cum liquida’, or rather, krama licence, namely that syllables followed by consonant clusters such as ra, bra, hra, kra, śra, śya, śva, sva, dva can be treated as short (laghu). (See Introduction pp. 39 ff.) Thus harīndrabrahmā^o can be treated as a regular beginning of an upajāti (◡ - ◡ - -), the syllable bra not turning the previous syllable long (guru).

The reading āsamagram in pāda c is suspect (see a preliminary comment on this above), although the initial ā- might convey some sort of completeness, meaning ‘all round’ (see e.g. Kale 1992, 226). The fact that we could perceive the ending of pādas a and b (pāram–sāram), as well as pādas c and d, as (in the latter case, oddly) rhyming pairs (gram–graham) suggests that accepting the reading āsamagram could be the right decision (as suggested by Alessandro Battistini). I translate this verse accordingly. M gives an exciting, albeit unmetrical, alternative (yat samagram), but this seems more of a guess than the correct reading. For some time I was considering emending āsamagram. The most tempting of all the possible options (arcyam/arhyam/arghyam/iḍyam/ādhyam/āptam agram, āsamastaṃ) seemed to be āptam agram, meaning ‘appointed/received/respected [by Hari, Indra, Brahmā etc.] as the foremost one’. The fact that the akṣaras āsam and āptam look similar in most of the scripts used in the witnesses could support this conjecture. āptam could also possibly refer to the text itself, although then the syntax becomes slightly confusing: ‘I shall recite the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha that was first received by Hari...’ etc. Another candidate was ādhyam agram: ‘Having bowed to [Him] who contains/is rich with Hari, Indra, Brahmā etc.’ I have not emended the text because it is difficult to know if there is any need for change and if there is, which reading to chose. There was no consensus when this verse was discussed in our extended Śivadharmā reading group.

Pāda d seems hypermetrical, but it can be interpreted as a vaṃśastha line, a change from triṣṭubh to jaṅgati (as suggested by Dominic Goodall).

1.2 The dialogue of Janamejaya and Vaiśampāyana makes up the outermost layer of the VSS (see Introduction p. 11), mostly containing general dharmasāstric material.

That the MBh should contain a hundred thousand verses is hinted at, e.g., in line 19 of the Khoh Charter 2 of Śarvanātha, year 214 (Siddham Database IN00088; uktaṃ ca mahābhārata śatasāhasryaṃ [understand °ryāṃ] saṃhitāyāṃ...). The hundred parvans of the Mahābhārata are listed in MBh 1.2.33–70. Note the use of the singular (parva) in connection with numerals (śataṃ), one of the hallmarks of this text (see p. 32).

janamejayena yat pūrvam tac chr̥ṇu tvam atandritam || 1:3 ||

Janamejaya remained unsatisfied. Listen attentively to what he asked Vaiśampāyana in the past.

janamejaya uvāca |

bhagavan sarvadharmajña sarvaśāstraviśārada |

asti dharmam param guhyam saṃsārārṇavatāraṇam || 1:4 ||

Janamejaya spoke: O venerable sir, O knower of the entire Dharma, O you who are well-versed in all the sciences (śāstra)! There is a supreme and secret Dharma [that brings about] liberation from the ocean of mundane existence (saṃsāra),

dvaipāyanamukhodbhūtam dharmam vā yad dvijottama |

kathayasva hi me trptim kuru yatnāt tapodhana || 1:5 ||

1.3 My emendation from the unmetrical punaḥ to the unusual, or rather, Middle Indic (Edgerton 1953, vol. 2, p. 347), and Newar (Jørgensen 1941, 113), puna is based on the assumption that in the original the metre must have overridden morphology, similarly to what may have happened in 8.44d (Mālinī metre): na bhavati punajanma kalpakot'yāyute 'pi, and in 12.151c (Sragdharā metre): garbhāvāsam na ca tvan na ca punamaraṇam kleśam āyāsapūrṇam.

For an unsatisfaction or dissatisfaction (atrpti) with previous teachings in a somewhat similar manner to what Janamejaya experiences here, see, e.g., Niśvāsa mūlasūtra 1.9:

vedāntam viditam deva sāmkyam vai pañcaviṃśakam |
na ca trptim gamiṣyāmo hy ṛte śaivād anugrahāt ||

Vaiśampāyana, a Ṛṣi, disciple of Vyāsa, great-grandson to Arjuna, recited the Mahābhārata at the snake sacrifice of Janamejaya. This setting is an echo of the starting point of the MBh, see MBh 1.1.8ff. In fact the next few verses in the VSS make it clear that the VSS picks up where the MBh left off: Janamejaya has heard the whole Mahābhārata from Vaiśampāyana, but he is eager to hear more, or rather a concise version of the Dharmic teachings of the Mahābhārata.

It is tempting to emend pāda c to contain a stem form proper noun (janamejaya) in order to maintain the metre, and note how the manuscripts struggle with this pāda. Stem form nouns, prātipadikas, abound in the VSS: see Introduction p. 37. On the other hand, the contracted/syncope form janmejaya occurs, e.g., in BhāṅP 12.06.16, BrahmaVP 4.14.41 and 46, and NepMā 1.2. (It is even lexicalised in Monier-Williams' Sanskrit-English Dict.) The hypermetrical form janamejayena, and the construction finite verb + instrumental (papraccha... janamejayena), could be original; compare 1.8 and 4.75 below. Alternatively, 1.3cd could be taken as a separate, and elliptical, sentence standing for janamejayena yac chrutam pūrvam tac chr̥ṇu.

1.4 Note dharmā as a neuter noun in pāda c and in the next verse.

that is, the Dharma that emerged from [Vyāsa] Dvaipāyana's mouth, O best of Brahmins. Teach [it] to me and help me find satisfaction at all cost, O great ascetic!

vaiśampāyana uvāca |
śṛṇu rājann avahito dharmākhyānam anuttamam |
vyāsānugrahasamprāptam guhyadharmam śṛṇotu me || 1:6 ||

Vaiśampāyana spoke: Listen with great attention, O king, to this unsurpassed narration of Dharma. Hear the secret Dharma that I received through the grace of Vyāsa.

anarthayajñakartāraṃ tapovrataparāyaṇam |
śīlaśaucasamācāraṃ sarvabhūtadayāparam || 1:7 ||
jijñāsanārtham praśnaikam viṣṇunā prabhaviṣṇunā |
dvijarūpadharo bhūtvā papraccha vinayānvitaḥ || 1:8 ||

Viṣṇu, the great Lord, assuming the form of a twice-born [Brah-min], wanted to test [Anarthayajña, the ascetic yogin] who practised nonmaterial sacrifices (anarthayajña), focused on his auster-ities and observances, whose conduct was virtuous and pure, and who was intent on compassion towards all living beings; therefore he [Viṣṇu] humbly asked him a question.

[brahmavidyā —
Knowledge of Brahman]

[vigatarāga uvāca |]

1.5 The majority of the MSS consulted include a vā in pāda b, and although C₄₅'s reading seems a bit smoother, that manuscript rarely gives superior readings. Therefore I have chosen dharmam vā yad, in which vā functions probably in a weak sense ('that is'). That the secret Dharma Janamejaya is seeking is the one taught by Vyāsa Dvaipāyana, and thus no real options are involved here, becomes clear in 1.6cd. The reading of M in pāda b (dharmavākyam) is tempting but could be a later correction. In general, M's readings here are unique but probably secondary: hi me trptim in pāda c seems more attractive than M's prasādena because it echoes atrptaḥ in 1.3a

1.7 On Anarthayajña, the interlocutor of VSS 1.9–10.2 and 19.1–21.22, and an important figure discussed in 22.3ff, as well as a concept ('nonmaterial sacrifice'), see Kiss 2021 and Introduction p. 11.

1.8 Note the syntax here involving the agent in the instrumental with a finite verb (ergative structure): viṣṇunā... dvijarūpadharo bhūtvā papraccha. Compare 1.3.

brahmavidyā katham jñeyā rūpavarṇavivarjitā |
svaravyaṅjananirmuktam akṣaram kimu tat param || 1:9 ||

[Vigatarāga spoke:] How is the knowledge of the Brahman to be understood if it is devoid of form and colour? Why is that supreme syllable which is devoid of vowels and consonants the supreme one?

anarthayajña uvāca |
anuccāryam asandigdham avicchinnam anākulam |
nirmalam sarvagam sūkṣmam akṣaram kim ataḥ param || 1:10 ||

Anarthayajña replied: That syllable is not to be pronounced, is unquestionable, non-dividable, consistent, spotless, all-pervading and subtle: what could be higher than that?

[kālapāśaḥ — Noose of death and time]

vigatarāga uvāca |
dehī dehe kṣayam yāte bhūjalāgnisivādibhiḥ |
yamadūtaiḥ katham nīto nirālambo niraṅjanaḥ || 1:11 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: When the body disintegrates in the ground, in water, in fire, or [is torn apart] by jackals and other [animals], how is the supportless and spotless soul led [to the netherworld] by Yama's messengers?

kālapāśaiḥ katham baddho nirdehaś ca katham vrajet |
svargam vā sa katham yāti nirdeho bahudharmakṛt |
etan me saṁśayam brūhi jñātum icchāmi tattvataḥ || 1:12 ||

1.9 The translation of this verse, and the reconstruction and interpretation of pāda d, which is echoed in 1.10d, is slightly tentative. I doubt if kimu could have the standard (Vedic) meaning 'how much more/less' here. Rather u is probably just an expletive. In general it seems that this verse references the syllable om.

1.10 In pāda d, I have chosen, somewhat randomly, kim ataḥ instead of kimu tat, trying to make sense of 10.9–10.

1.11 The word °śivā° in pāda b is slightly suspect, and could be the result of metathesis, from °viśā° ('by poison'). Nevertheless, jackals seems appropriate in this context, for they are commonly associated with human corpses, death and the cremation ground (see e.g. Ohnuma 2019). Furthermore, pāda b lists phenomena that cause the body to disintegrate, and not causes of death; thus the reading śiva is probably correct.

How is it bound by the nooses of death [/ time] (kālapāśa)? And if it is bodiless, how can it move? And how does the [soul of a] virtuous [person] (bahudharmakṛt) reach heaven if it has no body? This is my doubt. Teach me. I want to know the truth.

anarthayajña uvāca |
atisaṃśayakaṣṭhaṃ te prṣṭo 'haṃ dvijasattama |
durvijñeyam manuṣyais tu devadānavapannagaiḥ || 1:13 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: You are asking me about an extremely doubtful and problematic matter, O truest of the twice-born. [This is a matter that] is difficult to understand by humans, and [even] by gods (deva), demons (dānava) and serpents (pannaga).

karmabetu śarīrasya utpatti nidhanam ca yat |
sukṛtaṃ duṣkṛtaṃ caiva pāśadvayam udāhṛtam || 1:14 ||

The cause of both the birth and death of the body is karma. Good and bad deeds are called the two nooses.

tenaiva saba saṃyāti narakaṃ svargam eva vā |
sukhaduḥkhaṃ śarīreṇa bhoktavyaṃ karmasambhavam || 1:15 ||

hetunānena viprendra debaḥ sambhavate nṛṇām |
yaṃ kālapāśam ity āhuḥ śṛṇu vakṣyāmi suvrata || 1:16 ||

1.12 The word kāla has, as usual, a double meaning here: kālapāśa is both Yama's noose, and also the limitations and bondage caused by time, as becomes clear at the discussion on the different time units in verses 1.18–30. saṃśaya seems to be treated as neuter in pāda e.

1.13 Note te used for tvayā in pāda a. Alternatively, taking te as genitive, the line could be translated as: 'I am being asked about a great problem of yours that originates in doubts...'

1.14 The MSS give karmabetu in pāda a overwhelmingly, which could work as a neuter bahuvrīhi compound picking up both a stem-form utpatti and nidhanam. karmabetuḥ (C₄₅) is grammatically more correct, picking up the feminine utpatti, but a neuter stem-form utpatti is unsurprising in this text.

It is for this reason, O great Brahmin, that the human body is born.
Now learn about that which they call the noose of time (kālapāśa),
I shall teach you, O you of great observances.

na tvayā viditaṃ kiñcij jijñāsyasi kathaṃ dvija |
kālapāśaṃ ca viprendra sakalaṃ vettum arhasi || 1:17 ||

[If] you do not know anything, how could you start your investigation, O twice-born? O great Brahmin, you should know the noose of time (kālapāśa) in its entirety.

kalākalitakālaṃ ca kālatattvakalāṃ śṛṇu |
truṭidvayaṃ nimeṣas tu nimeṣadviguṇā kalā || 1:18 ||

Learn about time (kāla) which is divided into digits (kalā), [i.e. about] the division[s] (kalā) of the entity [called] time (kālatattva).
Two atomic units of time (truṭi) are one twinkling (nimeṣa). One digit (kalā, cca. 1.6 second) is twice a twinkling.

kalādviguṇitā kāṣṭhā kāṣṭhā vai triṃsatih kalā |
triṃsatkalā muhūrtaś ca mānuṣena dvijottama || 1:19 ||

Two digits (kalā) form one bit (kāṣṭhā, 3.2 seconds). Thirty bits (kāṣṭhā) make one digit (kalā?, 1.6 minutes). Thirty digits (kalā) make up one section (muhūrta, 48 minutes) in human terms, O great Brahmin.

muhūrtatriṃśakenaiva ahorātraṃ vidur budhāḥ |
ahorātraṃ punas triṃśan māsam āhur manīṣiṇaḥ || 1:20 ||

Thirty sections (muhūrta) are known to the wise as one night and day [i.e. a full day]. Thirty days and nights are taught by the wise to be one month.

1.17 The variant jijñāsyasi seems to be the lectio difficilior as opposed to vijñāsyasi, but the latter could also work fine here. Note how M (agreeing with two paper MSS, K₄₁ and K₁₀₇, as well as E) gives a reading (vaktum arhasi) that is clearly out of context. This confirms that while M comes up with interesting readings, they are mostly to be ignored.

1.18 1.18d and 1.19a are problematic in the light of 1.19b, which redefines kalā in harmony with the traditional interpretation, see e.g. Arthaśāstra 2.20.33: triṃsatkāṣṭhāḥ kalāḥ. On divisions of time, see also, e.g., Manu 1.64ff, and also Hayashi 2017. I have calculated 1.6 second for one kalā backwards, starting from one day (see 1.20ab).

1.19 Understand mānuṣena as mānuṣasaṃkhyayā (1.21d).

samā dvādaśa māsāś ca kālatattvavido janāḥ |
śataṃ varṣasahasrāṇi trīṇi mānuṣasaṃkhyayā |
ṣaṣṭiṃ caiva sahasrāṇi kālaḥ kaliyugaḥ smṛtaḥ || 1:21 ||

One year is twelve months [according to] people who know the entity of time. The time span of three hundred and sixty thousand years by human counting is said to be the Kali age (kaliyuga).

dviguṇaḥ kalisaṃkhyāto dvāparo yuga saṃjñitaḥ |
tretā tu triguṇā jñeyā catuḥ kṛtayugaḥ smṛtaḥ || 1:22 ||

The Dvāpara age is known to be twice as long as the Kali age. The Tretā age is thrice [as long], the Kṛta age four [times as long as the Kali age].

eṣā caturyugāsaṃkhyā kṛtvā vai hy ekasaptatiḥ |
manvantarasya caikasya jñānam uktaṃ samāsataḥ || 1:23 ||

This is the figure related to the four ages (yuga). Multiplying it by seventy-one, the knowledge about one time-span of a Manu (manvantara) has been briefly taught.

kalpo manvantarāṇāṃ tu caturdaśa tu saṃkhyayā |
daśa kalpasahasrāṇi brahmābaḥ parikalpitam |
rātrir etāvatī proktā munibhis tattvadarśibhiḥ || 1:24 ||

One æon (kalpa) is fourteen manvantaras in total. Brahmā's day (brahmāhar) is made up of ten thousand æons (kalpa). [Brahmā's]

1.21 Note how a verb (e.g. itī vadanti, itī prāhur) is missing in pādas ab.

1.22 Note the stem form noun yuga in pāda b metri causa, or rather the compound dvāparo-yuga-saṃjñitaḥ (the end of dvāparo lengthened to avoid the metrical fault of two laghus), and also M's unique but confused readings.

1.23 Note the lengthened vowel in °yugā (metri causa).

The 'figure' mentioned in this verse is the sum of the duration of the four yugas, which makes up one mahāyuga: Kaliyuga = 360,000 years, Dvāparayuga = 720,000 years, Tretāyuga = 1,080,000 years, Kṛtayuga = 1,440,000 years; altogether 3,600,000 years. 71 mahāyugas make up a manvantara (= 255,600,000 years; cf. Manu 1.79). One kalpa is 14 manvantaras (= 3,578,400,000 years). Ten thousand kalpas are one day of Brahmā, and his night is of the same length, which would make one full day of Brahmā 71,568,000,000,000 human years. See next verses and, e.g., González-Reimann 2016. See VSS 21.34ff on kalpa etc.

night is of the same duration according to the wise who know the truth.

One para times parārdha [number of, i.e. two hundred quadrillion times a hundred quadrillion] æons (kalpa) have passed [thus far], O great Brahmin. Bhr̥gu and the other sages say that the future is the same [time span].

Just as the sun, the planets, the stars and the moon are perceived in this world as circling around, we, wandering around riding the wheel of time (kālacakra), can never have a rest.

kālaḥ sṛjati bhūtāni kālaḥ saṃharate punaḥ |
kālasya vaśagāḥ sarve na kālavaśākṛt kvacit || 1:28 ||

1.24 The accepted reading kalpo in pāda a is probably not original, but it makes the sentence clearer than what is transmitted in most sources. M has a separator sign (||o||) at the end of pāda b, as if a section ended here.

1.25 The plural form pralīyante in pāda a is metri causa for pralīyate, perhaps also influencing utpadyante (for utpadyate) in pāda d, which in turn is used here to avoid an iambic pattern (- - U - U - U -). Note a general lack of a sense of grammatical number (see p. 31).

1.26 On the definition of the numbers para and parārdha, see verses 1.31–35. Note the peculiar compound bhr̥gu-r-ādi-maharṣayaḥ, for bhr̥gvādīmaharṣayaḥ.

1.27 bhramato in pāda b seems to stand for the neuter participle bhramat. Alternatively, bhramato might mean 'erroneously' (bhrama-tas, abl.), but this would make the verse difficult to interpret. I have corrected bhramatvaiva to the standard form bhramitvaiva, although the former might conceal a finite verb (bhramāmaḥ?).

Time creates living beings and time destroys them again. Everything is under the control of time. There is nothing that can bring time under control.

Fourteen parārdha [fourteen hundred quadrillion] god kings, O Brahmin, have passed with time, for time is difficult to overcome.

Time is [manifest] as a great yogin, as Brahmā, Viṣṇu and supreme Śiva, is beginningless and endless, is the Creator and the great soul. Pay homage [to Time].

Parārdha etc.: numbers]

vigatarāga uvāca |
śrutam vai kālacakraṃ tu mukhapadmavinisṛtam |
parārdham ca paraṃ caiva śrotuṃ vaḥ pratidīpitam || 1:31 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: I have now heard about the ‘wheel of time’ (kāla-cakra) from [your] lotus mouth. [I wish] to hear about [the terms] parārdha and para [mentioned above], as elaborated by you.

1.29 Note that samatītāni (neuter) most probably picks up devarājāḥ (masculine) in this verse, or rather devarājā stands for devarājānām and samatītāni picks up °parārdhāni. It is not clear to me what devarāja (‘god king’) means exactly (Indra?).

1.31 I have corrected the unmetrical vinisṛtam in pāda b to vinisṛtam. The reading of all manuscripts consulted, vinisṛtam, may be considered metrical if we interpret it, loosely, as vinisṛitam. Read tvānmukhapadma° (‘your lotus mouth’) over the pāda-boundary? See, e.g., ŚivaP 2.3.27.6ab: taj jñātvā nikhilam devi śrutvā tvānmukhapadamkajāt.

Pāda d is suspect and my translation tentative. M’s reading in pāda d (śrotuṃ naḥ pratidīyatām) might make sense (‘give it back/repeat it for us to hear’), but it sounds forced, as if the scribe tried to come up with a reading that he understood better than śrotuṃ vaḥ pratidīpitam, the reading of the majority of the witnesses, which is in fact not easy to interpret. One would expect a phrase meaning ‘please tell me about these.’ Finally, I have decided to take vaḥ as instrumental (‘by you’). Still, a verb is missing.

Anarthayajña spoke: One, ten, a hundred, a thousand, ten thousand (ayuta), a hundred thousand (prayuta), a million (niyuta), ten million (koṭi), a hundred million (arbuda), one billion (vṛnda, 10^9), kharvaṃ caiva nikharvaṃ ca śaṅku padmaṃ tathaiva ca |

samudro madhyam antaṃ ca parārdhaṃ ca paraṃ tathā || 1:33 ||

ten billion (kharva), a hundred billion (nikharva), one trillion (śaṅku, 10^{12}), ten trillion (padma), a hundred trillion (samudra), one quadrillion (madhya, 10^{15}), ten quadrillion ([an]anta), a hundred quadrillion (parārdha), and two hundred quadrillion (para).

There is no higher number than para. This is my firm conviction, which is based on my readings of the Purāṇas and the Vedas and [which I have now] taught [to you], O great Brahmin.

Brahmā's Egg: the Universe]

vigatarāga uvāca |

brahmāṇḍam kati vijñeyaṃ pramāṇaṃ jñāpitaṃ kvacit |

kati cāṅguli-m-ūrdhveṣu sūryas tapati vai mahīm || 1:36 ||

1.32 Although the form daśa is more standard than the accepted daśam, the latter can be original. See a similar teaching of numbers in BrahmanḍaP 3.2.91ff.

1.33 Note that K₄₁ inserts a line here. See apparatus. For anta meaning ananta, see 1.57. M's reading in pāda d may be a result of an eyeskip to 1.34c.

1.35 Note that E inserts the line here that K₄₁ inserted above. See apparatus.

Vigatarāga spoke: What is the extent of Brahmā's Egg (brahmāṇḍa) [i.e. the universe]? Is it disclosed anywhere? From how many finger's breadths high does the sun heat the earth?

*anarthayajña uvāca |

Anarthayajña spoke: How could I enumerate [all the details of] Brahmā's Egg, O twice-born? Even the gods do not know, not to mention humans.

*paryāyeṇa tu vakṣyāmi yathāśakyam dvijottama |
brahmaṇā yat purākhyāto mātariśvā yathā tathā || 1:38 ||*

I shall teach [you], as far as I can, in due order and truthfully, that, O great Brahmin, which Mātariśvan was taught by Brahmā in the past.

*śivāṇḍābhyantareṇaiva sarveṣām iva bhūbhṛtām |
daśa nāma diśāṣṭānām brahmāṇḍe kīrtitam śṛṇu || 1:39 ||*

1.36 The use of the singular next to numerals is one of the hallmarks of the VSS (see p. 32). This means that pāda a may well refer to multiple brahmāṇḍas. Nevertheless, in the light of VSS 2.2d (pramāṇam tasya vā kati), I suspect that the first question here could be rendered in slightly more standard Sanskrit as brahmāṇḍasya pramāṇam kati yojanāni vijñeyam. cāpitaṃ kvacit in pāda b in the witnesses is enigmatic. One may conjecture prāpitaṃ (perhaps: 'is it available somewhere?'), The intended form may have been jñātaṃ kenacit ('is it known by anyone?'), or jñāpitaṃ ('is it disclosed somewhere?'). I have chosen the latter, to which 1.37 below could be a reply. Of course, cāpitaṃ could be analysed as cāpi tam (possibly for cāpi tat), but that would help little, unless we imagine that the question is 'and where is it?' (cāpi tat kva).

My emendation of cāṅguli-mūrdheṣu to cāṅguli-m-ūrdheṣu (with a hiatus-filler) is based on ūrdhvatatas in 1.60d, which is part of the reply to the question posed in this line. In turn, aṅguli here triggered a conjecture in 1.60c.

1.37 One would expect brahmāṇḍāni in pāda a instead of brahmāṇḍānām, but we should probably understand brahmāṇḍānām viśeṣān prasaṃkhyātum..., or rather, brahmāṇḍasya viśeṣān prasaṃkhyātum. The structure noun in genitive + verb meaning 'to tell' occurs also, e.g., in 4.69a.

1.38 The claim that Brahmā taught Mātariśvan is confirmed in 1.62cd, and also, e.g., in Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa 3.4.58cd (see the apparatus).

The ten names of all the [cosmic] rulers in each of the eight directions in Brahmā's Egg, [which is] inside Śiva's Egg (śivāṇḍa), are being taught now, listen.

[1] Prabhāsa, [2] Bhāsana, [3] Bhānu, [4] Pradyota, [5] Dyutima, [6] Dyuti, [7] Dīptatejas, [8] Tejas, [9] Tejā, [10] Tejavaha: [these are] the ten [rulers] in the direction of Agni [SE]. Now listen to [the names for] Yama's region, O twice-born.

[yāmye —

1.39 My conjecture in pāda b (bbūbhṛtām) is based on the fact that the readings transmitted in the MSS seem unintelligible, and, more importantly, that these names are said, in the subsequent verses, to belong to nāyakas ('chiefs, lords'), a possible synonym of bbūbhṛt ('a king'). Also, it is a minute intervention.

In pāda c, understand diśāṣṭānām as diśām aṣṭānām or diśaṣṭakānām: again, the use of the singular in the proximity of numbers is normal in the VSS (daśa nāma).

1.40 Note that many of the names here and in the following verses are, in the absence of any close parallel passage, rather insecure. In order to avoid the repetition of the name Saha, I take the first name here as feminine; Asabhā seems also to be a feminine ruler's name. Later on there seem to come more feminine names (Tejā, Yamunā, Naganā, etc.), therefore it might be correct to interpret some of the names as names of queens. What is clear here is that the list evokes the name Sahasrākṣa, one of the appellations of Indra, the guardian of the eastern direction.

1.41 Here, in the region of Agni, the names evidently evoke the image of flames.

 West]

vāruṇena pravakṣyāmi śṛṇu vipra nibodha me |

bharaṇo bhuvano bhartā daśaite varuṇālayāḥ || 1:44 ||

I shall teach you [the names] in Varuṇa's region [in the west]. Listen, O Brahmin, learn from me. [1] Babhra, [2] Setu, [3] Bhava, [4] Udbhadra, [5] Prabhava, [6] Udbhava, [7] Bhājana, [8] Bharaṇa, [9] Bhuvana, and [10] Bharṭṛ: these ten dwell in Varuṇa's region [in the west].

1.42 I have chosen the variant saṃyano in pāda c only to avoid the repetition of the name saṃyama, and the variant yanoyanaḥ in pāda d because I suspect that most of the names here should begin with ya, except for ayamaḥ in pāda b, which is little more than a guess in order to avoid the repetition of yamaḥ. All the name forms in this verse are to be taken as tentative. The only guiding light is the presence of ya, reinforcing a connection with Yama.

1.43 naga in pāda b is a stem form noun metri causa. tatparaḥ in pāda d is another example of a singular form next to a number (see 1.39c above). Note that the reconstruction of these names is tentative. What is clear here is that the initials should be na and ga, probably suggesting a connection with nirṛti, narakas, and nāgas.

1.44 Varuṇa upholds (bibharti/bharati) the sky and the earth. This could be the reason why these names include bharaṇa and bharṭṛ.

[īśāne —
North-East]

indu bindu bhuvo vajra varado vara varṣaṇaḥ |
ilano valino brahmā daśeśāṇeṣu nāyakāḥ || 1:48 ||

1.45 The connection between vṛṣa and the north-west or Vāyu is not evident to me. In a tantric context, a western position is more standard for vṛṣa, see e.g. Goodall et al. 2005, 40.

1.46 Note how M deviates here again in a significant way.

1.47 I prefer the form sumanaḥ to the more standard sumanāḥ (K₇) in pāda a because it suits the slightly irregular language of the VSS (see pp. 30) and because the solitary reading of K₇ may well only be an attempt to standardise. It is also not inconceivable that sumanaḥ stands compounded with saumyaḥ. Note how daśa nāyakam (neuter singular for masculine plural) could again be an example for the use of the singular next to a number in pāda d. It seems that here it is the northern region that is associated with Śiva, rather than the north-east, the īśāna direction, which is occupied by Brahmā in the next verse. (In a tantric context, Brahmā is sometimes associated with the north-east, see, e.g., Goodall et al. 2005, 39.) I have left satya in stem form.

[1] Indu, [2] Bindu, [3] Bhuva, [4] Vajra, [5] Varada, [6] Vara, [7] Varṣaṇa, [8] Ilana, [9] Valina, [10] Brahmā: [these are] the ten rulers in the Īśāna direction [i.e. in the north-east].

[1] Aparā, [2] Vimala, [3] Moha, [4] Nirmala, [5] Mana, [6] Mohana, [7] Akṣaya, [8] Avyaya, [9] Viṣṇu, [10] Varada: [these are] the ten [leaders] in the centre.

[parivārāḥ — Subordinates]

sarveṣāṃ daśa-m-īśānāṃ parivāraśataṃ śatam |
śatānāṃ prthag ekaikaṃ sahasraiḥ parivāritam || 1:50 ||

Each of the ten rulers has a retinue of a hundred subordinates. Each one of [these] hundred is surrounded by a thousand subordinates.

sahasreṣu ca ekaikaṃ ayutaiḥ parivāritam |
ayutaṃ prayutair vṛndaiḥ prayutaṃ niyutair vṛtam || 1:51 ||

Each one of the thousand is surrounded by ten thousand [subordinates], the ten thousand is surrounded by a multitude of a hundred thousand, the hundred thousand by a million,

1.48 I consider indu, bindu and vajra stem form nouns. The north-east seems to be occupied by Brahmā, and by rulers whose names should somehow evoke Brahmā's name.

1.49 Note that the last three lists above have been associated with Śiva, Brahmā and Viṣṇu, respectively, and here, in a layer of the text that can be labelled Vaiṣṇava (see pp. 11), it is Viṣṇu that seems to occupy a central position. mana mohanaḥ (or nirmalonmana) in pāda b may sound like one single name, but we are forced to separate these two words (mana being in stem form metri causa) to arrive at a list of ten names.

1.50 I take daśa-m-īśānāṃ as a split compound (daśeśānāṃ). It is conceivable that each of the above ninety rulers has ten subordinates, therefore each group of ten rulers has a hundred subordinates altogether, but the original idea may have been that each one of the above ninety rulers has a hundred subordinates. Alternatively, this verse may only refer to the central group of ten rulers mentioned in 1.49, and each one of them has a hundred subordinates.

1.51 We are forced to follow E's reading in pāda c in order to make sense of this passage. My correction in pāda d is motivated by the same. Note that vṛnda is not a number in this line. Elsewhere in this chapter vṛnda is the word that signifies 'a billion.'

ekaikasya parivāro niyutaḥ pṛthag eva ca |
koṭibhir daśakoṭyena ekaikaḥ parivāritaḥ || 1:52 ||

[that is] each one has a retinue of a million (niyuta) [subordinates].
[Then those] are surrounded by ten million (koṭi) [subordinates], [they in turn] by a hundred million (daśakoṭi).

daśakoṭiṣu ekaikaṃ vṛndavṛndabhṛtair vṛtam |
vṛndavargeṣu ekaikaṃ kharvabhiḥ parivāritam || 1:53 ||

Each one of the hundred million is surrounded by a billion (vṛnda) subordinates (bhṛta). Each one in these groups of a billion (vṛnda) is surrounded by ten billion (kharva) [subordinates].

kharvavargeṣu ekaikaṃ daśakharvagaṇair vṛtam |
daśakharveṣu ekaikaṃ śaṅkubhiḥ parivāritam || 1:54 ||

Each in these groups of ten billion (kharva) is surrounded by a hundred billion (daśakharva). Each of those hundred billion is surrounded by a trillion (śaṅku) [deities].

śaṅkubhiḥ pṛthag ekaikaṃ padmena parivāritam |
padmavargeṣu ekaikaṃ samudraiḥ parivāritam || 1:55 ||

Each of those one trillion is surrounded by ten trillion (padma).
Each of those ten trillion is surrounded by a hundred trillion (samu- dra).

samudreṣu tathaikaikaṃ madhyasaṃkhyais tu tair vṛtam |
madhyasaṃkhyeṣu ekaikaṃ anantaḥ parivāritam || 1:56 ||

And each of those hundred trillion is surrounded by those whose number is one quadrillion (madhya). Each of those quadrillion is surrounded by ten quadrillion (ananta).

ananteṣu ca ekaikaṃ parārdhaparivāritam |
parārdheṣu ca ekaikaṃ pareṇa parivāritam |
eṣa vai kathito vipra śakyaṃ sāmkyam udīritam || 1:57 ||

1.52 It seems that pādas ab repeat what has been stated in 1.51cd. °koṭyena stands for °koṭyā (thematization). Note how the scribe of M gets confused at 1.52c due to an eyeskip and fully regains control only at 1.54b.

1.55 Note that in pāda a śaṅkubhiḥ stands for śaṅkūṣu (instrumental for locative).

Each of those ten quadrillion is surrounded by a hundred quadrillion (parārdha). Each of those hundred quadrillion is surrounded by two hundred quadrillion (para). This is how it is taught, O Brahmin. The enumeration [of the rulers of the Brahmāṇḍa] has been taught as much as it is possible.

[pramāṇam — Measurements]

pramāṇam śṛṇu me vipra saṃkṣepād bruvato mama |
candrodaye pūrṇamāsyāṃ vapur aṇḍasya tādṛśam || 1:58 ||

Listen to me and learn about the measurements [of Brahmā's Egg], O Brahmin, I shall teach [you] in a concise manner. The body of the Egg is like that of [the moon] at moonrise on the day of the full moon.

koṭīkoṭisahasraṃ tu yojanānāṃ samantataḥ |
aṇḍānāṃ ca parīmāṇam brahmaṇā parikīrtitam || 1:59 ||

The whole circumference of the Egg has been declared by Brahmā to be ten million (koṭi) times a thousand times ten million yojanas.

saptakoṭisahasrāṇi saptakoṭīśatāni ca |
viṃśakoṭīṣv aṅgulīṣu ūrdhvas tapate raviḥ || 1:60 ||

The Sun shines from the height of seven thousand seven hundred and twenty koṭi finger's breadth.

pramāṇam nāma saṃkhyā ca kīrtitāni samāsataḥ |
brahmāṇḍam cāprameyānāṃ lakṣaṇam parikīrtitam || 1:61 ||

The numbers pertaining to the measurements have been taught in brief. The characteristics of the unmeasurable Brahmāṇḍa[s] have been taught.

1.59 I suspect that the plural form aṇḍānāṃ is accidental and what is meant is a singular.

1.60 This verse is the reply to the question in 1.36cd, which contains the word aṅguli: this hints at the possibility that the unintelligible gulmeṣu transmitted in most of the witnesses might be corrupted from aṅgulīṣu; hence my conjecture, resulting in a ra-vipulā.

1.61 Note the mixture of different grammatical genders and numbers in this verse. Understand pramāṇeṣu saṃkhyāḥ kīrtitāḥ samāsataḥ and brahmāṇḍānāṃ aprameyānāṃ, or brahmāṇḍasyāprameyasya, which is even metrical.

[purāṇam — Redactors of the Purāṇa[s]]
purāṇāśīsahasrāṇi śatāni dvijasattama |
brahmaṇā kathitaṃ pūrṇaṃ mātariśvā yathātatham || 1:62 ||

O truest of the twice-born, the Purāṇa[s of] 8,000,000 [verses] were taught by [1] Brahmā to [2] Mātariśvan [= Vāyu] in their entirety, in their true form.

1.62 Pāda a should probably be analysed and interpreted as purāṇam brahmaṇā kathitam, or rather, purāṇānām aśītisahasrāṇi śatāni ślokaṇi brahmaṇā kathitāni. Alternatively, pāda a may have originally read purāṇāni sahasrāṇi, and then the initial number of verses transmitted by Brahmā is a hundred thousand. That the number refers to the number of ślokas transmitted is confirmed in 1.65d: viṃśatślokaśasrikam.

In pāda d, either understand mātariśvā (nom.) as mātariśvānam (acc.) or emend kathitaṃ to kathitaḥ in the sense ‘Mātariśvan was taught,’ echoing 1.38cd: brahmaṇā yat purāṇāyāto mātariśvā yathā tathā.

On the idea that initially there was only one Purāṇa, see, e.g., Rocher 1986, 41ff. Compare the list in the VSS to a list of twenty-eight vedavyāsas, from Brahmā to Vyāsa Dvaipāyana, in ViṣṇuP 3.3.10–19, taught by Parāśara, the twenty-sixth vyāsa of this list and our text (in the numbering that I add here I follow the translation in Dutt 1896, 178–179):

Another relevant passage is BrahmanḍaP 3.4.58cd–67 (≈ VāyuP 2.41.58–67). Note how Ṛṇabindu is, perhaps by mistake, different from Somaśuṣma/Śuṣmāyaṇa here, but,

vāyunā pāda saṃkṣīpya prāptam cośanasam purā |
tenāpi pāda saṃkṣīpya prāptavāṃś ca bṛhaspatiḥ || 1:63 ||

Vāyu abridged the verses and then gave [the Purāṇas] to [3] Uśanas.
 He [Uśanas] also abridged the verses, and [4] Bṛhaspati received them.

bṛhaspatis tu provāca sūryam triṃśatsahasrikam |
pañcaviṃśatsahasrāṇi mṛtyuṃ prāha divākaraḥ || 1:64 ||

Bṛhaspati taught 30,000 [verses] to [5] Sūrya [the Sun]. Divākara
 [= the Sun] taught 25,000 [verses] to [6] Mṛtyu [Death].

ekaviṃśatsahasrāṇi mṛtyunendrāya kīrtitam |
indreṇāha vasiṣṭhāya viṃśatslokaśahasrikam || 1:65 ||

more importantly, note Amitabuddhi of VSS 1.75b appearing at the end of this list:

[1] brahmā dadau śāstram idam purāṇam [2] mātariśvane ||

The list of vedavyāsas in LiP 1.7.15–18 includes these twenty-five names: Kratu, Satya, Bhārgava, Aṅgiras, Savitr, Mṛtyu, Śatakratu, Vasiṣṭha, Sārasvata, Tridhāman, Trivṛta, Śatatejas, Tarakṣu, Āruṇi, Kṛtañjaya, Rṭamañjaya, Bharadvāja, Gautama, Vācaśravas, Trṇabindu, Rūkṣa, Śakti, Jātukarṇya, Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana.

1.63 Note the stem form noun pāda twice in this verse and the slightly odd grammatical structure in pāda b, (purāṇam) prāptam uśanasam ('the Purāṇa reached Uśanas'), as opposed to the solution in pāda d with prāptavān.

1.64 Pāda a is a ma-vipulā, or simply a pathyā if pra in provāca does not turn the previous syllable long (krama licence).

Mṛtyu taught 21,000 [verses] to [7] Indra. Indra taught 20,000 verses to [8] Vasiṣṭha.

*aṣṭādaśasahasrāṇi tena sārasvatāya tu |
sārasvatas tridhāmāya sahasradaśa sapta ca || 1:66 ||*

And he[, Vasiṣṭha, taught] 18,000 [verses] to [9] Sārasvata. Sārasvata [taught] 17,000 [verses] to [10] Tridhāma[n].

*śoḍaśānāṃ sahasrāṇi bharadvājāya vai tataḥ |
daśa pañcasahasrāṇi trivṛṣāya abhāṣata || 1:67 ||*

[He taught] 16,000 verses to [11] Bharadvāja. [Bharadvāja] taught 15,000 verses to [12] Trivṛṣa.

*caturdaśasahasrāṇi antarīkṣāya vai tataḥ |
trayyāruṇiṃ sahasrāṇi trayodaśa abhāṣata || 1:68 ||*

[Trivṛṣa] then [taught] 14,000 verses to [13] Antarīkṣa. [Antarīkṣa] taught 13,000 [verses] to [14] Trayyāruṇi.

*trayyāruṇis tu viprendro dhanamjayam abhāṣata |
dvādaśāni sahasrāṇi saṃkṣīpya punar abravīt || 1:69 ||*

Trayyāruṇi, the great Brahmin, having abridged them again, taught 12,000 [verses] to [15] Dhanamjaya.

*kṛtaṃjayāya samprāpto dhanamjayamahāmuniḥ |
kṛtaṃjayād dvijaśreṣṭha ṛṇamjayamahātmane || 1:70 ||*

Dhanamjaya, the great sage, handed [them] over to [16] Kṛtaṃjaya. [That recension was transmitted] from Kṛtaṃjaya, O best of the twice-born, to [17] noble Ṛṇamjaya.

*ṛṇāñjayāt punaḥ prāpto gautamāya maharṣiṇe |
gautamāc ca bharadvājas tasmād dharyadvatāya tu || 1:71 ||*

1.70 Note the odd structure in pādas ab: dhanamjayayaḥ kṛtaṃjayāya samprāptaḥ, for a more standard dhanamjayena (purāṇam) samprāpitaṃ kṛtaṃjayam ('the Purāṇa was transmitted to Kṛtaṃjaya').

Then from Ṛṇamjaya it was given to [18] Gautama, the great sage, from Gautama to [19] Bharadvāja, from him to [20] Haryadvata.

*rājaśravās tataḥ prāptaḥ somaśuṣmāya vai tataḥ |
somaśuṣmāt tataḥ prāptas tṛṇabindus tu bho dvija || 1:72 ||*

Then [21] Rājaśravas received it, then [22] Somaśuṣma. Then from Somaśuṣma [23] Tṛṇabindu received it, O twice-born.

*tṛṇabindus tu vṛkṣāya vṛkṣaḥ śaktim abhāṣata |
śaktiḥ parāśaram prāha jatukarṇāya vai tataḥ || 1:73 ||*

Tṛṇabindu taught it to [24] Vṛkṣa, Vṛkṣa to [25] Śakti [the father of Parāśara]. Śakti taught it to [26] Parāśara, then [Parāśara] to [27] Jatukarṇa.

*dvaipāyanam tu provāca jatukarṇo maharṣiṇam |
romaharṣāya samprāpto dvaipāyanamahāmuniḥ || 1:74 ||*

Jatukarṇa taught it to [28] [Vyāsa] Dvaipāyana, the great sage. Dvaipāyana, the great sage, gave it to [29] Romaharṣa.

*romaharṣeṇa provāca putrāyāmitabuddhaye |
daśa dve ca sahasrāṇi purāṇam samprakāśitam |
mānuṣāṇām hitārthāya kiṃ bhūyaḥ śrotum icchasi || 1:75 ||*

Romaharṣa taught the Purāṇa[s] of 12,000 [verses], now fully revealed, to his son, [30] Amitabuddhi, for the benefit of humankind.

1.71 The structure of pādas ab is as odd as that of 1.70ab. What was intended is probably ṛṇaṇjayena prāpitam gautamāya. Many of the syntactic oddities in this and other chapters might betray an influence of classical Newar. See pp. 30. The name Haryadvata in pāda d seem to be a variant on the attested forms Haryadvata and Haryātman (the latter is in the list of vedavyāsas in ViṣṇuP 3.3.16–17, see note to 1.62 above).

1.72 The syntax is again slightly odd here. The intention may have been prāpitam rājaśravasā somaśuṣmāya... tatas tṛṇabindunā prāptam.

1.73 In other list of vedavyāsas, Tṛṇabindu hands the Purāṇas down to Ṛkṣa, Rūkṣa or Dakṣa (see note to 1.62 above). vṛkṣa in pāda a is probably a corrupted form. The name Jatukarṇa may be a corrupted form of Jātū- or Jātukarṇa.

1.74 Pādas ab are a pathyā if pra in provāca does not turn the previous syllable long (krama licence). The syntax of pādas cd echoes that of 1.70ab above.

What else do you wish to know?

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe brahmāṇḍasaṃkhyā nāmādhyaḃyaḥ prathamah ||

Here ends the first chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgrāha called Description of Brahmā's Egg.

1.75 Romaharṣa is usually considered to be the same person as Sūta, disciple of Vyāsa Dvaipāyana.

In Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa 3.4.67ab (mayā caitat punaḥ proktaṃ putrāyāmitabuddhaye, see note to 1.62 above) Amitabuddhi is clearly the name (or epithet) of Romaharṣa's son. This suggests that the reading romaharṣāya in some of the MSS in pāda a is a mistake for romaharṣas'ca, or similar. MS M is either transmitting an otherwise syntactically problematic reading (romaharṣeṇa) that is more original than that in most other witnesses, or M's scribe is trying to correct the text. Supposing the former, in this case I accepted M's reading. Note that the extent of the transmitted text (12,000 *śloka*s) has not changed since Trayyārūṇi (1.69).

Manuscripts C₀₂ and M place the iti of the colophon at the end of the last śloka, before the daṇḍas, thus: icchaṣīti ||O|| (C₀₂) and icchasi iti ||o|| (M). Note also that M gives the number of *śloka*s in this chapter, 77, which is close to the number of verses this critical edition has produced. The scribe of M struggled with eyeskips in this chapter, therefore it seems unlikely that he himself counted the number of verses he had copied and arrived at this very figure. Rather, he copied the number from his exemplar.

[Chapter Two]

vigatarāga uvāca |
śrutam mayā janāgreṇa brahmāṇḍasya tu nirṇayam |
pramāṇam varṇarūpaṃ ca saṃkhyā tasya samāsataḥ || 2:1 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: I have heard the description of Brahmā's Egg (brahmāṇḍa) from [you,] the best of men, its extent, colour, form, and the numbers associated with it, in a concise manner.

śivāṇḍeti tvayā prokto brahmāṇḍālayakīrtitaḥ |
kīdrśam lakṣaṇam jñeyam pramāṇam tasya vā kati || 2:2 ||

You mentioned Śiva's Egg (śivāṇḍa) as taught to be the receptacle of Brahmā's Egg (brahmāṇḍa). What are its characteristics and how much is its extent?

kasya vā layanam jñeyam pramāṇam vātra vāsinaḥ |
kā vā tatra prajā jñeyā ko vā tatra prajāpatiḥ || 2:3 ||

And whose dwelling place is it? And [what] is the extent of the inhabitants thereof? What kind of subjects live there? And who is the ruler (prajāpati) there?

[śivāṇḍasaṃkhyā — Summary of the Śivāṇḍa]

anarthayaājña uvāca |
śivāṇḍalakṣaṇam vipra na tvaṃ praṣṭum ihārhasi |
daivatair api kā śaktir jñātum draṣṭum ca tattvataḥ || 2:4 ||

2.1 It is unlikely that janāgreṇa picks up mayā ('by me, the best of men'). Instead, I suppose that this instrumental could be understood as 'through the best of man,' or rather, simply taken as an ablative ('from the best of men').

2.2 The location where the Śivāṇḍa was mentioned is verse 1.39a above.

2.3 vā layanam in pāda a may stand for vā-ālayanam, in the sense of vā-ālayam. The questions in this verse are most probably answered in verses 2.26–33, and if my interpretation is correct there, pramāṇam vātra vāsinaḥ (understand vāsinaṃ) and pāda c should refer to the number of inhabitants in the five regions of Īśāna, Tatpuruṣa, etc., deities who are referred to here in pādas a and possibly d.

Anarthayañña spoke: Please don't ask me about the characteristics of Śiva's Egg (śivāṇḍa), O Brahmin. How could even the gods have the power to really know and see Śiva's Egg?

agamyagamanam guhyam guhyād api samuddhitam |
na prabhur netaras tatra na daṇḍyo na ca daṇḍakaḥ || 2:5 ||

The path leading to it is not to be trodden, it is more secret than any secret, and it is lofty. There is no master or servant there, nobody to be punished and no punisher.

na satyo nānṛtas tatra suśīlo no duḥśīlavān |
nānṛjur na ca dambhitvaṃ na tṛṣṇā na ca īrṣyatā || 2:6 ||

There are no truthful or untruthful people there, no moral or immoral people, no crooked people, no hypocrisy, no thirst or envy.

na krodho na ca lobho 'sti na māno 'sti na sūyakaḥ |
īrṣyā dveṣo na tatrāsti na śaṭho na ca matsaraḥ || 2:7 ||

There is no anger or greed there, no arrogance or discontent ([a]sūyaka), no envy or hatred, no cheaters and no jealousy.

na vyādhir na jarā tatra na śoko 'sti na viklavaḥ |
nādhamaḥ puruṣas tatra nottamo na ca madhyamaḥ || 2:8 ||

There is no disease, no aging, no grief and no agitation there, there are no inferior or superior people and there is nobody in-between.

notkṛṣṭo mānavas tasmin striyaś caiva śivālaye |
na nindā na praśamsāsti matsarī piśuno na ca || 2:9 ||

2.5 samuddhitam in pāda b is suspect. Emending it to samuddhṛtam would not be fully satisfactory, and the readings transmitted in the witnesses are problematic. M, a MS not collated for this chapter, gives a confusing reading: saṁmurdhniḍam. I doubt if E's saṁyaddhidam ('yielding success') is the correct reading. Perhaps samudāhṛtam ('declared, talked about as'), or samāvṛtam ('guarded') was meant. It is not inconceivable that agamyagabanaṃ in C₀₂ (and MK₄₁; 'it is inaccessible because of its depth') is original and is to be contrasted with samuddhṛtam ('lofty'). One also wonders if guhād could be the right reading, and in what sense, in pāda b.

2.6 Strictly speaking duḥśīlavān in pāda b is unmetrical; understand or pronounce duśīlavān. īrṣyatā (for īrṣyā, see 2.7a) is a form rarely attested.

2.7 na sūyakaḥ in pāda b stands for na asūyaka metri causa.

There are no privileged men or women there in Śiva's abode, no reproach or praise, no selfish or treacherous people.

garvadarpaṃ na tatrāsti krūramāyādikam tathā |
yācamāno na tatrāsti dātā caiva na vidyate || 2:10 ||

There is no pride or arrogance there, no cruelty or trickery and so on. There are no beggars and no donors there.

anarthī vraja tatrasthaḥ kalpavṛkṣasamāśritaḥ |
na karma nāpriyas tatra na kaliḥ kalaho na ca || 2:11 ||

Go without material desires (anarthin). Being there you'll be resting under a wishing tree. There is no karma there and no enemy. No Kali age is there and there is no fighting.

dvāparo na ca na tretā kṛtaṃ cāpi na vidyate |
manvantaram na tatrāsti kalpaś caiva na vidyate || 2:12 ||

There is no Dvāpara age or Tretā or Kṛta. There are no Manu-eras (manvantara) there and no æons (kalpa).

ābhūtasamplavaṃ nāsti brahmarātridinaṃ tathā |
na janmamaraṇaṃ tatra āpadaṃ nāpnuyāt kvacit || 2:13 ||

No universal floods of destruction come, and there are no days and nights of Brahmā. There is no birth and death there and one never encounters catastrophes.

na cāśāpāśabaddho 'sti rāgamohaṃ na vidyate |
na devā nāsurās tatra na yakṣoragarākṣasāḥ || 2:14 ||

Nobody is tied to the noose of hope and there is no passion or delusion. There are no gods and demons there and no Yakṣas, Serpents and Rākṣasas.

2.11 Note the term anartī in pāda a: it might have something to do with non-material sacrifice (anarthayajña), the topic of chapter 11, and with our interlocutor Anarthayajña. My emendation in pāda c from na priyas ('no lover/husband') to nāpriyas ('no enemy') might not be necessary but it seems more meaningful than the transmitted readings.

2.12 On manvantaras and kalpas, see 1.22–23 above.

2.13 ābhūtasamplava for the more widely attested form ābhūtasamplava occurs, e.g., in some MSS transmitting ŚDhŚ 10.77 and 81 (see Bisschop et al. forthcoming).

na bhūtā na piśācāś ca gandharvā ṛṣayas tathā |
tārāgrahaṃ na tatrāsti nāgakiṃnaragārudaṃ || 2:15 ||

There are neither Ghosts nor Piśācas, no Gandharvas and no Ṛṣis.
There are no planets there, no Nāgas, Kiṃnaras or Garuḍa-like creatures.

na japo nāhnikas tatra nāgnihotrī na yajñakṛt |
na vratam na tapaś caiva na tiryāṇnarakaṃ tathā || 2:16 ||

There are no recitations or daily rituals there, nobody performs the Agnihotra and there are no sacrificers. There are no religious observances and no austerities and no ‘animal hell’.

tasyeśānasya devasya aiśvaryaguṇavistaram |
apī varṣaśatenāpi śakyam vaktum na kenacit || 2:17 ||

Nobody would be able to tell the extent of the qualities of the god Īśāna’s powers, not even in a hundred years.

harecchāprabhavāḥ sarve paryāyeṇa bravīmi te |
devamānuṣavarjyāni vṛkṣagulmalatādayaḥ || 2:18 ||

All are born by Hara’s wish. I shall teach [them] to you one by one, gods and people, and trees, bushes, creepers, etc.

2.16 The phrase of tiryāṇnaraka appears in MBh 3.181.18ab: aśubhaiḥ karmabhiḥ pāpāś tiryāṇnarakagāmināḥ. Here Ganguli 1883–1896 translates tiryāṇ separately as ‘in a crooked way,’ but I suspect that in the VSS tiryāṇnaraka has more to do with tiraggati, being reduced to animal existence, being reborn as an animal or entering a hell in animal form. Cf. MBh Suppl. 13.15.2615–16:

nṛṣu janma labhante ye karmaṇā madhyamāḥ smṛtāḥ |
tiryāṇnarakagantāro hy adhamās te narādhamaḥ ||
and UMS 6.1:

avamanyanti ye viprān sarvaloke namaskṛtān |
narakaṃ yānti te sarve tiryagyonim vrajanti ca ||

I suspect that nātiryā° in the witnesses is only a scribal mistake for na tiryā°.

2.17 My translation of aiśvaryaguṇa° is tentative. It could be taken as a dvandva compound (e.g. ‘supremacy and qualities’). The expression sarva° or aṣṭaiśvaryaguṇopeta occurs frequently, e.g. in ŚivaP 7.2.8.28ab and SkandaP 55.30cd, and ŚDhU 2.6, 79, 125, 127, with aiśvaryā most probably referring to the eight siddhis aṇiman, laghiman etc. De Simini (2016a, 386), e.g., translates sarvaiśvaryaguṇopetaḥ in ŚDhU 2.127 as ‘endowed with all the qualities of lordship.’

2.18 Treat pāda a as if the object of bravīmi. Note the gender confusion in this verse. In pāda c, °varjyāni is suspect. I take it as if it stood for vargāḥ/vargāṇi, and not in the sense of ‘excluding,’ because gods and people are in fact, albeit vaguely, mentioned below.

parārdhadvigūṇotsedho vistāraś ca tathāvidbhaḥ |
anekākārapuṣpāṇi phalāni ca manoharam || 2:19 ||

The height [of the Śivāṇḍa] is two parārdhas, and [its] width is the same. There are lovely flowers of varied shape [there] and also lovely fruits.

anye kāñcanavṛkṣāṇi maṇivṛkṣāṇy athāpare |
pravālamaniṣaṇḍāś ca padmarāgaruhāṇi ca || 2:20 ||

There are also golden trees and also gem trees, coral gem thickets and ruby plants.

svādumūlaphalāḥ skandhalatāviṭapapādapāḥ |
kāmarūpāś ca te sarve kāmādāḥ kāmabhāṣiṇaḥ || 2:21 ||

There are tasty roots and fruits and trees with creepers on their twigs. All are shape-shifters and they fulfil desires and they whisper seductively.

tatra vipra prajāḥ sarve anantaguṇasāgarāḥ |
tulyarūpabalāḥ sarve sūryāyutasamaprabhāḥ || 2:22 ||

There [in the Śivāṇḍa], O Brahmin, all the subjects are oceans of endless virtues. They are all equally beautiful and strong, and they shine like millions of suns.

parārdhadvayavistāraṃ parārdhadvayam āyatam |
parārdhadvayavikṣepaṃ yojanānāṃ dvijottama || 2:23 ||

[Śiva's Egg] is two parārdhas long and two parārdhas wide, and two parārdhas is its [vertical] extension, [measured] in yojanas, O great Brahmin.

2.19 I understand pāda a as parārdhadvigūṇa utsedho, i.e. as an example of double sandhi. On the other hand, °sedho is only my conjecture, and may refer to something else than the Śivāṇḍa. Note the number confusion in pāda d, and also that two parārdhas is one para, the highest possible number according to verses 1.34–35 above. The number may refer to any unit of length, but 2.23 below suggests that it is yojanas.

2.20 Note that both anye and apare here pick up neuter nouns (gender confusion).

2.21 My conjectures in pādas ab result in a compound spanning the cæsura, which may have been the reason why the line got corrupted.

aiśvaryatvaṃ na saṃkhyāsti balaśaktiś ca bho dvija |
adhordhvo na ca saṃkhyāsti na tiryāñ caiti kaścana || 2:24 ||

[Īśāna's] powers cannot be expressed by numbers, neither can [His] powerfulness, O twice-born. [In fact, the distances in Śiva's Egg] downwards and upwards cannot be expressed by numbers. Nobody can traverse through it.

śivāṇḍasya ca vistāram āyāmaṃ ca na vedmy aham |
bhogam akṣaya tatraiva janmamṛtyur na vidyate || 2:25 ||

[In reality,] I do not know the length and width of Śiva's Egg. Enjoyment is undecaying there, and there is no birth or death there.

śivāṇḍamadhyam āśritya gokṣīrasadṛśaprabhāḥ |
parārdhaparakoṭīnām īśānānām smṛtālayaḥ || 2:26 ||

In the centre of Śiva's Egg, [creatures] shine like cow's milk. [It is] said to be the region (ālaya) of those belonging to Īśāna, one and a half para crore in number.

bālasūryaprabhāḥ sarve jñeyās tatpuruṣālaye |
parārdhaparakoṭīnām pūrvasyām diśam āśritāḥ || 2:27 ||

2.24 Pādas ab are an echo of 2.17b. kaścana in pāda d forces us to accept the reading in K₈₂^{pc} K₇ (caiti), as opposed to ceti in the remaining witnesses. Alternatively translate as '[The distances in Śiva's Egg] downwards and upwards and horizontally cannot be expressed by numbers, some people say.'

2.25 Pāda c is transmitted in an unmetrical form and with a gender problem in the witnesses (bhogam akṣayas, including paper MS K₄₁, not collated here), hence my emendation using a stem form noun, a phenomenon frequently seen in this text. But note that bhoga is normally masculine; there might be a hiatus-filler in-between: bhoga-m-akṣaya.

2.26 Note the stem form smṛta in pāda d (cf. 2.29d). I understand īśānānām as aiśānānām.

Īśāna is traditionally the upward-looking face of Śiva, his region is positioned in the centre here. Note that the somewhat cryptic third pādas here and in the coming verses may or may not refer to the number of creatures living in the given region. They may tell us about the extent of the given region, although the numbers are much higher than what one would expect after verse 2.23.

They are all like the rising sun in the region of Tatpuruṣa. They are one and a half para crore in number, living in the east.

bhinnāñjanaprabhāḥ sarve dakṣiṇām diśam āśritāḥ |
parārdhaparakoṭīnām aghorālayam āśritāḥ || 2:28 ||

Everybody is like collyrium in the southern direction, in the region of Aghora, one and a half para crore in number.

kundendubimaśailābhāḥ paścimām diśam āśritāḥ |
parārdhaparakoṭīnām sadya-m-iṣṭālayaḥ smṛtaḥ || 2:29 ||

In the western direction, they are like jasmine, the moon, like snowy rocks. Sadyojāta's lovely region is [home] to one and a half para crore [people].

kuṅkumodakasamkāśā uttarām diśam āśritāḥ |
parārdhaparakoṭīnām vāmadevālayaḥ smṛtaḥ || 2:30 ||

In the northern direction, they are like saffron in water. Vāmadeva's region is [home] to one and a half para crore [people].

īśānasya kalāḥ pañca vaktrasyāpi catuṣkalāḥ |
aghorasya kalā aṣṭau vāmadevās trayodaśa || 2:31 ||

Īśāna has five parts (kalā), [his Tatpuruṣa] face has four. Aghora has eight, and there are thirteen Vāmadeva[-kalā]s.

2.27 The genitive of parārdhaparakoṭīnām is baffling here and in the coming verses, but I suspect that again the expression gives the number of subjects living in the given region. pūrvasyām is meant to mean pūrvām (cf. dakṣiṇām, paścimām, and uttarām in the next verses); note how K₁₀ tries to save the construction by reading diśi-m.

This verse conforms to the traditional view that Śiva's Tatpuruṣa-face is looking towards the eastern direction.

2.28 Note the Aīśa form diśim in C₄₅ (see, e.g., Kiss 2015, 83, §26), and that Aghora is indeed usually south-facing.

2.29 Note the Aīśa form diśim in K₇ in pāda b. In pāda d, we may presuppose the presence of a sandhi-bridge: sadya-m-iṣṭālayaḥ. Sadyojāta is traditionally associated with the western direction.

2.30 Note the Aīśa form diśim in C₉₄ in pāda b. Vāmadeva is traditionally associated with the western direction.

2.31 Note how vaktrasya should refer to Śiva's Tatpuruṣa-face, given that the text lists Śiva's five faces: Īśāna, Tatpuruṣa, Aghora, Vāmadeva, Sadyojāta.

sadyaś cāṣṭau kalā jñeyāḥ saṃsārārṇavatārakāḥ |
aṣṭatrimśat kalā hy etāḥ kīrtitā dvijasattama || 2:32 ||

Sadyojāta has eight parts. These parts, altogether thirty-eight, which liberate us from the ocean of existence, have been taught, O truest Brahmin.

saṃkhyā varṇā diśaś caiva ekaikasya prṭhak prṭhak |
pūrvoktena vidhānena bodhavyās tattvacintakaiḥ || 2:33 ||

Those who explore the truth should know the numbers, the colours, and directions associated with each one [of Śiva's faces] in the way taught above.

śivāṇḍagamanākṛṣṭyā śivayogaṃ sadābhyaset |
śivayogaṃ vinā vipra tatra gantum na śakyate || 2:34 ||

If one has the intention to go to the Śiva's Egg, one should practise Śiva-yoga regularly. Without Śiva-yoga, O Brahmin, it is impossible to go there.

aśvamedhādiyajñānām koṭyāyutaśatāni ca |
kṛcchrāditapa sarvāṇi kṛtvā kalpaśatāni ca |
tatra gantum na śakyeta devair api tapodhana || 2:35 ||

[Even] by [performing] millions of sacrifices such as the Aśvamedha, or by performing all the difficult austerities such as the kṛcchra for a hundred kalpas, it is impossible to get there even for the gods, O great ascetic.

gaṅgādisarvatīrtheṣu snātvā taptvā ca vai punaḥ |
tatra gantum na śakyeta ṛṣibhir vā mahātmabhiḥ || 2:36 ||

By [merely] bathing and performing austerities at all the sacred places such as the Gaṅgā, even the honorable Ṛṣis will not be able to get there.

2.32 Note sadyaś in pāda a for sadyaśaś or sadyojātasya.

2.34 °ākṛṣṭyā ('because of being drawn to' or 'with the intention of') in pāda a might be corrupt. Perhaps understand °ākṛṣṭaḥ ('he who is attracted to').

2.35 Understand kṛcchrāditapa sarvāṇi as kṛcchrāditapāṃsi sarvāṇi. It can be considered an instance of the use of a stem form noun. On the specific penance called kṛcchra, which involves having to sleep in a sitting position, see, e.g., Kane 1941–1962, 120.

*saptadvīpasamudrāṇi ratnapūrṇāni bho dvija |
dattvā vā vedaviduṣe śraddhābhaktisamanvitaḥ |
tatra gantum na śakyeta vinā dhyānena niścayaḥ || 2:37 ||*

Or [even] by donating the oceans of the seven islands with all their gems to a Veda expert, O Brahmin, with faith and devotion, one will not be able to go there without meditation. [This is a] certainty.

*svadehān māṃsam uddhṛtya dattvārthibhyaś ca niścayāt |
svadāraputrasarvasvaṃ śiro 'rthibhyaś ca yo dadet |
na tatra gantum śakyeta anyair vāpi suduṣkaraiḥ || 2:38 ||*

He who carves out flesh from his own body and gives it without hesitation to those who are in need of it, or he who gives away his wife, his son and his possessions or his own head to those in need, or he who [performs] other difficult deeds, will not be able to go there [by merely doing these].

*yajñatīrthatapodānavedādhyayanapāragaḥ |
brahmāṇḍāntasya bhogāṃs tu bhuṅkte kālavaśānugaḥ || 2:39 ||*

He who has completed the sacrifices, the pilgrimages, the austerities, the gifting, the study of the Vedas, will experience [only] those enjoyments that Brahmā's Egg offers, still being subject to time and death.

*kālena samapreṣyeṇa dharmo yāti parikṣayam |
alātacakravat sarvaṃ kālo yāti paribhraman |
traikālyakalanāt kālas tena kālaḥ prakīrtitaḥ || 2:40 ||*

Dharma decays tossed forward by time. Time flies moving everything round and round like a circle of burning coal. Time is called kāla because of the waves (kalana) of the three divisions of time [past, present, future].

2.38 For examples of legends that involve donating one's own flesh, see VSS 17.37–40 (Uśīnara, Alarka). See also 6.26. Examples of people donating family members include VSS chapter 12 (Vipula giving away his wife), and 17.41 (Sudāsa's story).

2.40 Notice the krama licence in pāda a: samapre^o renders as short-short-long. I take samapreṣyena as if it read sampreṣito, picking up dharmo; otherwise it is difficult to make sense of it. As Kenji Takahashi pointed out to me, Fitzgerald 2012 is a good starting point to understand the implication of alātacakra, 'a single, rapidly twirled torch creat[ing] the illusion of an apparently real, continuous circle' (ibid., p. 777). The function of sarvaṃ in pāda a becomes clear only if we understand paribhraman in a causative sense (for paribhramayan). One cannot help noticing that this verse would be in a more fitting context after verse 1.30, at the end of a section on kāla. On the other hand, it leads us to the next topic, Dharma, smoothly.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe śivāṇḍasaṃkhyā nāmādhyaṃ dvitīyaḥ ||

Here ends the second chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgrāha called Description of Śiva's Egg.

[Chapter Three]

[dharmapravacanam — Exposition of Dharma]

vigatarāga uvāca |
kimarthaṃ dharmam ity ābuh katimūrtiś ca kīrtyate |
katipādavr̥ṣo jñeyo gatis tasya kati smṛtāḥ || 3:1 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: Why do they call it Dharma? And how many embodiments (mūrti) is it known to have? It is known as a bull: how many legs does it have? How many are its paths?

kautūhalaṃ mamotpannam saṃśayaṃ chindhi tattvataḥ |
kaśya putro munīśreṣṭha prajāś tasya kati smṛtāḥ || 3:2 ||

I have become curious [about these questions]. Put an end to my doubts for good. Whose son is [Dharma], O best of sages? How many children does he have?

anarthayajña uvāca |
dhṛtir ity eṣa dhātur vai paryāyaḥ parikīrtitaḥ |
ādhāraṇān mahattvāc ca dharmā ity abhidhīyate || 3:3 ||

3.1 For the correct interpretation of pāda a—namely to decide whether these questions focus on the bull of Dharma (“Why do they call the bull Dharma?”) or on Dharma itself/himself (“Why is Dharma called Dharma?”)—see the end of the previous chapter, where dharmā was mentioned (2.40b), and to which the present verse is a reaction. Therefore, the focus is not so much on the bull but on Dharma. Compare also MBh 12.110.10–11:

prabhāvārthāya bhūtānāṃ dharmapravacanam kṛtam |
yat syād abhimsāsamuktam sa dharmā iti niścayaḥ ||
dhāraṇād dharmā ity ābur dharmeṇa vidhṛtāḥ prajāḥ |
yat syād dhāraṇasamuktam sa dharmā iti niścayaḥ ||.

Note the similarities of the above passage from the MBh with this present VSS chapter: the phrase dharmā ity ābur, the fact that the present chapter from verse 18 on is actually a chapter on abhimsā, and that the etymological explanation involves the word [ā]dhāraṇa in both cases. The above have led me to think that in pāda a of the verse in the VSS it is Dharma that is the focus of the inquiry, as in the MBh, and not the bull.

Understand pāda d as gatayas tasya kati smṛtāḥ. I have accepted smṛtāḥ because this plural at the end of the phrase signals that gatis is meant to be plural, similarly to what happens in 3.6cd (tasya patnī...mahābhāgāḥ). On this, see p. 31. On Dharma as a bull, see pp. 6.

Anarthayañña spoke: Well, dhṛti (‘firmness’), [of] the [same] verbal root [as dharma], is said to be [its] synonym. It is called dharma because it supports (āDHĀRaṇa) and because it is great (MAhat-tva).

śrutismṛtidvayor mūrtiś catuṣpādavṛṣaḥ sthitaḥ |
caturāśrama yo dharmāḥ kīrtitāni manīṣibhiḥ || 3:4 ||

The four-legged Bull is the embodiment of both Śruti and Smṛti.
It is Dharma, as made up of the four disciplines (āśrama).

gatiś ca pañca vijñeyāḥ śṛṇu dharmasya bho dvija |
devamānuṣatiryam ca narakasthāvarādayaḥ || 3:5 ||

And the paths of Dharma are five. Listen, O Brahmin: [existence as] gods, men, animals, [existence in] hell and [as] vegetables, etc.

3.3 For similar Purāṇic passages on the etymology of dharma, see the apparatus to this verse.

The insertion ‘[of] the [same]’ in my translation solves the slight problem of a noun (dhṛti) being considered a verbal root (dhātu) here. For similar passages with nominal stems apparently being treated as dhātus, see, e.g., Vāyupurāṇa 3.17cd: bhāvya ity eṣa dhātur vai bhāvye kāle vibhāvyaṭe; Vāyupurāṇa 3.19cd (= Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa 1.38.21ab): nātha ity eṣa dhātur vai dhātujñaiḥ pālāne smṛtaḥ; Liṅgapurāṇa 2.9.19: bhaja ity eṣa dhātur vai sevāyām parikīrtitaḥ.

3.4 Understand pādas c and d as catvāri āśramāṇi kīrtitāni dharmo manīṣibhiḥ or yo dharmāḥ kīrtitaś caturāśramāṇi manīṣibhiḥ or yo dharmāś caturāśramaḥ kīrtito manīṣibhiḥ. Judit Törzsök suggested that caturāśrama and dharmāḥ may be interpreted as a split compound here.

An image of the four divisions or legs of Dharma being the four āśramas—and not three, as it may seem, at least according to Olivelle 1993, 99 and Ganguli 1883–1896, Śāntiparvan CCLXX—is hinted at MBh 12.262.19–21:

dharmam ekaṃ catuṣpādam āśritās te naraṣabbhāḥ |
taṃ santo vidhivat prāpya gacchanti paramām gatim ||
grhebhya eva niṣkramya vanam anye samāśritāḥ |
grham evābhisamśritya tato 'nye brahmacāriṇaḥ ||
dharmam etaṃ catuṣpādam āśramaṃ brāhmaṇā viduḥ |
ānantiyaṃ brahmaṇaḥ sthānaṃ brāhmaṇā nāma niścayaḥ ||

On the more frequently quoted interpretation of the four legs, see Olivelle 1993, 235, a translation of Manu 1.81–82: ‘Dharma and truth possess all four feet and are whole during the Kṛta yuga, and people did not obtain anything unrighteously (adharmaṇa). By obtaining, however, dharma has lost one foot during each of the other yugas and righteousness (dharma) likewise has diminished by one quarter due to theft, falsehood, and deceit.’

3.5 Note the use of the singular next to a number in pāda a, as in 3.1d. tirya seems to

brahmaṇo bṛdayaṃ bhittvā jāto dharmah sanātanaḥ |
tasya patnī mahābhāgā trayodaśa sumadhyamāḥ || 3:6 ||

Eternal Dharma was born after splitting Brahmā's heart. He has beautiful wives, thirteen in number, with nice waists.

dakṣakanyā viśālākṣī śraddhādyā sumanoharāḥ |
tasya putrāś ca pautrāś ca anekāś ca babbhūva ha |
eṣa dharmanisargo 'yaṃ kiṃ bhūyaḥ śrotum icchasi || 3:7 ||

They are Dakṣa's daughters, [called] Śraddhā and so on. They have huge eyes and they are beautiful. Numerous sons and grandsons were born to him. This is the nature of Dharma. What more do you wish to hear?

vigatarāga uvāca |
dharmapatnī viśeṣeṇa putras tebhyaḥ prthak prthak |
śrotum icchāmi tattvena kathayasva tapodhana || 3:8 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: I would like to hear about Dharma's wives truly and about each one of the sons born to them. Teach me, O great ascetic.

be an acceptable nominal stem in this text for tiryāñc. See, e.g., 4.6a: devamānuṣātīryeṣu. °ādayaḥ in pāda d seems superfluous, the verse having already listed five items.

3.6 Note the use of the singular in pādas cd. I have left sumadhyamāḥ as the manuscripts transmit it: it signals the presence of the plural. One might consider correcting mahābhāgā to mahābhāgās, but cf. p. 31 on grammatical number. In sum, understand tasya patnyo mahābhāgās trayodaśa sumadhyamāḥ.

3.7 śraddhāḍhyāḥ in pāda b is an attractive lectio difficilior ('they were rich in faith/devotion'), but I have finally decided to accept the easier and better-attested śraddhādyā[ḥ]. (Note that in fact the wives' names start with Śraddhā in 3.9.) Again, the plural forms °ādyāḥ could have been applied. I have chosen sumanoharāḥ in pāda b because having the required plural ending only at the end of the noun phrase, seems to be natural in the language of the VSS. Note the use of a singular verb instead of the required plural in pādas cd, babbhūva ha perhaps being a phonetic and metrically 'adjusted' equivalent, so to say, of babbhūvuh.

3.8 I could have emended tebhyaḥ to the correct feminine form tābhyaḥ, suspecting that it is only the result of some early confusion brought about by putras, but tebhyaḥ might be original, and it might even mean '[I wish to hear] about them [i.e., the sons].' Note again the use of the singular (nominative) for the plural (accusative) in pādas ab. Alternatively, emend dharmapatnī to dharmapatnīr (plural accusative) and putras to putrān to make them work with śrotum icchāmi.

anarthayajña uvāca |

śraddhā lakṣmīr dhṛtis tuṣṭiḥ puṣṭir medhā kriyā lajjā |

buddhiḥ śāntir vapuḥ kīrtiḥ siddhiḥ prasūtisambhavāḥ || 3:9 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: [Dharma's wives are] [1] Śraddhā ('Faith'), [2] Lakṣmī ('Prosperity'), [3] Dhṛti ('Resolution'), [4] Tuṣṭi ('Satisfaction'), [5] Puṣṭi ('Growth'), [6] Medhā ('Wisdom'), [7] Kriyā ('Labour'), [8] Lajjā ('Modesty'), [9] Buddhi ('Intelligence'), [10] Śānti ('Tranquillity'), [11] Vapuḥ ('Beauty'), [12] Kīrti ('Fame'), [13] Siddhi ('Success'), [all] born to Prasūti, Dakṣa's wife].

śraddhā kāmaḥ suto jāto darpo lakṣmīsutaḥ smṛtaḥ |

dhṛtyās tu niyamaḥ putraḥ saṁtoṣas tuṣṭijaḥ smṛtaḥ || 3:10 ||

Śraddhā's son is Kāma ('Desire'). Darpa ('Pride') is said to be Lakṣmī's son. Dhṛti's son is Niyama ('Rule'). Saṁtoṣa ('Satisfaction') is Tuṣṭi's son.

3.9 Note how lajjā in pāda b makes the line unmetrical.

For Dharma's thirteen wives and their sons, see, e.g., Līṅgapurāṇa 1.5.34–37 (note the similarity between the first line and VSS 3.6cd–7ab above):

dharmasya patnyaḥ śraddhādyaḥ kīrtitā vai trayodaśa |
tāsu dharmaprajāṃ vakṣye yathākramam anuttamam ||
kāmo darpo 'tha niyamaḥ saṁtoṣo lobha eva ca |
śrutas tu daṇḍaḥ samayo bodhaś caiva mahādyutiḥ ||
apramādaś ca vinayo vyavasāyo dvijottamāḥ |
kṣemaṃ sukhaṃ yaśaś caiva dharmaputrāś ca tāsu vai ||
dharmasya vai kriyāyāṃ tu daṇḍaḥ samaya eva ca |
apramādas tathā bodho buddher dharmasya tau sutau ||.

prasūtisambhavāḥ in pāda d is a rather bold conjecture that can be supported by two facts: firstly, the readings of the manuscripts are difficult to make sense of and thus are probably corrupt; secondly, a corruption from the name Prasūti, traditionally the name of Dakṣa's wife, to ābhūti is relatively easily to explain, sū and bhū being close enough in some scripts (e.g., in C₉₄) to cause confusion. Another option would be to accept Ābhūti as the name of Dakṣa's wife.

For Prasūti being Dakṣa's wife in other sources, see, e.g., Līṅgapurāṇa 1.5.20–21 (but also note the presence of the name Sambhūti):

prasūtiḥ suśuve dakṣāc caturvīṃśatikanyakāḥ |
śraddhām lakṣmīm dhṛtiṃ puṣṭiṃ tuṣṭiṃ medhām kriyām tathā ||
buddhi lajjām vapuḥ śāntiṃ siddhiṃ kīrtiṃ mahātapāḥ |
khyātiṃ śāntiś ca sambhūtiṃ smṛtiṃ prītiṃ kṣamām tathā ||.

3.10 Understand śraddhā as a stem form noun for śraddhāyāḥ (gen./abl., cf. 3.11a). Alternatively, take śraddhā and suto as elements of a split compound, and understand śraddhāsuto jātaḥ kāmaḥ.

puṣṭyā lābhah suto jāto medhāputrah śrutas tathā |
kriyāyās tv abhavat putro daṇḍah samaya eva ca || 3:11 ||

To Puṣṭi was born a son [called] Lābha ('Profit'). Medhā's son is Śruta ('Sacred Knowledge'). Kriyā's sons are Daṇḍa ('Punishment') and Samaya ('Law').

lajjāyā vinayaḥ putro buddhyā bodhaḥ sutaḥ smṛtaḥ |
lajjāyāḥ sudhiyaḥ putra apramādaś ca tāv ubhau || 3:12 ||

Lajjā's son is Vinaya ('Discipline'), Buddhi's son is Bodha ('Intelligence'). Lajjā has two [more] sons: Sudhiya/[Sudhī] ('Wise') and Apramāda ('Cautiousness').

kṣemaḥ śāntisuto vindyād vyavasāyo vapoh sutaḥ |
yaśaḥ kīrtisuto jñeyaḥ sukhaṃ siddher vyajāyata |
svāyambhuve 'ntare tv āsan kīrtitā dharmasūnavaḥ || 3:13 ||

Kṣema ('Peace') is to be known as Śānti's son, Vyavasāya ('Resolution') is Vapus' son. Yaśas ('Fame') is Kīrti's son, Sukha ('Joy') was born to Siddhi. [This is how] the sons of Dharma in the [manvantara] era of Svāyambhuva [Manu] were known.

3.11 I have emended abhayaḥ to abhavat in pāda c, following the relevant line in the Kūrmapurāṇa cited in the apparatus to this verse (kriyāyās cābhavat putro daṇḍah samaya eva ca) and also Līṅgapurāṇa 1.5.37 quoted also in the apparatus, allotting only two sons to Kriyā. Thus I don't think that Kriyā is supposed to have a son called Abhaya ('Freedom from danger'; Bhāgavatapurāṇa 4.1.50ab claims that Dayā had a son called Abhaya: śraddhāsūta śubhaṃ maitrī prasādam abhayaṃ dayā). Nevertheless, in several sources Kriyā actually has three sons; see, e.g., Viṣṇupurāṇa 1.7.26ab, where they are named Daṇḍa, Naya and Vinaya: medhā śrutam kriyā daṇḍam nayaṃ vinayam eva ca. Perhaps read kriyāyās tu nayaḥ putro in pāda c? Compare Vāyupurāṇa 1.10.34cd (kriyāyās tu nayaḥ prokto daṇḍah samaya eva ca) with Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa 1.9.60ab (kriyāyās tanayau proktau damaś ca śama eva ca).

3.12 In a very similar passages in Kūrmapurāṇa 1.8.20 ff., Apramāda is Buddhi's son and Lajjā has only one son, Vinaya. In the above verse (VSS 3.12), sudhiyaḥ (for sudhīḥ) may only be qualifying apramāda, thus Lajjā may have two sons: Vinaya and the wise Apramāda. Alternatively, pādas cd might be a extra line inserted accidentally.

3.13 Note that sukhaṃ in pāda d is probably meant to be masculine (sukhaḥ), but, e.g., in the Kūrmapurāṇa passage quoted above it is also neuter. For the emendation in pāda e, see Matsyapurāṇa 9.2cd:

yāmā nāma purā devā āsan svāyambhuvāntare,
and Bhāgavatapurāṇa 6.4.1:
devāsuraṇṛṇām sargo nāgānām mṛgapakṣiṇām |
sāmāsikas tvayā prokto yas tu svāyambhuve 'ntare ||.

vigatarāga uvāca |
mūrtidvayaṃ katham dharmam kathayasva tapodbhava |
kautūhalaṃ atīvaṃ me kartaya jñānasaṃśayam || 3:14 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: How is it that Dharma has two embodiments?
Tell me, O great ascetic. I am extremely intrigued—dispel my doubts concerning [this] knowledge.

anarthayajña uvāca |
śrutismṛtidvayor mūrtir dharmasya parikīrtitā |
dārāgnihotrasambandha iḥyā śrautasya lakṣaṇam |
smārto varṇāśramācāro yamais ca nīyamair yutaḥ || 3:15 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: Dharma's embodiment is said to consist of Scripture (śruti) and Tradition (smṛti). The characteristics of the Śrauta [tradition] are an association with a wife [i.e., marriage], with the fire ritual, and sacrifice. The Smārta [tradition focuses on] the conduct (ācāra) of the social classes (varṇa) and disciplines (āśrama) which is connected to rules and regulations (yama-niyama).

3.14 Note dharmā as a neuter noun and the form atīvaṃ for atīva metri causa. My emendation from kīrtaya ('declare') to kartaya ('cut, dispel') was influenced by the combination of chindhi and saṃśaya, often found together with kautūhala, elsewhere in the VSS: 3.2ab: kautūhalaṃ mamotpannaṃ saṃśayaṃ chindhi tattvataḥ; 10.10cd: kautūhalaṃ mahaj jātaṃ chindhi saṃśayakāvakam; 15.2ab: etat kautūhalaṃ chindhi saṃśayaṃ parameśvara. The reading kīrtaya may have been influenced by kīrtitā in 3.13f above.

3.15 The reading °dvayī in *K*₇ in pāda a is attractive, but it could easily be only an attempt to improve the text. The emendation in pāda c is based on parallel passages in Manu and the Matsyapurāṇa (see the apparatus).

As for Dharma being based on śruti and smṛti, see, e.g., Manu 2.10:

śrutis tu vedo vijñeyo dharmasāstraṃ tu vai smṛtiḥ |
te sarvārtheṣv amīmāṃsye tābhyāṃ dharmo hi nīrabhau ||

In Olivelle's translation (2005, 94): "Scripture" should be recognized as "Veda," and "tradition" as "Law Treatise." These two should never be called into question in any matter, for it is from them that the Law shines forth.'

To state that the Smārta tradition is connected to yamas and nīyamas and the āśramas and then to discuss these at length (principally in chapters 3–8 and 11) can be seen as a clear self-identification with the Smārta/Dharmaśāstric tradition.

[yamanīyamabhedah — Yama and Niyama rules]

yamaś ca niyamaś caiva dvayor bhedam ataḥ śṛṇu |
ahiṃsā satyam asteyam ānṛśaṃsyam damo ghr̥ṇā |
dhanyāpramādo mādhuburyam ārjayaṃ ca yamā daśa || 3:16 ||

Now hear the classification of both the yama and niyama rules.
Non-violence, truthfulness, refraining from stealing, absence of hostility, self-restraint, taboos, virtue, avoiding mistakes, charm, sincerity: these are the ten yamas.

ekaikasya punaḥ pañcabhedam ābur manīṣiṇaḥ |
ahiṃsādi pravakṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvāvahito dvija || 3:17 ||

The wise say that there are five subclasses to each. I shall teach you about non-violence and the other [yama-rules]. Listen carefully, O twice-born.

[yameṣv ahiṃsā (1) —
First Yama-rule: non-violence]

[pañcavidhā hiṃsā —
Five types of violence]

trāsanam tāḍanam bandho māraṇam vṛttināśanam |
hiṃsām pañcavidhām ābur munayaḥ tattvadarśiṇaḥ || 3:18 ||

Frightening and beating [other people], tying [someone] up, killing, and the destruction of the livelihood [of others]: violence is said by the wise who see the truth to be of [these] five types.

3.16 Pāda a should be understood as yamanīyamayoś, but the author of this line may have tried to avoid the metrical fault of having two short syllables in second and third position. Note how all witnesses read mādhūrya in pāda e instead of mādhurya. The former may have been acceptable originally in this text. Pāda e is a ma-vipulā.

As noted above, this is the beginning of a long section in our text that describes the yama-niyama rules, reaching up to the end of chapter eight. The title given in the colophon of the next chapter, chapter four, namely yamavibhāga, would fit this locus better than the beginning of that chapter, which commences with a discussion on the second of the yamas: satya.

3.17 In pāda a, pañca and bhedā may be typeset as two separate words since the use of the singular after numbers is one of the hallmarks of the text (see p. 31).

kāṣṭhaloṣṭakaśādyais tu tāḍayantīha nirdayāḥ |
tatprahāravibhinnāṅgo mṛtavadhyam avāpnuyāt || 3:19 ||

Cruel people beat [others] with sticks, clods of earth [i.e., they stone them], with whips and other [objects] in this world. Their bodies broken by the same blows, they suffer capital punishment.

baddhvā pādau bhujoraś ca śīrorukkantḥapāśitāḥ |
anāhatā mriyanty evaṃ vadho bandhanajaḥ smṛtaḥ || 3:20 ||

[Others] tie [people] up by their feet, arms and chest. Hung by their hair and neck, they die in this way without being wounded. This is the capital punishment for tying [people] up.

śatrucaurabhayair ghoraiḥ śimbavyāghragajoragaiḥ |
trāsanād vadham āpnoti anyair vāpi suduḥsakaiḥ || 3:21 ||

He who frightens [other people] with the terrible danger of enemies and thieves, with lions, tigers, elephants or snakes, or other horrors, will be executed.

yasya yasya hared vittaṃ tasya tasya vadhaḥ smṛtaḥ |
vṛttijīvābhībūtānāṃ taddvārā nibataḥ smṛtaḥ || 3:22 ||

He who robs someone of money is to be punished by the same person; he is [to be] struck down by those whose livelihood has been harmed by him.

3.19 Note the use of the singular (°āṅgo... avāpnuyāt) in pādas cd referring back to the plural agents of the previous sentence. Most probably, °vadhyam is to be understood as °vadham and the form vadhyam serves only to avoid two laghu syllables in pāda d. (See the word vadha in the next three verses.)

3.20 Understand bhujoraś ca in pāda a as bhuje, urasi ca, in this case with an instance of double sandhi, and in stem form: bhuje urasi ca → bhuja urasi ca → bhujorasi ca → bhujoraś ca. Alternatively, understand it as a compound (bhujorasi). In pāda b, my emendation is only one of the possible interpretations. We might accept śīroru° as consisting of śīra + ūru ('head and thigh'), or emend it to śīrorah° for śīra + urah ('head and chest'). Also note my conjecture in pāda d, without which this pāda is difficult to interpret.

3.22 Perhaps understand vadhaḥ in pāda b as vadhyaḥ metri causa. My translation of the second line of this verse reflects a conjecture (taddvārā) understood as connected to both pāda c and nibataḥ in pāda d. The plural genitive in pāda c and the instrumental taddvārā are perhaps to be taken as plural instrumentals: °bhībūtāis tair.

viṣavahnīśaraśastrair māyāyogabalena vā |
hīṃsakāṇy āhu viprendra munayas tattvadarśinaḥ || 3:23 ||

[Those who kill other people] with poison, fire, arrows, swords, or by the force of magic or yoga, are called murderers by the sages who see the truth, O great Brahmin.

[abīṃsāpraśamsā — Praise of non-violence]

abīṃsā paramaṃ dharmam yas tyajet sa durātmavān |
kleśāyāsavinirmuktaṃ sarvadharmaphalapradam || 3:24 ||

Non-violence is the highest Dharma. He who abandons it is a wicked person. It is free from pain and trouble, and yields the fruits of all [other] Dharmic teachings [in itself].

nātaḥ parataro mūrkhō nātaḥ parataram tamaḥ |
nātaḥ parataram duḥkhaṃ nātaḥ parataro 'yaśaḥ || 3:25 ||

There is no bigger fool than one [who abandons it]. There is no bigger mental darkness [than the abandonment of non-violence].
 There is no greater suffering, no greater infamy.

nātaḥ parataram pāpaṃ nātaḥ parataram viṣam |
nātaḥ paratarāvidyā nātaḥ parataro 'dhanāḥ || 3:26 ||

There is no greater sin, no more potent poison. There is no greater ignorance, no greater poverty.

3.23 Pāda a is a sa-vīpulā. Note how elliptical this verse is and that hīṃsakāṇi is neuter although it refers to people, perhaps implying bhūtāni. Alternatively, take y in hīṃsakāṇy as a rather unusual sandhi-bridge (hīṃsakān-y-āhu), or simply delete this y. Note also that āhu stands for āhur metri causa.

3.24 Note dharmā as a neuter noun in pāda a and that °vinirmuktaṃ and °pradam are neuter accordingly.

3.25 Note that parataro is masculine in pāda d, picking up a neuter 'yaśaḥ. This phenomenon is probably the result of 'yaśaḥ resembling a masculine noun ending in -aḥ and also of the metrical problem with a grammatically correct nātaḥ parataram ayaśaḥ.

3.26 Most witnesses read tapodhana at the end of the pāda d. The vocative tapodhana usually refers to Anarthayajña in these passages, and not to Vigatārāga, as seemingly does here. For long, my idea to emend to nātaḥ parataro 'dhanāḥ ('there is no bigger loss of wealth')—in spite of the fact that a neuter parataram adhanam would be better—was not supported by any witness, but the collation of T₈₂ made me revisit and adopt this possibility.

*yo hinasti na bhūtāni udbhijjādi caturvidham |
sa bhavet puruṣaḥ śreṣṭhaḥ sarvabhūtadayānvitaḥ || 3:27 ||*

He who does not harm [any of] the four types of living beings, beginning with plants, is the best person, because he has compassion for all creatures.

*sarvabhūtadayāṃ nityaṃ yaḥ karoti sa paṇḍitaḥ |
sa yajvā sa tapasvī ca sa dātā sa dṛḍhavrataḥ || 3:28 ||*

He who always has compassion for all creatures is the [true] Paṇḍit. He is the [true] sacrificer, the [true] ascetic, he is a [real] donor, one with a firm vow.

*ahiṃsā paramaṃ tīrtham ahiṃsā paramaṃ tapaḥ |
ahiṃsā paramaṃ dānam ahiṃsā paramaṃ sukham || 3:29 ||*

Non-violence is the supreme pilgrimage place. Non-violence is the highest austerity. Non-violence is the highest gift. Non-violence is the highest joy.

*ahiṃsā paramo yajñaḥ ahiṃsā paramaṃ vratam |
ahiṃsā paramaṃ jñānam ahiṃsā paramā kriyā || 3:30 ||*

Non-violence is the supreme sacrifice. Non-violence is the supreme religious observance. Non-violence is the supreme knowledge. Non-violence is the supreme ritual.

*ahiṃsā paramaṃ śaucam ahiṃsā paramo damaḥ |
ahiṃsā paramo lābhaḥ ahiṃsā paramaṃ yaśaḥ || 3:31 ||*

Non-violence is the highest purity. Non-violence is the highest self-restraint. Non-violence is the highest profit. Non-violence is the greatest fame.

*ahiṃsā paramo dharmāḥ ahiṃsā paramā gatīḥ |
ahiṃsā paramaṃ brahma ahiṃsā paramaḥ śivaḥ || 3:32 ||*

Non-violence is the supreme Dharma. Non-violence is the supreme path. Non-violence is the supreme Brahman. Non-violence is supreme Śiva.

[māṃsābhāraḥ — Meat-consumption]

māṃsāśānān nivarteta manasāpi na kāṅkṣayet |
sa mabat phalam āpnoti yas tu māṃsaṃ vivarjayet || 3:33 ||

One should refrain from meat-consumption. One should not even desire it mentally. He who abandons meat will receive a great reward.

svamāṃsaṃ paramāṃsena yo vardhayitum icchati |
anabhyarcya pitṛn devān na tato 'nyo 'sti pāpakṛt || 3:34 ||

He who wishes to nourish his own flesh with the flesh of other [beings], outside of worshipping the ancestors and the gods, is the biggest sinner of all.

madhuparke ca yajñe ca pitṛdaivatakarmaṇi |
atraiva paśavo hiṃsyā nānyatra manur abravīt || 3:35 ||

During the honey-mixture offering (madhuparka) and during a sacrifice, during rituals for the ancestors and the gods: only in these cases are animals to be slaughtered and not in any other case. [This is what] Manu taught.

krītvā svayaṃ vāpy utpādya paropahṛtam eva vā |
devān pitṛṃś cārcayitvā khādan māṃsaṃ na doṣabhāk || 3:36 ||

Should he buy it or procure it himself or should it be offered by others, if he eats meat, he will not sin if he first worships the gods and the ancestors.

vedayajñatapastīrthadānaśilakriyāvrataiḥ |
māṃsābhāranivṛttānāṃ ṣoḍaśāṃśaṃ na pūryate || 3:37 ||

[People who perform] Vedic sacrifices and austerities, and [visit] sacred places, give gifts, [those who are of] good conduct, [perform] rituals and [keep] religious vows, [but eat meat] will not [be able to] enjoy even the sixteenth part of [such rewards that those] people [receive] who have given up meat.

3.34 See Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda chapter two for a similar section on meat-consumption. The present verse is a variant on Manu 5.52 (see apparatus).

3.35 This verse is a variant of Manu 5.41.

3.36 This verse is Manu 5.32.

3.37 As for pāda d, see a similarly phrased comparison in Manu 2.86:

mrgāḥ paṇatṛṇābhārād ajameṣagavādibhiḥ |
sukhino balavantaś ca vicaranti mahītale || 3:38 ||

Deer, goats, sheep, cows, and other [animals] roam the world in happiness and great strength, [simply] by feeding on leaves and grass.

vānarāḥ phala-m-ābhārā rākṣasā rudhirapriyāḥ |
nibatā rākṣasāḥ sarve vānarāḥ phalabhojibhiḥ || 3:39 ||

Monkeys eat fruits, Rākṣasas prefer blood. The fruit-eating monkeys defeated all the Rākṣasas.

tasmān māṃsaṃ na hībeta balakāmena bho dvija |
balena ca guṇākaraṣāt parato bhayabhīruṇā || 3:40 ||

Therefore one should not crave meat in the hope of gaining strength, O Brahmin, in order to be able to draw a bow with force, or out of fear of the danger coming from the enemy.

abhiṃsakasamo nāsti dānaya jñāsamābhayā |
īha loke yaśaḥ kīrtiḥ paratra ca parā gatīḥ || 3:41 ||

By wishing to make donations and perform sacrifices no one will become comparable to someone who refrains from violence. [Such a person will have] fame and glory in this world and the supreme path in the other.

ye pākaya jñās catvāro vidhiyajñasamanvitāḥ |
sarve te japaya jñāsyā kalām nābhanti ṣoḍaśīm ||.

In Olivelle's translation (2005, 99): 'The four types of cooked oblations along with the sacrifices consisting of prescribed rites—all these are not worth a sixteenth part of the sacrifice consisting of soft recitation.'

3.39 Understand phalam ābhārā as phalābhārā (-m- is a sandhi-bridge). This verse clearly refers to the story of the Rāmāyaṇa.

3.40 guṇākāśāt in pāda c is difficult to interpret and guṇākaraṣāt is a conjecture by Judit Törzsök which fits the context well, although the polysemy of guṇa may allow for other solutions.

3.41 Note the variant °dharmasamābhayā in pāda b in both C₀₂ and E. Pādas ab are reminiscent of Śivadharmasāstra 11.92:

abhiṃsaikā paro dharmāḥ śaktānām parikīrtitam |
aśaktānām ayaṃ dharmo dānaya jñādīpūrvakāḥ ||.

On the above verse see also Bisschop et al. 2021, 15–16.

*trailokyam maṇiratnapūrṇam akhilaṃ dattvottame brāhmaṇe

etatpūṇyaphalam abhīṃsakajānaḥ prāpnoti niḥsaṃśayaḥ || 3:42 ||*

A person who refrains from violence will gain, without doubt, the [same] meritorious rewards as one who donates the three worlds, entirely filled with jewels and gems, to an excellent Brahmin; who [performs] a thousand times ten trillion (padma) times ten thousand (ayuta) koṭīyajña sacrifices; who donates the whole earth as a sacrificial fee; and who bathes at once [at] a thousand times ten million times a million (niyuta) sacred places.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrabe abhīṃsāpraśamsā nāmādhyāyas tṛtīyaḥ ||

Here ends the third chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called Praise of Non-violence.

3.42 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note that the second syllable of phalam in pāda d is treated as long: this happens often at word-boundaries in this text (see p. 39); and note how K₇ aims to restore the metre by inserting tv after its phalam. On padma meaning ‘ten trillion’, and on other words for numbers, see 1.31–35.

koṭīyajña in pāda d may refer to a special kind of sacrifice, mostly known as koṭibhoma in the Purāṇas and in inscriptions (see, e.g., Fleming 2010, and 2013). It involves a hundred fire-pits and a hundred times one thousand Brahmins (hence the name ‘the ten-million sacrifice’). See, e.g., Bhaviṣyapurāṇa uttaraparvan 4.142.54–58:

*śātānāno daśamukho dvimukhaikamukhas tathā |
caturvidho mahārāja koṭibhomo vidhīyate ||

Note Śivadharmasāstra 10.91 (see apparatus), a statement on abhīṃsā which is similar to the present verse.

[caturtho 'dhyāyaḥ]
[Chapter Four]

[yameṣu satyam (2) —
Second Yama-rule: truthfulness]

anarthayajña uvāca |
sadbhāvaḥ satyam ity āhur dṛṣṭapratyayam eva vā |
yathābhūtārthakathanam tat satyakathanam smṛtam || 4:1 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: The state of being real (sad-bhāva) is called truth (sat-ya). Alternatively, it is also a certainty (pratyaya) that originates in perception (dṛṣṭa). Relating things in a way that corresponds to reality is called ‘speaking the truth.’

ākrośatādanādīni yaḥ saheta suduḥsaham |
kṣamate yo jītātmā tu sa ca satyam udāhṛtam || 4:2 ||

He who endures severe abuse and beating, etc. and resists [giving away secrets], his self being conquered, is said to be [an example of] truth[fulness].

vadhārtham udyataḥ śāstram yadi pṛccheta karhicit |
na tatra satyam vaktavyam anṛtam satyam ucyate || 4:3 ||

4.1 Compare Śivadharmasāstra 11.105:

svānubhūtam svadrṣṭam ca yaḥ pṛṣṭārtham na gūhati |
yathābhūtārthakathanam ity etat satyalakṣaṇam ||.

This verse is translated in Bisschop et al. 2021, p. 124 as follows: ‘If one does not conceal a matter one is asked about, whether it was experienced by oneself or witnessed with one’s own eyes, but gives an account of things as they happened, this is the definition of “truth.”’ This verse makes it tempting to emend satyakathanam to satyalakṣaṇam in VSS 4.1d, but I rather take the VSS verse to introduce two views on truth: one philosophical, and one ordinary that relates to the moral aspect of truthfulness. Also consider the commentator’s remark on the same verse in the Śivadharmasāstra (verse 11.105; Bisschop et al. 2021, p. 124 n. 181 and p. 143): yathābhūtārthakathane prāṇivadhaprāptāv asatyasya sādbutvāt paraṇipādinīrnmuktam eva satyam ity āha. Translation ibid.: ‘... he states that [speech is] truth only as long as it is devoid of harm of others, for untruth is good when giving an account of something as it really happened will result in the slaughter of a living creature.’

4.2 suduḥsaham (singular) in pāda b picks up °ādīni (plural) in pāda a. The -m in satyam may be a sandhi-bridge and the phrase may refer to a masculine subject (‘a truthful person’) thus: sa ca satya-m-udāhṛtaḥ. Compare with Śivadharmasāstra 11.82 (see apparatus), which is a definition of forbearance (kṣānti).

If one is being interrogated at any time with a sword lifted to strike him down, in this case the truth is not to be spoken, and a lie can be called truth.

vadhārbaḥ puruṣaḥ kaścid vrajet pathi bhayāturaḥ |
pr̥cchato 'pi na vaktavyaṃ satyaṃ tad vāpi ucyate || 4:4 ||

A person who is walking on the road and is afraid of being killed should not reply to [people who are potentially dangerous] even if they ask him. This is also called truth[fulness].

na narmayuktam anṛtaṃ hinasti na strīṣu rājan na vivāhakāle | prāṇātyaye sarvadhanāpahāre
pañcānṛtaṃ satyaṃ udāharanti || 4:5 ||

A lie does not cause harm when it is told in jest, in dealings with women, O king, at the time of marriage, at the moment of death, or when one's entire wealth is about to be taken away. These five kinds of lies are called truths.

devamānuṣatiryeṣu satyaṃ dharmāḥ paro yataḥ |
satyaṃ śreṣṭhaṃ varīṣṭhaṃ ca satyaṃ dharmāḥ sanātanaḥ || 4:6 ||

Since truth is the supreme Dharma in [the world of] gods, humans and animals, truth is the best, the most preferable. Truth is the eternal Dharma.

satyaṃ sāgaram avyaktaṃ satyaṃ akṣayabhogadam |
satyaṃ potaḥ paratrārthaṃ satyaṃ panthāna vistaram || 4:7 ||

4.3 Understand udyataḥ (nominative) in an active sense ('holding/lifting').

4.4 'being killed' is not the most obvious translation for vadhārbaḥ in pāda a, but the context suggests that what may have been intended is not a person who 'deserves death.'

4.5 Metre: upajāti. This verse appears in countless sources, beginning with the MBh (see the apparatus). All versions contain a vocative addressing a king, which is out of context in the VSS, the addressee being Vigatarāga, i.e., Viṣṇu disguised as a Brahmin. The redactors did not notice or did not care about this small inconsistency. Note the metrical licence that allows the last syllable of yuktam to count as long (see p. 41). The reading with anṛtaṃ, as opposed to vacanaṃ, in pāda a, can be found in the apparatus of the MBh critical edition.

Truth is an unmanifest ocean. Truth yields imperishable pleasures.
Truth is a ship bound for the other world. Truth is the wide path.

satyaṃ iṣṭagatiḥ proktaṃ satyaṃ yajñam anuttamam |
satyaṃ tīrthaṃ paraṃ tīrthaṃ satyaṃ dānam anantakam || 4:8 ||

Truth is said to be the desired path. Truth is the supreme sacrifice.
Truth is a pilgrimage place, a supreme pilgrimage place. Truth is endless donation.

satyaṃ śīlaṃ tapo jñānam satyaṃ śaucaṃ damaḥ śamaḥ |
satyaṃ sopānam ūrdhvasya satyaṃ kīrtir yaśaḥ sukham || 4:9 ||

Truth is virtue, austerity, knowledge. Truth is purity, self-control, and tranquillity. Truth is the ladder [that leads] upwards. Truth is fame and glory and happiness.

aśvamedhasahasraṃ ca satyaṃ ca tulayā dhṛtam |
aśvamedhasahasrād dhi satyam eva viśiṣyate || 4:10 ||

[When] a thousand Aśvamedha sacrifices and truth are measured on a pair of scales, truth indeed surpasses a thousand Aśvamedha sacrifices.

satyena tapate sūryaḥ satyena pṛthivī sthitā |
satyena vāyavo vānti satye toyaṃ ca śītaḥ || 4:11 ||

The Sun shines because of truth. The Earth stays in place by truth.
The winds blow because of truth. Water has a cooling effect through truth.

tiṣṭhanti sāgarāḥ satye samayena priyavrataḥ |
satye tiṣṭhati govindo balibandhanakāraṇāt || 4:12 ||

4.7 Pāda d is slightly problematic because it is difficult to ascertain if some of the MSS actually read panthāna or pasthāna (or yasthāna). I suspect that panthāna is a stem form irregular nominative of pathin used (metri causa).

4.9 Considering a similar line in the Varāhapurāṇa (193.36cd, see the apparatus), one wonders if the slightly odd ūrdhvasya in pāda c is not a corrupt form of svargasya.

4.11 In general, see sections similar to VSS 4.11–17 on satya in MBh 12.192.63–72, Revākhaṇḍa 91.68–70, Viṣṇudharma 55.1ff, Viṣṇudharmottara 3.265.1ff, etc. Here in VSS 4.11d, and several times below, satye is probably to be taken as standing for satyena.

The oceans exist by the truthful encounter with Priyavrata. Govinda abides in truth because He [as Vāmana] stopped [Mahā]Bali [in spite of the fact that this was achieved by a trick].

agnir dahati satyena satyena śaśinaś carah |
satyena vindhyās tiṣṭhanti vardhamāno na vardhate || 4:13 ||

Fire burns according to truth. The Moon's course is [governed] by truth. It is because of truth that the Vindhya mountain stands in place and that although it was growing, it is not growing [any-more].

4.12 Pāda b, samayena priyavrataḥ, probably stand for samayena priyavratasya although it is unclear to me what exactly samaya refers to here.

For the story of Priyavrata, Manu's son, in which he wanted to turn nights into days by circling around Mount Meru in a chariot, and by this produced the seven oceans, see, e.g., Bhāgavatapurāṇa 5.1.30–31: yāvad avabhāsayati suragirim anuparikrāman bhagavān ādityo vasudhātalam ardbenaiva pratapaty ardbenāvaccchādayati, tadā hi [priyavrataḥ] bhagavadupāsanopacitātīpuruṣaprabhāvas tad anabhinandan samajavena rathena jyotirmayena rajanīm api dinam kariṣyāmīti saptakṛtvas taranīm anuparyakrāmad dvitīya iva pataṅgaḥ | ye vā u ha tadrathacaraṇanemikṛtaparikhātās te sapta sindhava āsan yata eva kṛtāḥ sapta bhuvo dvīpāḥ |.

For a reference to the story of Mahābali that is somewhat similar to our pādas cd, see, e.g., Vāmanapurāṇa 65.66:

evaṃ purā cakradbhareṇa viṣṇunā baddho balir vāmanarūpadbhāriṇā |
śakrapriyārtham surakāryasiddhaye hitāya vipraśabbhagodvījānām ||

4.13 Pāda a might as well be a reference to a story mentioned in Manu 8.116:

vatsasya hy abhiśastasya purā bhrātrā yavīyasā |
nāgnir dadāha romāpi satyena jagataḥ spaśaḥ ||

Olivelle's translation (2005, 311): 'Long ago when Vatsa was accused by his younger brother, Fire, the world's spy, did not burn a single hair of his because he told the truth.' Olivelle's note on this verse (ibid., 311) reads: 'Vatsa was accused by his brother of being the son of a Śūdra woman and thus not a pure Brahmin. Vatsa went through fire to prove his pedigree. See Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa 14.6.6.'

Since śaśi (instead of śaśin) is a possible stem in this text, śaśir ācarah (K₈₂K₁₀K₇) in pāda b could be acceptable here, perhaps standing metri causa for the compound śaśicarah. Nevertheless, I have chosen to conjecture śaśinaś carah, now preferring it to my previous conjecture, śaśinā carah. Other possibilities, suggested by Judit Törzsök and other colleagues, include śaśibhāskarah, śaśigocarah, śiśiro 'carah, and śiśirāmbhasaḥ. Similar passages quoted in the apparatus suggest that the Moon waxes, or shines, by truth (satyena vardhate/rājate). Compare also a passage in the MBh (quoted in the apparatus) that compares Hariścandra, renowned for his truthfulness, to the Moon, using the verb carati. These passages seem to support a reading close to my conjecture.

While it is not clear if pādas ab refer to specific legends or not, pādas cd hint at the story of Agastya and the Vindhya mountain: Vindhya became jealous of the Sun's revolving around Mount Meru, and when the Sun refused him the same favour, he decided to grow higher and obstruct the Sun's movement. As a solution to this situation, Agastya asked Vindhya to bend down to make it easier for him to reach the south and to remain thus until he returned. Vindhya agreed to do what Agastya asked him but Agastya never returned. See MBh 3.102.1–14 (see the word samaya in verse 13 in this passage, and compare it to VSS 4.12b):

Third Yama-rule: refraining from stealing]

vigatarāga uvāca |
na hi tṛptiṃ vijānāmi śrutvā dharmam tavāpy aham |
upariṣṭād ato bhūyaḥ kathayasva tapodbhava || 4:18 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: I can't have enough of learning about [this teaching of] your[s on] Dharma. Teach me further than this, O great ascetic.

4.15 satye in pāda c, which I take as standing for satyena, could also be a mistake for the nominative: 'The soul dwells in the body as truth.'

4.16 Or: 'If truth alone (understand: satyena ekena) is obtained, Dharma is surely accomplished.'

4.17 Note the syntax of pādas ab: a verb meaning 'to tell' with a noun in the genitive. See p. 36. Choosing etat instead of the much less well-attested evaṃ in pāda a would not solve the problem.

4.18 It is not inconceivable that tava is meant to carry the sense of the ablative ('I can't have enough of learning about Dharma from you').

Anarthayajña spoke: Now listen to [my teaching about] stealing, O great Brahmin, which is taught to be of five kinds. Firstly, [listen to] theft, then bribery, cheating with weights, cheating with scales, and the fifth kind, robbery.

dhṛṣṭaduṣṭaprabhāvena paraḍravyāpakarṣaṇam |
vāryamāṇo 'pi durbuddhir adattādānam ucyate || 4:20 ||

When someone's wealth is seized with impudent and wicked intent, it is called theft, even if that fool is prevented [from carrying out the act].

mūlyam kāryavināśārtham utkocaḥ parigrhyate |
tena cāsau vijānīyād dravyalobhabalāt kṛtam || 4:21 ||

O great Brahmin, listen to bribery, which causes confusion in Dharma. A sum of money taken in order to dismiss a lawsuit is a bribe. Therefore this [also] should be considered as such [i.e., as stealing, because] it is committed out of greed for material goods.

4.19 'Theft' (adattādāna): literally 'taking what has not been given.' Note the stem form °steya in pāda f.

4.20 My impression is that prabhāva in pāda a stands for bhāva, duṣṭabhāva ('vicious') being a common expression. The implications of vāryamāṇo in pāda c are unclear to me, therefore my translation is tentative. One could consider emending to vāryamāṇāpi, possibly suggesting that 'it is a wicked thought (durbuddhi) even if suppressed (vāryamāṇa).'

4.21 Note that mūlyam in pāda c is a conjecture for mūla. It is partly based on a relevant passage in the Mitākṣarā (ad Yājñavalkyasmṛti 2.176cd, or 2.180 in Olivelle 2019), which lists categories of gifts deemed irrevocable and revocable: panyasya kṛtadravyasya yan mūlyam dattam... utkocena kāryapratibandhanirāsārtham adhikṛtebhyo dattam...; '[Irrevocable, e.g.:] the price of a commodity, a item sold, when paid... [Revocable, e.g.: a gift] given as a bribe to officials to obstruct or cancel lawsuits...' Note asau in pāda e as an accusative form (for amum or adaḥ). It is not unlikely that tena is a corruption from stena, and the pāda may have originally read stenaṃ taṃ ca vijānīyād ('he should be known as a thief'), or similar (cf. 4.22c below). M (f. 7r) reads tena steya vijānīyād here.

If someone, by deceit or by force, seizes the wealth of the weak, the honest, or the simple, that morally corrupt usurper is [nothing but] a thief.

nāsti steyasamaṃ pāpaṃ nāsty adharmaś ca tatsamaḥ |
nāsti stenasamākīrtir nāsti stenasamo 'nayaḥ || 4:25 ||

There is no sin equal to stealing; no crime (adharma) equal to it. There is no infamy comparable to that of being a thief, and no misconduct comparable to it.

nāsti steyasamāvidyā nāsti stenasamaḥ khalah |
nāsti stenasama ajño nāsti stenasamo 'lasaḥ || 4:26 ||

There is no greater ignorance than stealing. There are no worse rogues than thieves. No one is as deluded as a thief, and none equals him in indolence.

4.23 I take anye in pāda c rather liberally, and as connected to pādas ab, because I suspect that this verse introduces one single category, albeit using clumsy syntax.

4.24 It is possible that pāda d read differently originally, e.g., sa coraś cora ucyate, meaning 'that thief is [rightly] called a thief'.

4.26 Note the peculiar sandhi in pāda c (°sama ajño), which still leaves the pāda a sa-vipulā.

nāsti stenasamo dveṣyo nāsti stenasamo 'priyaḥ |
nāsti steyasamaṃ duḥkhaṃ nāsti steyasamo 'yaśaḥ || 4:27 ||

There is no one as detestable as a thief, nor anyone so disliked. There is no suffering greater than that caused by stealing, and no disgrace greater than that of theft.

Some [thieves] take away [other people's] wealth in disguise, some in broad daylight. Other wicked people seize money from deposits, and some people steal through fraud. Some accumulate wealth by forging documents, others steal from stolen money[?]. Some derive wealth from purchased [children?] (krīta). Others usurp another's inheritance[?]. These are considered the vilest of all.

4.27 Note how stena and steya are used interchangeably (or chaotically) in the above passages in the MSS to denote both 'thief' and 'theft/stealing'. The scribe of K₇ ends up writing stenya in 4.27e.

4.28 Metre (4.28–30): śārdūlavikrīḍita. It appears that briyate in pāda a is to be taken as an active verb (harate). Note also how C₄₅ and K₇ read the same here against the other witnesses. Take °hāriṇo in pāda b as singular and m in °nya-m-adhama as a sandhi-bridge. Alternatively, read as plural: °hāriṇo 'nya adhama... The second half of pāda c is difficult to reconstruct. The translation of pāda d is mostly guesswork. Tentatively, I take krīta as krītaka ('a purchased son', see Manu 9.174). dhayabhṛta makes little sense to me. Florinda De Simini suggested that dhaya might stand for daya, which in turn may stand for dāya ('inheritance') metri causa. Lacking any better solution, I supplied these in my translation, marked with question marks. Note also the metrical licence that the last syllable of dhayabhṛta counts as long.

After enduring ten million æons of suffering, he emerges from hell to the state of animal existence. Again, he wanders in animal existence for a hundred and one times ten million years. Thereafter, he attains human birth upon the earth, a realm fraught with poverty and disease. Then abandoning all karmans—the causes of suffering—he seeks refuge in Śiva.

4.29 For some time I was wondering if one should accept E’s reading stenastulya na mūḍham asti as a metri causa version of stenatulyo na mūḍho ’sti; see a similar case of a nominative ending inside of compound in pāda c. One major concern remained: the accepted reading would be of an edition that rarely emerges as the sole transmitter of the best reading. Another possible solution could be to emend to stenamṭulya..., meaning ‘there is no bigger foolishness than theft,’ but then the second part of pāda a is difficult to connect. In the end, I decided to go for the most widely attested reading (stenatulya), which is unmetrical.

Understand prāptaḥśāsana tīvrasyaviṣamaṃ in pāda c as prāptaśāsanas tīvrasyaḥ ca viṣamaṃ prāpnoti. Alternatively, understand tīvrasyaḥ° as duḥsahya°. The actual reading of C₉₄, prāptaś, lost in the process of normalization and standing in contrast with that of all other MSS that read prāptaḥ, may suggest a doubling of the ś of śāsana metri causa. More likely is that a licence of having a nominative ending inside of a compound is applied here, as may have been the case above in pāda a.

4.30 Note the stem form °kalpa for °kalpaṃ metri causa in pāda a. In pāda c, tathaivam, or tathaikam, and ekaśatikam are suspect. I understand vipule as vipulāyām, vipulā appearing in Amarakośa 2.1.7 as a synonym of dhātṛī, ‘earth.’ It is difficult to interpret it otherwise. This is still problematic because both human and animal existence takes place on earth, thus, if tiryatva (i.e., tiryaktva) indeed means ‘animal existence,’ there is no contrast between pādas b and c as regards location. As for tiryaktva, see, e.g., Manu 12.40:

*devatvaṃ sāttvikā yānti manuṣyatvaṃ ca rājasāḥ |
tiryaktvaṃ tāmasā nityam ity eṣā trividhā gatīḥ ||*

‘Those who possess Goodness become gods; those who possess Vigor become humans; and those who possess Darkness always become animals—that is the threefold course.’ (Olivelle 2005, 232.)

It is not unlikely that the original form of dāridryarogākulaṃ was dāridryarogākule, picking up vipule. Note the switch from plural to singular in pāda d (āśrayet).

Fourth Yama-rule: absence of hostility]

aṣṭamūrtiśīvadveṣṭā pitur mātus ca yo dviṣet |
gavāṃ vā atithēr dveṣṭā nṛśaṃsāḥ pañca eva te || 4:31 ||

The one who is hostile towards the eight-formed Śiva, he who hurts his mother or father, he who is hostile towards cows or guests: these are the five types of hostile people.

aṣṭamūrtiḥ śivaḥ sāksāt pañcavyomasamanvitaḥ |
sūryaḥ somaś ca dīkṣaś ca dūṣakaḥ sa nṛśaṃsakaḥ || 4:32 ||

Śiva, when manifest (sāksāt), has eight form, possessing the five elements (vyoman), and the Sun, the Moon, and the sacrificer. Whoever disgraces [any of these] is a hostile person.

pitākāśasamo jñeyo janmotpattikaraḥ pitā |
pitṛdaivata†m ādīś cam ānṛśaṃsa tamanvitaḥ† || 4:33 ||

4.31 Note pitur and mātur used as accusative forms in pāda b, or rather, understand pitur mātus ca yo dveṣṭā, i.e., dviṣet is metri causa for dveṣṭā.

4.32 Judit Törzsök has suggested emending sa nṛśaṃsakaḥ in pāda d to tan-nṛśaṃsakaḥ. I don't think that it is inevitably necessary. I think that pādas a-c form a list that is meant to be in the genitive, understanding: ity eteṣāṃ dūṣakaḥ sa nṛśaṃsakaḥ or similar. This is clumsy but in a way that is more than possible within the style of this text.

I have not been able find any other attestation of vyoman meaning the five elements. Perhaps it is meant to mean vyomādi ('the atmosphere/sky and the other four elements').

For Śiva of eight forms, see, e.g., Śakuntalā 1.1:

[1] yā srṣṭiḥ sraṣṭur ādyā vahati [2] vidbihutaṃ yā havir [3] yā ca hotrī
[4, 5] ye dve kālāṃ vidbattaḥ [6] śruti-viśaya-guṇā yā sthitā vyāpya viśvam |
[7] yām ābuh sarva-bija-prakṛtir iti yayā prāṇināḥ prāṇavantaḥ [8]
pratyakṣābhiḥ prapannas tanubhir avatu vas tābhir aṣṭābhir iśaḥ ||

Here the eight mūrtis, or rather, tanus, are: [1] jala, [2] agni, [3] hotrī ('the form that sacrifices'), [4 + 5] sūrya + candra, [6] ākāśa, [7] bhūmi, [8] vāyu.

For a similar interpretation of aṣṭamūrti, see, e.g., Īśānaśivagurudevapaddhati 2.29.34 (mantrapāda; note yajamāna for our dīkṣa):

kṣmā-vahni-yajamānārka-jala-vāyu-indu-puṣkaraiḥ |
aṣṭābhir mūrtibhiḥ sambhor dvitīyāvarāṇaṃ smṛtam ||

(For puṣkara as 'sky, atmosphere', see, e.g., Amarakośa 1.2.167: dyodivau dve striyām abhram vyoma puṣkaram ambaram.)

A closely related Aṣṭamūrti-hymn appears in Niśvāsa mukhasūtra 1.30–41; see Kāfle 2020, 62, 63, 116, 119. Kāfle adds that this hymn is closely parallel to Prayogamañjarī 1.19–26, Tantrasamuccaya 1.16–23, and Īśānaśivagurudevapaddhati kriyāpāda 26.56–63. See also TAK I s.v. aṣṭamūrti.

Cows are an auspicious blessing, they are the gods of the gods. Cows contain in themselves all the gods. That is exactly why one should not hurt them.

jātamātrasya lokasya gāvas trātā na saṃśayaḥ |
ghṛtaṃ kṣīraṃ dadhi mūtraṃ śakṛtkarṣaṇam eva ca || 4:36 ||

Cows are the protectors of the world, as if the world were their new-born [calf]—there is no doubt about it. The collection of [the five products of the cow, the pañcagavya, i.e.,] ghee, milk, curd, and [the cow's] urine and dung [is auspicious].

ye pañcagavyaṃ puruṣāḥ pibanti |
te vājimedhasya phalaṃ labhanti
tad akṣayaṃ svargam avāpnuvanti || 4:37 ||

4.33 It is difficult to restore pādas cd, although the general meaning of this line is predictable. Some questions remain. Is āditya a good reading or is mātṛ hidden in daivata-mādiśca? Is ānṛśaṃsa right or was it nṛśaṃsa that was meant by the author of this line? Does tamanvitaḥ (or tamānvitaḥ) has anything to do with tamas ('darkness')?

4.36 Note the number confusion in the phrase gāvas trātā, for gāvas trātāras. Alternatively, this line might try to echo Harivaṃśa 45.30ab: trātavyāḥ prathamam gāvas trātās trāyanti tā dvijān; 'First the cows should be protected. When protected, they protect the Brahmins'. Pāda c is a sa-viplulā. The use of karsaṇa in pāda d, most probably in the sense of 'collecting,' is slightly odd.

People who drink the five products of the cow, the five nectars, purified by the five Pavitras, will obtain the fruits of a horse sacrifice, and then reach the undecaying heavens.

There is no wealth comparable to cows. They yield milk, bear burdens, and roam beneath the sky. Feeding on grass, they produce nectar. When given to Brahmins, they deliver the family [from samsāra or the torments of hell].

4.37 Metre (4.37–39): upajāti. The five pavitras can be the five brahmamantras, see, e.g., TAK III s.v. pavitra 1.

4.38 Note that duhyanti and vāhyanti are supposed to be understood as passive, as in the similar verse in Sivadharmottara 12.92 (see apparatus).

4.39 Strictly speaking, pāda c is unmetrical. The second syllable of yajña counts as long (see p. 41). Although the accusative with °kartā in pāda d is still not optimal, my emendation of tam to tām at least restores the metre and improves upon the meaning of the sentence. Alternatively, as suggested by Judit Törzsök, taṃ could be understood as tad, picking up punyaṃ in pāda c, but in this way any reference to cows here is only implied.

4.40 Note the peculiar active verb forms anugaccheta and anupūjyeta. On this formation, see a remark about Niśvāsa mūlasūtra 2.8 in Goodall et al. 2015, 247: ‘We have assumed that pūjyeta is intended to mean pūjayet and is perhaps a contraction of pūjayeta.’

 ines in his mind that it is Dharma himself who has come to visit—

aśvamedhasahasrāṇi rājasūyaśatāni ca |
puṇḍarīkasahasraṃ ca sarvatīrthatapaḥphalam || 4:45 ||

4.41 On the form pīdyeta, see previous note.

4.42 My conjecture in pāda a (°pātrena for °pādyena) is inspired by the fact that in the MSS pāda b seems to awkwardly repeat what °pādyena in pāda a signifies.

4.43 I analyse pāda a as if it read putradārair ātmano (putradārair being a common expression). Another solution would be to emend to °ātmanā, and thus to include the possibility of sacrificing one's own life for the guest.

For the requirement that one should in certain circumstances part with his wife or son, or his own life, for the benefit of someone else, see VSS 2.38, and the narrative in VSS chapter 12 which tells about a Brahmin giving away his own wife to a guest. Note that in fact VSS 4.44cd below echoes verse 37cd in the above mentioned chapter 12 (see the apparatus).

atithir yasya tuṣyeta nṛśaṃsamatam utsrjet |

sa tasya sakalam puṇyaṃ prāpnuyān nātra saṃśayaḥ || 4:46 ||

He whose guest is satisfied [and] he who can abandon the sentiment of cruelty, will obtain all the merits of the above—there is no doubt about it.

†na gatim atithijñasya† gatim āpnoti karhacit |

tasmād atithim āyāntam abhigacchet kṛtāñjalīḥ || 4:47 ||

One will never reach a path that is the path of one who knows his guest.[?] Therefore one should go up to the arriving guest with respectfully joined palms.

saktuprasthena caikena yajña āsīn mahādbhutaḥ |

atithiprāptadānena svaśarīraṃ divaṃ gatam || 4:48 ||

4.46 The demonstrative pronoun tasya in pāda c may refer to the guest: ‘he will obtain all his [i.e., the guest’s] merits,’ hinting at some sort of karmic exchange. Nevertheless, I think rather that tasya points to the merits one can obtain by the rituals listed in the previous verse. This is suggested by passages such as the following:

MBh Suppl. 13.14.379–380:

abany abani yo dadyāt kapilāṃ dvādaśīḥ samāḥi |
māsi māsi ca satreṇa yo yajeta sadā naraḥ ||
gavāṃ śatasahasraṃ ca yo dadyāj jyeṣṭhapaṣkare |
na taddharmaphalam tulyam atithir yasya tuṣyati ||;

Brahmavaivartapurāṇa 3.44–46:

atithiḥ pūjito yena pūjitāḥ sarvadevatāḥ |
atithir yasya saṃtuṣṭas tasya tuṣṭo hariḥ svayam ||
snānena sarvatīrtheṣu sarvadānena yat phalam |
sarvavratopavāseṇa sarvayajñeṣu dīkṣayā ||
sarvais tapobhir vividhair nityair naimittikādibhiḥ |
tad evātithisevāyāḥ kalām nārhanti ṣoḍaśim ||.

4.47 Something has gone wrong with pādas ab and I am unable to reconstruct the meaning. The translation tries to reflect what is actually transmitted. The line may have begun with something like nāgatātithyavajña^o (‘he who despises a guest that has arrived will not...’). I have accepted karhacit for standard karhicit in pāda b because it is attested in Buddhist texts, see Edgerton 1953, s.v. karhacid, and because the readings support it overwhelmingly, unlike in 4.3b above.

By one prastha [i.e., a small amount] of coarsely ground grains given to a guest, an extremely wonderful sacrifice was performed, and [a Brahmin] reached heaven [in] his body [i.e., in his mortal form].

nakulena purādhītaṃ vistareṇa dvijottama |
viditaṃ ca tvayā pūrvam prasthavārttā ca kīrtitā || 4:49 ||

[This] old [story] of the mongoose is [to be] read in detail [in the Mahābhārata], O great Brahmin, and you must know it already.
The story of the prastha is well-known.

[yameṣu damaḥ (5) —
Fifth Yama-rule: self-restraint]

dama eva manuṣyāṇāṃ dharmasārasamuccayaḥ |
damo dharmo damaḥ svargo damaḥ kīrtir damaḥ sukham || 4:50 ||

Self-restraint is in itself the distilled essence of Dharma for man.
Self-restraint is Dharma, self-restraint is heaven, self-restraint is fame, self-restraint is happiness.

damo yajño damas tīrthaṃ damaḥ puṇyam damas tapaḥ |
damahīna-m-adharmaś ca damaḥ kāmakulapradah || 4:51 ||

Self-restraint is sacrifice, self-restraint is a pilgrimage-place, self-restraint is merit, self-restraint is religious austerity. If one has no self-restraint,

4.48 This verse is a reference to the story related by a mongoose in MBh 14.92–93: A Brahmin who practises the vow of gleaning (uñcha), and his family, receive a guest. They feed the guest with the last morsels of the little food they have. In the end, the guest reveals that he is in fact Dharma (14.93.80cd) and as a reward the family departs to heaven. The noble act of the poor Brahmin and his family is depicted as yielding greater rewards than Yudhiṣṭhira's grandiose horse-sacrifice. (See an analysis of this story in Takahashi 2021.)

We would be forced to accept the reading of E in pāda d (saśarīro) if the expression were in the masculine (divam gataḥ). This would make sense and it would also echo expressions occurring, e.g., in the MBh: 3.164.33cd: paśya puṇyakṛtāṃ lokān saśarīro divam vraja; 14.5.10cd: saṃjīvyā kālam iṣṭam ca saśarīro divam gataḥ. It is tempting to emend accordingly, but instead I have retained saśarīram divam gatam, and I interpret it in a general way.

4.49 The syntax of pādas ab is slightly problematic if we take adbītaṃ in its usual sense ('studied through [the teaching of] the mongoose'); the line works better if we take it to mean 'taught,' which is possible. For the story of the mongoose in the Mahābhārata, see previous footnote.

one is a sinner (adharmā), [while] self-restraint yields a multitude of desired objects.

nirdamaḥ kari mīnaś ca pataṅgabhrāmaramṛgāḥ |
tvag jihvā ca tathā ghrāṇā cakṣuḥ śravaṇam indriyāḥ || 4:52 ||

The elephant, the fish, the moth, the bee, and the deer are without self-restraint. The senses are the skin, the tongue, the nose, the eye, and the ear.

durjayendriyam ekaikaṃ sarve prāṇaharāḥ smṛtāḥ |
damaṃ yo jayate 'samyag nirdamo nidhanaṃ vrajet || 4:53 ||

Each of these sense faculties are hard to conquer and all are known to be fatal [if unconquered]. If one masters self-restraint in a less than proper way, one remains unrestrained and will die.

mṛge śrotravaśān mṛtyuḥ pataṅgāś cakṣuḥ mṛtāḥ |
ghrāṇayā bhrāmāro naṣṭo naṣṭo mīnaś ca jihvayā || 4:54 ||

In the case of the deer, death comes about because of hearing [when, e.g., hunters use buck grunts]. Moths die because of their eyes [as they are attracted to the light of a lamp]. Bees perish because of their smelling [as they are attracted to smells], fish because of their tongues [when attracted by the bait].

sparśena ca karī naṣṭo bandhanāvāsaduḥsahaḥ |
kiṃ punaḥ pañcabhuktānāṃ mṛtyus tebhyaḥ kiṃ adbhutam || 4:55 ||

4.51 I suspect that the final m in dhamahīnam in pāda c is a hiatus-filler. Understand dhamahīno 'dharmaś ca. kāmakulapradāḥ in pāda d is slightly suspect. It may have originally read sarvakāmapradāḥ ('fulfilling all desires') or kulakāmapradāḥ ('fulfilling the desires of the family'). Śivadharmasāstra 4.28b reads sarvakāmasukhapradam, which opens up further possibilities.

4.52 Note kari for karī metri causa, and the end of pāda b, °mṛgāḥ, which should be treated metrically as if it read °mṛigāḥ.

4.53 The only way to make sense of pādas cd is to supply and avagraha before samyag. Otherwise some text may have dropped out here.

4.54 My comments in square brackets in the translation are tentative. See a verse from the Buddhacarita (11.35) in the apparatus that may have been the inspiration for this verse in the VSS. In Johnston's translation (1936, II. 157): 'For deer are lured to their destruction by songs, moths fly into the fire for its brightness, the fish greedy for the bait swallows the hook; therefore the objects of sense breed calamity.'

The elephant perishes from mere touch, unable to endure being kept in fetters. How much more true this is of those who enjoy all five [senses]! Why then should death come as a surprise to them?

purūravo 'tilobhena atikāmena daṇḍakaḥ |
sāgarās cātidarpeṇa atimānena rāvaṇaḥ || 4:56 ||

Purūravas [perished] by excessive greed, Daṇḍaka by excessive desire, Sagara's sons by excessive pride, Rāvaṇa by excessive haughtiness,

4.55 Mātāṅgalilā 11.1 may shed some light on elephants dying in captivity:
vānyas tatra sukhoṣītā vidhivaśād grāmāvatīrṇā gajā baddhās tikṣṇakaṭū-gravāgbhir atisugbbhīmohabandhādibbiḥ | udvignās ca manahśarīrajanitair duḥkhai-
rativākṣamāḥ prāṇān dhārayitum ciraṃ naravaśaṃ prāptāḥ swayūthād atha ||

In Edgerton's translation (1931, 92):

'Forest elephants who dwell there happily and by the power of fate have been brought to town in bonds, afflicted by harsh, bitter, cruel words, by excessive grief, fear, bewilderment, bondage, etc., and by sufferings of mind and body, are quite unable for long to sustain life, when from their own herds they have come into the control of men.'

4.56 We may treat purūravo in pāda 4 as a stem form noun or thematised stem, or imagine that the original reading was purūravā° with double sandhi: purūravās ati° → purūravā ati° → purūravāti°.

Pāda 4 may refer to the following passage in the MBh (1.70.16–18, 20ab):

purūravās tato vidvān ilāyāṃ samapadyata |
sā vai tasyābhavan mātā pitā ceti bi naḥ śrutam ||
trayodaśa samudrasya dvīpān aśnan purūravā |
amānuṣair vṛtaḥ sattvair mānuṣaḥ san mahāyaśā ||
vīpraiḥ sa vīgrahaṃ cakre vīryonmattaḥ purūravā |
jahāra ca sa vīprāṇāṃ ratnāny utkrośatām ap ||

tato maharṣibhiḥ kruddhaiḥ śaptaḥ sadyo vyanaśyata |

'The wise Purūravas was born to Ilā, who, as we have heard, was both his mother and his father. The great Purūravas ruled over thirteen islands of the ocean and, though human, was always surrounded by superhuman beings. Intoxicated by his power, Purūravas quarrelled with certain Brahmins and robbed them of their wealth, despite their protests. [...] Therefore, cursed by the great Ṛṣis, he perished.'

See also Buddhacarita 11.15 (Aiḍa = Purūravas):

aiḍaś ca rājā tridivam vigāhya nītvāpi devīm vaśam urvaśīm tām |
lobhād ṛṣibhyaḥ kanakam jībīrṣur jagāma nāśaṃ viṣayeṣv atriptaḥ ||

In Johnston's translation (1936, II. 152):

'Although the royal son of Idā penetrated the triple heaven and brought the goddess Urvaśi into his power, he was still unsatisfied with the objects of sense and came to destruction in his greedy desire to seize gold from the ṛṣis.'

atikrodhena saudāsa atipānena yādavāḥ |
atitṛṣṇāc ca māndhātā nahuṣo dvijavajñayā || 4:57 ||

Saudāsa by excessive anger, the Yādavas by excessive drinking, Māndhātṛ by excessive desire, Nahuṣa by contempt for Brahmins,

For Daṇḍa(ka)'s story, see Rāmāyaṇa 7.71.31 ff.: Daṇḍa meets Arajā, a beautiful girl, in a forest and rapes her. As a consequence, her father, Śukra/Bhārgava, destroys Daṇḍa's kingdom, which thus becomes the desolate Daṇḍaka-forest.

For two versions of the destruction of Sagara's sons (note the emendation in pāda c), who were chasing the sacrificial horse of their father's Aśvamedha sacrifice, and by doing so disturbed Kapila's meditation, and who in turn burnt them to ashes, see MBh 3.105.9 ff. and Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa 2.52–53.

As for Rāvaṇa's haughtiness—particularly his choice to be invincible to all beings except humans and the consequences of that choice—one should recall the story of the Rāmāyaṇa and Rāvaṇa's destruction at the hands of Rāma therein.

4.57 Saudāsa (note the sandhi between the two pādas), also known as Kalmāṣapāda, hit Śakti, Vasiṣṭha's son, with a whip because the latter did not give way to him, and as a consequence Śakti cursed Saudāsa: Saudāsa had to roam the world as a Rākṣasa for twelve years. See MBh 1.166.1ff.

As for the end of the Yādavas, see the short Mausalaparvan of the MBh (Book Sixteen): cursed by the sages Viśvāmitra, Kaṇva and Nārada, and confronted with menacing omens, the Yādavas take to drinking in Prabhāsa and annihilate each other.

Most probably, atitṛṣṇā in the MSS stands for atitṛṣṇāt (intending atitṛṣṇayā), and the forms māndhāto/mandhāto in C₄₅ stand for māndhātā (the nominative of māndhātṛ). I have corrected these despite the fact that the authors' knowledge about Māndhātṛ's story may derive from Divyāvadāna 17, where the name sometimes appears to be an a-stem noun (māndhāta). dvijavajñayā in pāda d stands for dvijāvajñayā metri causa.

Māndhātṛ was born from his father's body: once, being excessively thirsty, his father drank a decoction prepared for ritual purposes and therefore became pregnant with him. Nevertheless, Buddhacarita 11.13 suggests that Māndhātṛ himself remained unsatisfied with worldly objects, even after he had obtained half of Indra's throne:

devena vṛṣṭe 'pi hiranyavarṣe dvīpān samagrāṃś' caturo 'pi jītvā |
śakrasya cārdhāsanam apy avāpya māndhātūr āsīd viśayeṣv atriptiḥ ||

In Johnston's translation (1936, II. 151):

'Though the heavens rained gold for him and though he conquered the whole of the four continents and won half the seat of Śakra, yet Māndhātṛ's longing for the objects of sense remained unappeased.'

Nahuṣa was elevated to the position of Indra for a period of time and he also desired to take Śacī, Indra's wife. Indra instructed Śacī to tell Nahuṣa to harness some Rṣis to a chariot and use this vehicle to carry Śacī. When Nahuṣa further insulted Agastya, one of the Rṣis, the sage cursed him, and Nahuṣa fell from the chariot. See MBh 12.329.35ff and a verse in the Buddhacarita (11.14) that comes after the one about Māndhātṛ:

bhuktvāpi rājyaṃ divi devatānāṃ śatakratau vṛtrabhayāt pranaṣṭe |
darpan maharṣiṇ api vāhayitvā kāmēṣv atripto nahuṣaḥ papāta ||

atidānād balir naṣṭa atisauryeṇa arjunaḥ |
atidyūtān nalo rājā nṛgo goharaṇena tu || 4:58 ||

[Mahā]bali perished by excessive gifting, Arjuna by excessive heroism, King Nala by excessive gambling, Nṛga by taking a cow.

damena hīnaḥ puruṣo dvijendra
svargaṃ ca mokṣaṃ ca sukhaṃ ca nāsti | viññānadharmakulakīrtināśa
bhavanti vipra damayā vibhīnāḥ || 4:59 ||

[For] a person who is without self-restraint, O great Brahmin, there is no heaven, liberation or happiness. O Brahmin, people without self-restraint are the destruction of knowledge, Dharma, family and fame.

In Johnston's translation (1936, II. 151):

'Although he enjoyed sovereignty over the gods in heaven, when Śatakratu hid himself for fear of Vṛtra, and though out of wanton pride he made the great ṛṣis carry him, yet Nahuṣa fell, being still unsatisfied with the passions.'

4.58 Pāda a is most probably a reference to Mahābali's promises made to Vāmana that caused his own fall. The ultimate cause of Arjuna's death while the Pāṇḍavas were on the way to the underworld was summarised by Yudhiṣṭhira thus (MBh 17.2.21ab):

ekāhnā nirdabeyaṃ vai śatrūn ity arjuno 'bravīt |
na ca tat kṛtavān eṣa śūramānī tato 'patat ||;

'Arjuna claimed that he could destroy the enemy in one single day. He failed to do so. He was a boaster, that is why he fell.'

King Nala was an expert in the game of dice but once he lost his kingdom to Puṣkara. See, e.g., MBh 3.56.1ff.

As for Nṛga, see MBh 14.93.74:

gopradānasahasrāṇi dvijebhyo 'dān nṛgo nṛpaḥ |
ekāṃ dattvā sa pāraḥ narakam samavāptavān ||;

'King Nṛga had donated thousands of cows to the twice-born. By giving away one single cow that belonged to someone else, he fell into hell.'

4.59 Metre: upajāti. Note svarga and mokṣa in pāda b: they are usually masculine in standard Sanskrit. The majority of the witnesses suggest that pāda c ends in a stem form noun (°nāśa), although a singular masculine nominative (as in E) may work. This pāda is unmetrical, or rather it applies the licence of a word-final short syllable being counted as potentially long (°dharMA°; see p. 41). Note how viprā in pāda d is probably an attempt in some MSS to restore the metre. This pāda is also unmetrical, or rather the licence of a word-final short syllable being counted as potentially long is applied again (viPRA).

[yameṣu ghrṇā (6) —
Sixth Yama-rule: taboos]

nirghrṇo na paratrāsti nirghrṇo na ihāsti vai |
nirghrṇe na ca dharmo 'sti nirghrṇe na tapo 'sti vai || 4:60 ||

There is no one without taboos either in this or the other world. If one has no taboos, one cannot have Dharma or religious austerity.

parastrīṣu parārtheṣu paraḥjīvāpakarṣaṇe |
paranindāparānneṣu ghrṇāṃ pañcasu kārayet || 4:61 ||

These five should be regarded as taboo: women who are not under one's protection, the wealth of others, taking others' lives, causing harm to others, and [consuming] others' food.

parastrī śṛṇu viprendra ghrṇīkāryā sadā budhaiḥ |
rājñī viprī parivrājā svayonīparayoniṣu || 4:62 ||

Listen, O great Brahmin. The wise should always regard as taboo any woman not under one's protection, [whether she be] a queen, a Brahmin's wife, a wandering religious mendicant, a relative, or of another caste.

parārthe śṛṇu bhūyo 'nya anyāyārtha-m-upārjanam |
ādḥapraṣṭhatulāvyaḥ parārthaṃ yo 'pakarṣati || 4:63 ||

Listen further, with regards to the wealth of others. [It includes] acquiring wealth through unlawful means, [such as] when someone cheats with weights of one ādḥa[ka] or a praṣṭha, or with scales, to take away another's property.

jīvāpakarṣaṇe vipra ghrṇīkurvīta paṇḍitaḥ |
vanajāvanajā jīvā vilagās' caranācarāḥ || 4:64 ||

4.62 The translation of parayoni ('of another caste?') in pāda d is tentative.

4.63 Although 'nya' in pāda a could be interpreted several ways (e.g., anye for anyas-min, or taken to be the first element of a compound: anya-anyāyārtha-), I think that bhūyo 'nyat is a fixed expression meaning 'something/anything more.' See, e.g., BhG 7.2cd: yaj jñātvā neha bhūyo 'nyaj jñātvāyam avaśīyate. Understand pāda b as a compound (anyāya-artha-upārjanam). See cheating with scales mentioned in 4.23.

O Brahmin, the wise should regard the taking of life as taboo, [whether it be of] wild or domesticated beings, serpents, plants, or animals.

paranindā ca kā vipra śṛṇu vakṣye samāsataḥ |
devānāṃ brāhmaṇānāṃ ca gurumātātithidviṣaḥ || 4:65 ||

And what does causing harm to others comprise? Listen, O Brahmin, I shall tell you briefly. He who is hostile to the gods, Brahmins, the guru, to a mother, or to guests [is one who causes harm to others].

parānneṣu ghrṇā kāryā abhojyeṣu ca bhojanam |
sūtake mṛtake śauṇḍe varṇabhraṣṭakule naṭe || 4:66 ||

As regards the food of others, eating together with people whose food is not to be accepted (abhojyeṣu) is taboo—[for example] after a birth or death [in the family], in the case of vendors of alcohol, a family that has lost its caste, or a [member of the] Naṭa [caste of dancers].

4.64 In pāda d, I take carāṇācarāḥ as standing for carācarāḥ (cara-acarāḥ) metri causa. Alternatively, it may be understood as carāṇacarāḥ (metri causa), meaning ‘those who move on their feet,’ perhaps in contrast to snakes (bilaga or bilamga). Neither solution is fully satisfactory. Note also that this pāda involves a small correction.

4.65 Note mātā as a stem form in pāda d.

4.66 One should probably understand śauṇḍe in pāda c as śauṇḍike, ‘a distiller,’ or, alternatively, it may be corrupted from ṣaṇḍhe, ‘a eunuch’; see both in Vāsiṣṭhadharma-sūtra 14.1–3:

athāto bhojyābhojyaṃ ca varṇayīṣyāmaḥ | cikitsaka-mṛgayu-puṃścali-dāṇḍikastenābbhiṣastar-ṣaṇḍha-patitānām annam abhojyam | kadarya-dikṣita-baddhātura-soma-vikrayi-takṣa-rajaka-śauṇḍika-sūcaka-vārdhuṣika-carmāvakraṇtānām ||, etc.

The above passage is translated by Olivelle (1999, 285) as: ‘Next we will describe food that is fit and food that is unfit to be eaten [...] The following are unfit to be eaten: food given by a physician, a hunter, a harlot, a law enforcement agent, a thief, a heinous sinner [...] a eunuch, or an outcaste; as also that given by a miser, a man consecrated for a sacrifice, a prisoner, a sick person, a man who sells Soma, a carpenter, a washerman, a liquor dealer, a spy, an usurer, a leather worker...’

In support of reading ṣaṇḍhe, one might consult Manu 3.239:

cāṇḍālaś ca varāhaś ca kukkuṭaḥ śvā tathaiva ca |
rajasvalā ca ṣaṇḍhaś ca nekṣerann aśnato dvijān ||

This verse is translated by Olivelle (2005, 120) as:

‘A Cāṇḍāla, a pig, a cock, a dog, a menstruating woman, or a eunuch must not look at the Brahmins while they are eating.’

ete pañcagbr̥ṇāsu saktapurūṣāḥ svargārthamokṣārthino
loke 'nindanam āpnuvanti satataṃ kīrtir yaśo'laṃkṛtam | prajñābodhaśrutim smṛtiṃ ca labhate mānam ca nityaṃ labhed dākṣiṇyaṃ sabhabet sa āyusa param prāpnoti niḥsaṃśayaḥ || 4:67 ||

Those people who stick to the five kinds of taboo [and thus] seek heaven, wealth and liberation, will reach eternal faultlessness in this world, embellished with fame and glory. [A person like that] will obtain wisdom, intelligence, [knowledge of] the Śruti and Smṛti traditions, and honour forever. Kindness will arise and he will obtain an extra long life, no doubt.

[yameṣu dhanyaḥ (7) —
 Seventh Yama-rule: virtue]

caturmaunaṃ catuḥśatruś caturāyatanam tathā |
caturdhyānam catuṣpādam pañcadhanyavidbhocyate || 4:68 ||

The four cases of observing silence, [victory over] the four enemies, the four sanctuaries, the four meditations, and the four-legged [Dharma] are called the five ways of being virtuous.

caturmaunasya vakṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvāvahito bhava |
pāruṣyapiśunāmithyā sambhinnāni ca varjayet || 4:69 ||

I shall tell you about the four cases of observing silence. Listen, be attentive. One should avoid violent and slanderous [words], lies, and idle [talk].

4.67 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Understand kīrtir-yaśo° as kīrtiyaśo° ('r' being an intrusive consonant here metri causa), as in 5.20b below. Alternatively, emend to kīrtim yaśo'laṃkṛtām. In pāda c, note the krama licence that allows °bodhaśrutim° to scan as - U U -, the consonant cluster śr not turning the previous syllable long. Pāda d has several problems. I take sabhabet as standing for sambhabet metri causa, and I had to emend saṃāyusa to sa āyusa to make sense of it. Understand āyusa as āyuh (metri causa), otherwise accept E's sa mānuṣa. Also consider correcting niḥsaṃśayaḥ to niḥsaṃśayam.

4.68 Understand pāda d as pañcavidho dhanya ucyate.

4.69 Note the genitive with a verb meaning 'to tell' in pāda a, similarly to 1.37a and 4.17ab (see p. 36). Compare the four types of mauna taught here with the five types of maunavrata, as the ninth Niyama-rule, in VSS 8.25–33 below. Similar lists on mauna are often found in Buddhist texts: see references, e.g., in Edgerton 1953 s.v. paśūnika and sambhinnapralāpa. See also the relevant Divyāvadāna 186.21, as well as Dharmaputrikā 1.31cd–32ab quoted in the apparatus.

*kāmaḥ krodhaś ca lobhaś ca mohaś caiva caturvidhaḥ |
catuḥśatrur nihantavyaḥ so 'rihā vītakalmaṣaḥ || 4:70 ||*

The fourfold enemy [made up of] desire, anger, greed, and delusion is to be destroyed. He who destroys [these] enemies will become sinless.

*caturāyatanaṃ vipra kathayiṣyāmi tac chr̥ṇu |
karuṇā muditopekṣā maitrī cāyatanaṃ smṛtam || 4:71 ||*

I shall teach you the four sanctuaries. Listen, O Brahmin. Compassion, sympathy in joy, indifference, and benevolence are the four sanctuaries.

*caturdhyānādhunā vakṣye saṃsārārṇavatāraṇam |
ātmavidyābhavaḥ sūkṣmaṃ dhyānam uktaṃ caturvidham || 4:72 ||*

I shall now teach you the four meditations, which will liberate you from transmigration. Meditation is taught to be fourfold: of the Self, vidyā, bhava [= Śiva] and the subtle one (sūkṣma).

*ātmātattvaḥ smṛto dharmo vidyā pañcasu pañcadhā |
ṣaṭtriṃśākṣaram ity ābuh sūkṣmatattvam alakṣaṇam || 4:73 ||*

4.70 Possible direct sources for the idea that kāma is an enemy to be defeated or avoided include Buddhacarita 11.17:

*cīrāmbarā mūlaphalāmbubhākṣā jaṭā vahanto 'pi bhujamgadīrghāḥ |
yair nānyakāryā munayo 'pi bhagnāḥ kaḥ kāmasaṃjñān mṛgayeta śatrūn ||.*

In Johnston's translation (1936, II. 152):

'Who would seek after the enemies known as the passions, by whom even sages were undone, despite their bark-dresses, their diet of roots and water, their coils of hair long as snakes, and their lack of worldly interests.'

See also BhG 3.37–43 on kāma as an enemy. As for aribā in pāda d, the notion that a saint is a 'destroyer of the enemies' [that are evil states of mind] (aribanta/arabanta) in Jainism, but less so in Buddhism, is discussed in Gombrich 2013, 57–58.

4.71 This verse teaches the four Buddhist brahmavibhāras under the label caturāyatana. Therefore the word āyatana seems to be a synonym of vibhāra here, and its use a way of appropriating it, turning the list into a Brahmanical one—unless the two terms are simply mixed up.

4.72 Note the stem form dhyāna in °dhyānādhunā (for °dhyānam adhunā) in pāda a.

The tattva of the Self is Dharma. Vidyā is in the five in a fivefold way. They call the thirty-sixth the imperishable one [Śiva]. The subtle tattva has no attributes.

catuspādaḥ smṛto dharmas caturāśramam āśritaḥ |
gṛbhasṭho brahmacārī ca vānaprastho 'tha bhaikṣukaḥ || 4:74 ||

The four-legged [bull] is said to be Dharma [as] it rests on the four social disciplines (āśrama), [those of] the householder, the chaste one, the forest-dweller and the mendicant.

dhanyās te yair idam vetti nikhilena dvijottama |
pāvanam sarvapāpānām puṇyānām ca pravardhanam || 4:75 ||

Virtuous are those who know these thoroughly, O great Brahmin. [They will experience] the purification of all sins and the growth of merits.

āyuh kīrtir yaśaḥ saukhyaṁ dhanyād eva pravardhate |
śāntiḥ puṣṭiḥ smṛtir medhā jāyate dhanyamānave || 4:76 ||

One's life-span, fame and glory, and happiness, grow only through virtue (dhanya). In a virtuous person peace, prosperity, tradition (smṛti) and intelligence will arise.

[yameṣv apramādaḥ (8) —

Eighth Yama-rule: avoiding mistakes]

pramādashāna pañcaiva kīrtayiṣyāmi tac chrṇu |
brahmahatyā surāpānaṁ steyo gurvāṅganāgamam |
mahāpātakaṁ ity āhus tatsaṁyogī ca pañcamah || 4:77 ||

4.73 This verse is difficult to interpret. Pādas a to d should define ātman, vidyā, bhava (i.e., Śiva), and sūkṣma, objects of meditation, respectively. In pāda a, dharmo is suspect: it may be the result of an eyeskip to pāda a of the next verse. Pāda b might refer to tattvas in an ontological system of twenty-five tattvas. Pāda c seems a reference to a tantric 36-tattva ontological system, in striking contrast with the 25-tattva system described in VSS chapter 20. Compare the rather similar dhyānayaṁjña section in VSS 6.7ff, in which five types of meditations are taught.

4.75 Note the ergative syntax with the plural instrumental (yair) and a singular active verb. See more on this on p. 35.

4.76 Emending °mānavah to °mānave may risk overcorrection, and °mānavah may have originally been felt as a genitive ('for a person...').

There are five areas of making serious mistakes. I shall teach them to you, listen. Murdering a Brahmin, drinking alcohol, stealing, having sex with the guru's wife: they call these grievous sins. The fifth is when one is connected with them [i.e., with these sins or with people involved in these sinful acts].

anṛtaṃ ca samutkarṣe rājagāmī ca paśūnaḥ |
guroś cālīkanirbandhaḥ samāni brahmahatyayā || 4:78 ||

A lie concerning one's superiority, a slander that reaches the king's ear, and false accusations against an elder are equal to killing a Brahmin.

brahmojjhaṃ vedanindā ca kūṭasākṣī subṛdvaḍhaḥ |
garhitānādyayor jagdhiḥ surāpānasamāni ṣaṭ || 4:79 ||

Abandoning the Vedas, reviling the Vedas, being a false witness, murdering a friend, eating unfit or forbidden food are six [deeds that are] equal to drinking alcohol.

retotsekaḥ svayonyāsu kumārīṣv antyajāsu ca |
sakhyuḥ putrasya ca strīṣu gurutaḥpasamaḥ smṛtaḥ || 4:80 ||

Sexual intercourse with a female relative, with an unmarried girl, with women of the lowest castes, with the wife of a friend or of one's own son are said to be equal to violating the guru's bed.

4.77 Note the stem form noun in pāda a (°sthāna) metri causa, and also that this stem form noun may function as a singular noun next to a number (pañca), a frequently seen phenomenon in this text.

See the apparatus to the Sanskrit text for very similar verses in the MBh, Manu and the Yājñavalkyasmṛti, and note how pāda f slightly deviates from Manu 11.55, which is translated in Olivelle 2005, 217–218 as: 'Killing a Brahmin, drinking liquor, stealing, and having sex with an elder's wife—they call these "grievous sins causing loss of caste"; and so is establishing any links with such individuals.'

4.78 This verse being a quotation of Manu 11.56, my translation is based on Olivelle 2005, 218. On lies and slander (or 'malignant speech,' paśūna), see also VSS 4.69 and 8.25–28.

4.79 This verse continues quoting Manu. Pāda a in the witnesses may actually be no more than the result of misreading of the syllable jjha in Manu 11.57. Note our variant brahmojjhaṃ vedanindā ca—in contrast with brahmojjhatā vedanindā, the better-known phrasing—in both the 'Northern' and 'Southern' transmissions in Olivelle's critical edition of Manu (Olivelle 2005, 847).

4.80 The text, and my emendation in pāda c, still follow Manu (11.59).

nikṣepasyāpaharaṇaṃ narāśvarajatasya ca |
bhūmivajramaṇīnāṃ ca rukmasteyasamaḥ smṛtaḥ || 4:81 ||

Stealing deposits, people, horses, silver, land, diamonds, or gems are said to be equal to stealing gold.

catvāra ete sambhūya yat pāpaṃ kurute naraḥ |
mahāpātaka pañcāitat tena sarvaṃ prakāśitam |
pañcapramādam etāni varjanīyaṃ dvijottama || 4:82 ||

A man commits sin if [any of] these four [i.e., brahmahatyā, surā-pāna, stena, gurvaṅganāgama] occurs, therefore all the five grievous sins have been explained. These five kinds of mistakes are to be avoided, O great Brahmin.

[yameṣu mādhuburyam (9) —
Ninth Yama-rule: charm]

kāyavānmanamādhuryaś cakṣur buddhiś ca pañcamah |
saumyadr̥ṣṭipradānaṃ ca krūrabuddhiṃ ca varjayet || 4:83 ||

[Charm has five types:] bodily, verbal and mental charm, [charm of] the eyes and [of one's] thoughts, as fifth. Giving [others] a friendly glance [is commendable] and one should avoid cruel thoughts.

prasannamanasā dhyāyet priyavākyaṃ udīrayet |
yathāśaktipradānaṃ ca svāśramābhyāgato guruḥ || 4:84 ||

4.81 This is Manu 11.58. I have emended rugma° to rukma° in pāda d, although rugma° is attested in a great number of Southern MSS and one Śārādā MS in Olivelle 2005, 847.

4.82 The translation of pādas ab is tentative. Perhaps understand pāda c as etan mahāpātakapañcakaṃ. Note the confusion of number and gender in pāda d: understand pañca pramādāḥ etā varjanīyāḥ.

4.83 My emendation from °manasā dhūryaś to °mana-mādhuryaś is based on the fact that following the list of yamas in 3.16, we need some reference to mādhurya here and that it is easy to see how this corruption came about: °mano-mādhurya° would be unmetrical, hence the form °mana-mādhurya; °mana-mā° is easily corrupted to °manasā° (not to mention the fact that manasā comes up in the next verse). In addition, we need five items in this line because of pañcamah. As always, I correct mādhūrya to mādhurya, although it seems that the former is acceptable in this text. I did not correct mādhuryaś to mādhuryam because of the corresponding pañcamah.

One should meditate with a tranquil mind and should speak [to other people using] gentle words. [When] respectable people arrive at one's own hermitage, [one should] present them with as many gifts as one can,

indhanodakadānaṃ ca jātavedam athāpi vā |
sulabhāni na dattāni indhanāgnyudakāni ca |
kṣute jīveti vā noktaṃ tasya kiṃ parataḥ phalam || 4:85 ||

with gifts of fire-wood, water and fire. [If] fire-wood, fire and water are easily available [but] are not given [as gift] or [if the phrase] ‘Live [for a hundred years]!’ is not uttered when [somebody] sneezes, what reward could there be for such a person in the afterlife?

[yameṣv ārjavam (10) —
 Tenth Yama-rule: sincerity]

pañcārjavāḥ praśaṃsanti munayas tattvadarśinaḥ |
karmavṛttyābbhivṛddhiṃ ca pārītoṣikam eva ca |
strīdhanotkocavittaṃ ca ārjavo nābbhinandati || 4:86 ||

The sages who see the truth praise five types of sincerity. A sincere person does not rejoice in prosperity arising from the operation of karma or by a reward, in riches from women, from property, and bribery.

4.84 Pādas cd of the previous verse, and pādas ab of the present one cover four categories of the above: caḥṣurmādhurya, buddhimādhurya, dṛṣṭimādhurya and vāg-mādhurya. This suggests that what follows is on kāyamādhurya. Emending pāda d to svāśramābhyāgate gurau would make the line smoother.

4.85 Understand jātavedam in pāda b as jātavedasam or jātavedāḥ, or rather as belonging to the compound °dānaṃ: jātavedodānaṃ. For pāda e, see an Āryāgīti verse in the Mahāsubhāṣitasamgraha (2558):

amṛtāyatām iti vadet pīte bhukte kṣute ca śataṃ jīva |
choṭikayā saba jṛmbhāsamaye syātām cirāyurānandau ||;

‘When eating or drinking, one should say: “May it turn into nectar!”; and after sneezing: “Live for a hundred years!” By snapping the thumb and forefinger when yawning, there will be long life and happiness.’

4.86 °ārjavāḥ should be in the accusative, therefore it is to be taken as feminine (rather than neuter) or as an irregular form for °ārjavāni. I have emended pārītoṣikam to pārītoṣikam. My translation of the categories listed here is tentative, the only guiding light being that, if the first line is right, there should be five of them. In addition, I have tried to find categories that seem to be, more or less, in conflict with ‘sincerity’ or ‘straightness.’

ārjavo na vṛthā yajña ārjavo na vṛthā tapaḥ |
ārjavo na vṛthā dānam ārjavo na vṛthāgnayaḥ || 4:87 ||

If one is not sincere, sacrifice is in vain. If one is not sincere, austerity is in vain. If one is not sincere, gifting is in vain. If one is not sincere, [sacrificial] fires are in vain.

ārjavasyendriyagrāmaḥ suprasanno 'pi tiṣṭhati |
ārjavasya sadā devāḥ kāye tasya caranti te || 4:88 ||

The sense faculties of a sincere person are firm even when he is delighted. The gods are always present in the body of a sincere person.

Thus has this section on the Yama-rules been taught, O great Brahmin. Humans should follow them to attain happiness both here and in the other world. By removing the filth of sins, one shall, by Śaṅkara's command, become a ruler of the world, bringing it under a single royal umbrella.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṁgrāhe yamavibhāgo nāmādhyāyaś caturthaḥ ||

Here ends the fourth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṁgraha called the Section on the Yama-rules.

4.89 Metre: mālinī. In pāda a °pra° does not make the previous syllable long: this is the phenomenon of 'muta cum liquida,' or krama licence, one of the hallmarks of the VSS, that is, syllables such as tra, pra, bra, dra do not necessarily make the previous syllable long. In pāda b, parata most probably stands for paratra or parataḥ metri causa. We may correct it to paratra, presupposing the presence of the krama licence also here. °malapahārī in the MSS stands either for °malāpahārī or °malaprabhārī metri causa. I could have chosen to emend it to °malaprabhārī again applying the krama licence, but I decided not to because apahārīn, apahāra, apahāraka are used in the text very frequently. See also 8.44c, which contains a very similar expression: sakalamalapahāre dbarmapañcāśad etat.

[Chapter Five]

[niyamāḥ — Niyama-rules]

vigatarāga uvāca |

Vigatarāga spoke: Now teach me the true nature of the Niyama-rules in detail. I have become desirous to hear [your] teaching that is comparable to ambrosia. Tell [me] more (apara vada), [to me who had been] burnt by the fire of materiality (prakṛti), [but is now] sprinkled with the water of knowledge, and is ignorant of [the topic]. One can't have enough of the [teaching on] Dharmas (nāsti dharmeṣu tṛptiḥ).

Anarthayajña spoke: I shall teach you something else that is nice to hear, O best of the twice-born. The [ten] individual Niyamas are fivefold [each]. It is the essence of Dharma, dear to Hari, Hara and the sages, O great Brahmin, the destruction of the impurity of the 5.1 Metre (5.1–2): mālīnī. Most witnesses read amṛtavādana^o in pāda b. This is slightly odd in the sense of 'speech,' the meaning required here, therefore I follow M. One wonders if it is not amṛtasvādana or ^o*svādana* ('tasting nectar') what was meant originally. I translate the phrase in question as if it read amṛtatulyavacanam. The first half of pāda d is difficult to interpret safely. apara vada ('tell me more') might be original, with apara in stem form. The phrase matājñā is now emended to -m-atajjñam, containing a hiatus break. Otherwise it could be understood as matājñānam ('knowledge of the doctrine'), or emended to matājña (with the last syllable taken as long) and translated as a vocative ('O knower of the doctrine'). Note M's reading for the end of the line (me dharmatṛptiḥ).

Kali age, known as quasi-liberation.

*śaucam iḥyā tapo dānaṃ svādhyāyopasthanigrahaḥ |
vratopavāsamaunaṃ ca snānaṃ ca niyamā daśa || 5:3 ||*

Purification, sacrifice, penance, gifting, Vedic study, the restraint of sexual desire, religious observances, fasting, observing silence, and bathing: these are the ten Niyamas.

[niyameṣu śaucam (1) —
First Niyama-rule: purity]

*tatra śaucādinirdeśaṃ vakṣyāmīha dvijottama |
śārīraśaucam āhāro mātṛā bhāvaś ca pañcamah || 5:4 ||*

From among these, now I shall tell you the particulars of the first—purification. [1] Bodily purity, [2] [purity of] food, [3] [purity of] livelihood[?] (mātṛā), [4] [purity of] character (bhāva), and the fifth, [5]...

[śārīraśaucam — Purity of the Body]

*tādayen na ca bandheta na ca prāṇair viyojayet |
parastrīparadravyeṣu śaucam kāyikam ucyate || 5:5 ||*

He should not beat, tie or kill [any living being]. [This and] purity concerning others' wives and property is called bodily purity.

5.2 My suspicion is that °kala° in pāda b stands for kalā metri causa. Similarly, °munibhīṣṭam is metri causa, for °munyabhīṣṭam ('dear to the sages'). In pāda d, prāya° is suspect. Compare with 6.1c: dharmamokṣaprasiddhyartham.

5.3 See this verse in Līṅgapurāṇa 1.8.29cd–30ab and Viṣṇudharmottara 3.233.202.

5.4 The following passages deal with śārīraśauca (5.5–9) and āhāraśauca (5.10–16), therefore pāda c is probably correct, and M's reading (śārīrasrotam āhāra) seems wrong. Even if we could interpret pāda d with any certainty, there is one element missing in this list of allegedly five items. Something must have dropped out here. Oddly enough, the chapter stops after teaching the second type of purity, āhāraśauca, so we are left without a clue. MBh Suppl. 14.4.3229–3230, which seems relevant at first sight, is not very helpful either:

*manaḥśaucam karmaśaucam kulaśaucam ca bhārata |
śārīraśaucam vākśaucam śaucam pañcavidhaṃ smṛtam ||*

5.5 Note the application of the krāma licence in pāda c: the first syllable of dravyeṣu does not make the previous syllable heavy.

*śrotraśaucam dvijaśreṣṭha gudopasthamukhādayaḥ |
mukhasyācamanaṃ śaucam āhāravacaneṣu ca || 5:6 ||*

The cleanliness of the ears, O great Brahmin, and of the anus, the loins, the mouth, etc. [also contributes to bodily purity]. The purity of the mouth [comes from] sipping water before eating and speaking.

*mūtraviṣṭāsamutsarge devatārādhaneṣu ca |
mṛttoyais tu gudopastham śaucayīta vicakṣaṇaḥ || 5:7 ||*

After the emission of urine and faeces, and before the worship of gods, the wise one should clean his anus and his loins with clay and water.

*ekopasthe gude pañca tathaikatra kare daśa |
ubhayoḥ sapta dātavyā mṛdaḥ śuddhiṃ samīhatā || 5:8 ||*

One [portion of clay] for the loins, five for the anus, ten for one hand, [then] seven [portions] of clay are to be applied for both [hands] by him who wishes cleanliness.

*etac chaucam gr̥basthānām dviguṇam brahmacārīṇām |
vānaprasthasya triguṇam yatīnām tu caturguṇam || 5:9 ||*

This is the purification for the householder (gr̥bastha). It is twice as much for the chaste one (brahmacārī), three times as much for the forest-dweller (vānaprastha), and four times as much for the ascetic (yati).

5.7 Note the peculiar verb form śaucayīta (for a more standard śocayeta). M's śaucayē[c] ca may be close to an original reading.

5.8 In essence, this verse is Manu 5.136. Olivelle's notes (2005, 287) on this verse read: 'on one hand: within the context the meaning is clear: "one hand" refers to the left hand, with which the person applied the earth and water to the penis and anus. All purifications below the navel are carried out using the left hand. Variant reading: "on the left hand."'

5.9 This verse corresponds to Manu 5.137. Note the krama licence in pāda c: tr does not turn the previous syllable heavy and the pāda becomes a na-vipulā.

[ābhāraśaucam — Purity of the food]

ābhāraśaucam vakṣyāmi śṛṇuṣvāvahito bhava |
bhāgadvayaṃ tu bhuñjīta bhāgam ekaṃ jalaṃ pibet |
vāyusaṃcāradānārthaṃ caturthaṃ avaśeṣayet || 5:10 ||

I shall teach you the rules of purity concerning food. Listen, pay great attention. One should eat [as much] food [that fills] two quarters [of the stomach] and drink water [that fills] one quarter. In order to give passage to the air, one should save the remaining quarter.

snigdhasvādurasaiḥ ṣaḍbhir ābhāraṣaḍrasair budbhaḥ |
dhātuvaiṣamyānāśo 'sti na ca rogāḥ sudāruṇāḥ || 5:11 ||

It is through the six soft and sweet juices—the six flavours in food—that the imbalance of the constituents (dhātu) disappear and terrible illnesses do not arise for the wise.

5.10 Śaṅkara quotes a similar verse in his commentary ad Bhagavadgītā 6.16 (see apparatus). It translates as: 'Half is for saucy food, the third part for water, but in order to be able to move the air, one should leave the fourth part [empty].' This verse and one in the Sannyāsopaniṣad (see apparatus) have saṃcaraṇārthaṃ tu and saṃcaraṇārthāya, respectively, where our verse in the VSS has saṃcāradānārthaṃ. It would be tempting to emend but the VSS version works fine more or less, therefore there is no need to alter the text.

5.11 The readings may suggest that pāda b contains sadrava or maybe sudrava, but then it would be difficult to make sense of the sentence. If the reading budbhaḥ is left unaltered, and is taken as an agent, we lack a verb—ābhāra might be a mistake for ābaret (see M). I now take budbhaḥ as an odd form for the genitive (budhasya), and that is how I translate the sentence. Alternatively, one may emend it to the vocative (budha).

The Āyurvedic implications of this clumsy verse are not entirely clear to me. What is clear is that traditionally there are six basic flavours or 'juices' in food. See, e.g. Bhelasamhitā 1.28.1:

yad bhakṣayati bhuñkte vā vidbivac cāpi mānavaḥ |
anyac ca kiñcit pibati tat sarvaṃ ṣaḍrasānvitam ||;

'All that a human eats or enjoys according to the rules, and furthermore all that he or she drinks, is endowed with the six flavours.'

To repair pādas ab, one should perhaps imagine that the intended meaning was that the six flavours/juices should be present in a harmonious proportion in a wise man's food. Cf. Bhelasamhitā 3.1.1:

śarīraṃ dhārayantīha ṣaḍrasāḥ samam āhṛtāḥ |
ato 'nyathā vikārāṃs tu janayanti śarīriṇām ||;

abhakṣyaṃ ca na bhakṣeta apeyaṃ na ca pāyayet |
agamyaṃ na ca gamyeta avācyaṃ na ca bhāṣayet || 5:12 ||

He should not eat what is forbidden and he should not drink what is forbidden. He should not go where he is not allowed to and he should not say what is improper.

laśunaṃ ca palāṇḍuṃ ca gr̥ñjanaṃ kavakāni ca |
gauram ca sūkaram māmśam varjayec ca vidhānataḥ || 5:13 ||

He should avoid garlic, onion, gr̥ñjana onion, mushrooms, buffalo meat, and pork, in accordance with the rules.

chattrākaṃ viḍvarāhaṃ ca gomāmśam ca na bhakṣayet |
caṭakaṃ ca kapotaṃ ca jālapādāṃś ca varjayet || 5:14 ||

He should not eat chattrāka mushrooms, village hog, and cow flesh. He should also avoid sparrows, pigeons, and water-birds.

haṃsasārasacakrābhvakukkuṭān śukaśyenakān |
kākolūkaṃ balākaṃ ca matsyādīṃś cāpi varjayet || 5:15 ||

He should also avoid [eating] geese, cranes, cakravāka birds, cocks, parrots, and hawks, crows, owls, herons, fish, etc.

amedhyāṃś cāpavitrāṃś ca sarvān eva vivarjayet |
śākamūlaphalānāṃ ca abhakṣyaṃ parivarjayet || 5:16 ||

He should avoid everything that is ritually impure or polluted. He should also completely avoid those vegetables, roots and fruits, that are prohibited.

‘The six flavours will support the body in this world when brought to a balanced state. Otherwise they will cause defects to people.’ On dhātuvaiśamyā, the balanced state of the bodily constituents pitta, kapha and vāyu, see, e.g., Carakasamhitā 1.9.4:

vikāro dhātuvaiśamyam sāmam prakṛtir ucyate |
sukhasamjñakam ārogyam vikāro duḥkham eva ca ||;

‘The imbalance of the dhātus means defects. Balance is said to be natural. Health is happiness, defects are suffering.’ See also VSS 9.2 below.

5.12 Understand the causative pāyayet as simplex.

5.15 Note that in pāda b the first syllable of śyenakān does not turn the previous syllable, śu, heavy (krama licence).

mānaveṣu purāṇeṣu śaivabhāratasaṃhite |
kīrtitāni viśeṣeṇa śaucācāram aśeṣataḥ |
tvayā jijñāsito 'smy adya saṃkṣiptaḥ kathito mayā || 5:17 ||

In the books of Manu, in the Purāṇas, in Śaiva texts, and in the Bhāratasaṃhitā (i.e., the Mahābhārata), the practice of purity is expounded thoroughly and in great detail. Since you have asked me [about it], I have taught it [to you] in a condensed form.

satyavādī śucir nityaṃ dhyānayogarataḥ śuciḥ |
ahiṃsakaḥ śucir dānto dayābhūtakṣamā śuciḥ || 5:18 ||

He who speaks the truth is always pure. He who engages in yogic meditation is pure. He who avoids violence and is restrained is pure. Compassion towards living beings and patience is purity.

sarveṣāṃ eva śaucānām arthaśaucaṃ paraṃ smṛtam |
yo 'rthe hi śuciḥ sa śucir na mṛdvāriśuciḥ śuciḥ |
kāyavānmanasām śaucaṃ sa śuciḥ sarvavastuṣu || 5:19 ||

Of all the [ways of] purification, material purification is taught to be the highest. For he who is pure with regards to material things is truly pure, and not the one who [only] uses clay and water [i.e., who performs only ordinary baths]. When purification pertains to the body, to speech and to the mind, he is pure in all respects.

5.17 In pāda b, since °saṃhite is not a correct locative of °saṃhitā, instead of emending to śaive bhāratasaṃhite, we may take the compound as a samābhāradvandvasamāsa in the neuter locative. Note the gender and number confusion between kīrtitāni and °ācāram in pādas cd. This and the next verse sound as if the author had been aware of the fact that he left the remaining three categories of purity (see 5.4) unexplained.

5.18 My impression is that dayābhūtakṣamā in pāda d may stand for bhūta-dayā kṣamā (bhūta-dayā occurring in 1.7 and 3.27–28), and I translate accordingly.

5.19 Pādas a-d are quoting Manu 5.106 (in most witnesses, unmetrically); it is translated by Olivelle (2005, 144) as: 'Purifying oneself with respect to wealth, tradition tells us, is the highest of all purifications; for the truly pure man is the one who is pure with respect to wealth, not the one who becomes pure by using earth and water.'

If a person who knows the rules of purity and impurity is determined to destroy aging, he will surely gain attractiveness, eternally embellished with glory and fame. He obtains here in this world all the merits that the books on true Dharma teach, and at the end of his life he will undoubtedly reach the desired path in the other world.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe śaucācāravidhir nāmādbhyaḥ pañcamah ||

Here ends the fifth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called the Method of Purification.

5.20 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note the stem form noun °mānava metri causa and the second syllable of yadi as a long syllable at the cæsura in pāda a (see M's reading). In place of the plural āpnuvanti one would expect a verb in the singular, and kīrtir is metri causa for a compounded stem form (kīrti°) in pāda b. Note also the sandhi-bridge -m- in paratra-m-ibhita° in pāda d. Compare with 4.67b above.

[Chapter Six]

[niyameṣv ijjā (2) —

Second Niyama-rule: sacrifice]

atha pañcavidhām ijjām pravakṣyāmi dvijottama |
dharmamokṣaprasiddhyartham śṛṇuṣvāvahito dvija || 6:1 ||

[Anarthayajña continued:] Now I shall teach you the five types of sacrifice (ijjā), O excellent Brahmin, for success in Dharma and liberation. Listen carefully, O Brahmin.

arthayajñāḥ kriyāyajño japayajñas tathaiva ca |
jñānaṁ dhyānaṁ ca pañcāitat pravakṣyāmi prthak prthak || 6:2 ||

Material sacrifice, sacrifice through work, sacrifice through recitation, knowledge and meditation: I shall teach you these five one by one.

[arthayajñāḥ —

Material sacrifice]

agnyupāsanakarmādi agnihotrakratukriyā |
aṣṭakā pārvaṇī śrāddham dravyayajñāḥ sa ucyate || 6:3 ||

Material sacrifice includes the following: the domestic ritual fire worship etc., the public performance of the ritual of Agnihotra, [and the so-called pākayajñas such as] the Aṣṭakā oblation, the Pārvaṇī oblation, and the ancestral ritual (śrāddha).

6.2 Note the singular etat after a number (see pp. 31ff).

Compare this list of five to the somewhat similar Bhagavadgītā 4.28:

dravyayajñās tapoyajñā yogayajñās tathāpare |
svādhyāyajñānāyajñāś ca yatayaḥ saṁśītaṁ ||

Śivādharmottara chapter three can be also relevant since it uses the terms japayajña, jñānāyajña, and dhyānāyajña. See also ŚDhU 1.10 (C₉₄ f. 42v l. 4):

karmayajñās tapoyajñāḥ svādhyāyo dhyānaṁ eva ca |
jñānāyajñāś ca pañcaite mahāyajñāḥ prakīrtitāḥ ||

Note how this definition of the five mahāyajñas in the ŚDhU is different from the one, e.g., in Manu 3.69–71 (brahma°, pitṛ°, daiva°, bhauta°, and nṛyajña).

6.3 By somewhat overtranslating the items in this list, I want to emphasise that the text introduces three categories of sacrificial rituals well-known from the time of the [kriyāyajñāḥ —

Sacrifice through work]

ārāmodyānavāpīṣu devatāyataneṣu ca |
svahastakṛtasamskāraḥ kriyāyajña sa ucyate || 6:4 ||

Sacrifice through work means constructing (saṃskāra) a grove, a park, a pond, or a temple with one's own hands.

[japayajñāḥ —

Sacrifice through recitation]

japayajñam tato vakṣye svargamokṣaphalapradam |
vedādhyayana kartavyam śivasamhitam eva ca |
itihāsapurāṇam ca japayajñāḥ sa ucyate || 6:5 ||

Next I shall teach you the sacrifice through recitation, the bestower of the fruits of heaven and liberation. One should recite the Vedas, Śaiva collections, Itihāsas and Purāṇas: this is called sacrifice through recitation.

Gṛhyasūtras and Śrautasūtras: those of the domestic or aupāsana fire (grhyakarman), the Śrauta rituals such as the Agnihotra, and the Smārta pākayajñas, such as the aṣṭakā, the pārvaṇī and the śrāddha. For a mention of the pākayajñas in a manner similar to our pādas cd here, see, e.g., a verse in the Dikṣottara quoted in Goodall et al. 2015, 275:

aṣṭakāḥ pārvaṇī śrāddham śrāvany āgrāyaṇī tathā |
caitṛī cāśvayujī caiva pākayajñāḥ prakīrtitāḥ || 178 ||.

For an earlier list of pākayajñas, see Gautamadharmasūtra 1.8.19: aṣṭakā pārvaṇāḥ śrāddham śrāvanyāgrahāyaṇīcaitṛyāśvayujīti sapta pākayajñasamsthāḥ.

6.5 Note the stem form vedādhyayana in pāda c metri causa. There are several possible interpretations for pādas d and e: śivasamhitam could mean 'Śaiva texts and the [Bhārata]samhitā,' i.e., the Mahābhārata (see 5.17b above: śaivabhāratasamhitā). Alternatively, it may mean 'the collection of Śaiva teachings.' As for itihāsapurāṇam, it is most probably a dvandva compound, most probably denoting the Mahābhārata (but perhaps not the Rāmāyaṇa, contrary to claims such as that, e.g., in Olivelle 2018, 34, n. 6), and the Purāṇas. In case samhitam in pāda d means the Mahābhārata, itihāsapurāṇam could in general mean 'histories and legends.' In the light of 8.1–6, where itihāsa clearly means the Mahābhārata, and Purāṇas are mentioned separately, this is unlikely. In my translation, I have left these terms untranslated. For the debate on what itihāsa is, see, e.g., Adluri and Bagchee 2011 and Bailey 2018.

Both śivasamhitam and itihāsapurāṇam should be interpreted as being part of the compound in pāda c: śivasamhitādhyayanam and itihāsapurāṇādhyayanam.

See japayajña mentioned, e.g., in BhG 10.25c (yajñānām japayajño 'smi) and Manu 2.86 (vidhiyajñaj japayajño viśiṣṭo daśabbir guṇaiḥ).

[jñānayaajñah —

Sacrifice through knowledge]

idaṃ karma akarmedaṃ ūhāpohaviśāradaḥ |
śāstracakṣuḥ samālokya jñānayaajñah sa ucyate || 6:6 ||

[He who can decide if] ‘this is [proper] action; the other is improper action’ because he is knowledgeable about reasoning pro and contra, and conducts investigations with his eyes on the Śāstras, is called [a person performing] sacrifice through knowledge.

[dhyānayaajñah —

Sacrifice through meditation]

dhyānayaajñam samāsenā kathayiṣyāmi te śṛṇu |
dhyānam pañcavidhaṃ caiva kīrtitaṃ hariṇā purā |
sūryaḥ somo ’gni sphaṭikaḥ sūkṣmaṃ tattvaṃ ca pañcamam || 6:7 ||

I shall teach you concisely about sacrifice through meditation. Listen to me. Meditation was taught by Hari in the past as of five kinds. [Meditation on] the Sun, the Moon, Fire, Crystal and the subtle tattva as fifth.

sūryamaṇḍalam ādau tu tattvaṃ prakṛtir ucyate |
tasya madhye śaśiṃ dhyāyet tattvaṃ puruṣa ucyate || 6:8 ||

First it is the Sun [that should be meditated upon], which is said to be prakṛti-tattva. He should visualize the Moon in its centre: that tattva is said to be puruṣa.

6.6 For the expression śāstracakṣuḥ, see, e.g., Brahmapurāṇa 24.21:

tena yajñān yathāproktān mānavāḥ śāstracakṣuṣaḥ |
kurvate ’har abhaś caiva devān āpyāyanti te ||.

In G. P. Bhatt’s translation (1955, 126): ‘Day by day men with the sacred scriptures as their guides perform sacrifices in the manner they have been laid down and thereby nourish the gods.’

6.7 For an analysis of this fivefold method of meditation, and this ancient-looking tattva-system, see p. 18, and compare with VSS 4.72–73, and the similar teaching in VSS 22.19–28 and Dharmaputrikā 4.5–14. Pāda e is unmetrical, or possibly an exceptional expansion of the krama licence, the syllable spha° not turning the previous syllable long, and thus making the pāda a na-vipulā.

6.8 Note the thematised form śaśiṃ for śaśinaṃ.

*candramaṇḍalamadhye tu jvālām agniṃ vicintayet |
prabhutattvaḥ sa vijñeyo janmamṛtyuvināśanaḥ || 6:9 ||*

In the centre of the Moon's disk, he should visualise a flame, a fire. That is said to be prabhu-tattva, the destroyer of [the circle of] birth and death.

*agnimaṇḍalamadhye tu dhyāyet sphaṭika nirmalam |
vidyātattvaḥ sa vijñeyaḥ kāraṇam ajam avyayam || 6:10 ||*

In the centre of the ring of Fire, he should visualize a spotless crystal. That is said to be vidyā-tattva, the never-born, imperishable cause.

*vidyāmaṇḍalamadhye tu dhyāyet tattvam anuttamam |
akīrtitam anaupamyam śivam akṣayam avyayam |
pañcamam dhyānayajñasya tattvam uktaṃ samāsataḥ || 6:11 ||*

In the centre of the disk of vidyā, he should visualize the highest tattva, never-heard, unparalleled, undecaying and imperishable Śiva. The fifth tattva of the sacrifice through meditation has been taught in short.

*vigatarāga uvāca |
ekaikasya tu tattvasya phalaṃ kīrtaya kīdṛśam |
kāni lokāḥ prapadyante kālāṃ vāsya tapodbhava || 6:12 ||*

Vigatarāga spoke: Teach me, what are the fruits of [reaching] each tattva? Which worlds can be attained and how much time [can one spend there], O great ascetic?

*anarthayajña uvāca |
brahmalokaṃ tu prathamam tattvapraṛticintayā |
kalpakotiśahasrāṇi śivavan modate sukhī || 6:13 ||*

6.9 Note °tattvaḥ in the masculine in pāda c.

6.10 Note the stem form sphaṭika in pāda b metri causa.

6.12 The reading tritattvasya in pāda a in the MSS is a problem because we have just finished a section mentioning five tattvas. (This was probably noticed by E, hence printing hi for tri°.) My conjecture (tu) is based on the assumption that tri is often written as tr in Nepalese MSS (e.g., in M at this point) and that tr may then easily get corrupted to tu.

Anarthayañña spoke: Through meditation on the first tattva, prakṛti, [one can reach] Brahmaloḥa. He will rejoice [there] happily like Śiva for millions of æons.

dvitīyaṃ tattva puruṣaṃ dhyāyamāno mṛto yadi |
viṣṇulokaṃ ito yāti kalpakotīyayutaṃ sukhī || 6:14 ||

If one dies while meditating on the second tattva, puruṣa, one will depart to Viṣṇuloka from this world, [and will dwell there] happily for billions of æons.

prabhutattvaṃ tṛtīyaṃ tu dhyāyamāno marīṣyati |
śivaloke vāsen nityaṃ kalpakotīyayutaṃ śataṃ || 6:15 ||

Should one die while meditating on the third, the prabhu-tattva, one can live in Śivaloka continuously for a hundred billion æons.

vidyātattvāmṛtaṃ dhyāyet sadāśivaṃ anāmayam |
akṣayaṃ lokaṃ āpnoti kalpānāntaparam tathā || 6:16 ||

If one visualizes the nectar of vidyā-tattva, [i.e.] Sadāśiva, one can reach [His] diseaseless, imperishable world [and can live there] well beyond endless æons.

pañcamam śivatattvaṃ tu sūkṣmaṃ cātmani saṁsthitaṃ |
na kālasamkhyā tatrāsti śivena sāha modate || 6:17 ||

6.13 Understand pādas ab as brahmalokaṃ [prānoti] prathamatattvacintayā prakṛtitattvacintayā. One might take prathamam adverbially (‘firstly’), but in the next verses, the ordinal numbers (dvitīyaṃ, tṛtīyaṃ, pañcamam) always refer to the tattvas. Pāda a is a na-vipulā if the krama licence is applied and the syllable pra° does not turn the previous syllable long.

6.14 Note the stem form tattva in pāda a metri causa (na-vipulā).

6.15 E changes śivaloka to rudraloka, probably for more contrast with sadāśiva in 6.16 and śivatattva in 6.17. This is not Naraharinath’s intervention since K₄₁, a paper MS close to his sources, also reads rudraloka (on K₄₁, see p. 72).

6.16 In pāda a, amṛta is suspect. It may qualify the world of Sadāśiva (‘immortal’) and then vidyātattva is in stem form. Alternatively, since this verse is the only one in this list of worlds (6.13–17) without an ordinal number, amṛtaṃ may mean ‘four’ or possibly ‘fourth,’ as suggested by Monier-Williams and Apte in their dictionaries. This meaning would fit in nicely. In addition, dying has been mentioned above, thus amṛtaṃ might be a corrupted form of a participle from the verbal root mṛ (mṛyan or maran?): e.g., vidyātattvaṃ mṛyan dhyāyet... (‘should he meditation upon Vidyātattva while dying...’).

The fifth one, the subtle śiva-tattva dwells in the Self. There is no counting of time there and he will be rejoicing [there] together with Śiva.

*pañcadhyānābhiyukto bhavati ca na punarjanmasaṃskārabandhaḥ
jijñāsyantām dvijendra bhavadabhanakaraḥ prārthanākalpavṛkṣo |
janmenaikena muktir bhavati kimu na vā mānavāḥ sādhyantu pratyakṣān nānumānaṃ sakalamalaharam svātmasaṃvedanīyam
|| 6:18 ||*

[If] one practises the five meditations, there will be no rebirth and no more fetters of transmigration. O excellent Brahmin, [the five meditation] should be pursued. [They] burn away existence, wishing trees of desires. Liberation will come within one single birth. Why should people not master [these meditations that] destroy all impurities perceptibly, not only by inference, [since they] are to be experienced by one's own Self.

[niyameṣu tapaḥ (3) —

Third Niyama-rule: penance]

*mānasaṃ tapa ādau tu dvitīyaṃ vācikaṃ tapaḥ |
kāyikaṃ ca tṛtīyaṃ tu manovākkarma tatparam |
kāyikaṃ vācikaṃ caiva tapo miśraḥ pañcamam || 6:19 ||*

The first type of penance is mental penance, the second is verbal penance, the third is the bodily one, the next one is the one which is [characterised by] both mental and verbal action. The fifth type of penance is a mixture of the bodily and the verbal ones.

manaḥsaumyaṃ prasādaś ca ātmanigrahaṃ eva ca |

6.17 Pāda c is a ma-vipulā.

6.18 Metre: sragdharā. Note how a plural passive imperative form (jijñāsyantām) stands for the singular (jijñāsyatām) metri causa, or rather, since probably the five types of meditation are meant, the singulars in pāda b are somewhat out of context. Note also that the last syllable of dvijendra (at the cāsura) counts here as long: this phenomenon of a word-ending syllable becoming long by position is common in the VSS (see pp. 41ff). The non-standard janmena in pāda d seems superior to janmanā for it preserves the metre.

6.19 The reading manovākkāya^o (K₈₂K₁₀) in pāda d is probably secondary, influenced by such common expressions as, e.g., manovākkāyakarmabhiḥ in Yājñavalkyaśmṛti 1.27d. Note the stem form miśra in pāda f metri causa.

maunaṃ bhāvaviśuddhiś ca pañcaitat tapa mānasam || 6:20 ||

Gentleness of the mind, calmness, self-control, observing silence, and the purification of one's state of mind: mental penance comprises these five.

*anudvegakarā vāṇī priyaṃ satyaṃ hitaṃ ca yat |
svādhyāyābhyasanaṃ caiva vācikaṃ tapa ucyate || 6:21 ||*

Verbal penance is taught as speech that causes no anxiety, which is kind, true and useful, and it includes also the practice of recitation.

*ārjavaṃ ca ahimsā ca brahmacaryaṃ surārcanam |
śaucaṃ pañcamam ity etat kāyikaṃ tapa ucyate || 6:22 ||*

Bodily penance is taught as follows: honesty, harmlessness, chastity, the worship of gods, and purity as the fifth.

*iṣṭaṃ kalyāṇabhāvaṃ ca dhanyaṃ pathyaṃ hitaṃ vadet |
manomiśraka pañcaitat tapa uktaṃ maharṣibhiḥ || 6:23 ||*

[Penance] which is a mixture of the mental [and the verbal] is taught by the great sages to be these five: he should speak [about things that are] agreeable, of a noble character, virtuous, salutary, and useful.

*svasti maṅgalam āśīrbhir atithigurupūjanam |
kāyamiśraka pañcaitat tapa uktaṃ mahātmabhiḥ || 6:24 ||*

6.20 Again, we can see the use of the singular (etat) next to numbers; note also the stem form tapa in pāda d metri causa. This verse is a paraphrase of MBh 3.39.16 (BhG 17.16; see text in the apparatus).

6.21 This verse is a variant of MBh 6.39.15 (BhG 17.15; see it in the apparatus). Note that pāda a in the Bhandarkar critical edition reads anudvegakaraṃ vākyaṃ, and no variants appear in the apparatus. One wonders why our version has the much more problematic feminine °karā vāṇī, whose connection to pāda b is much more difficult to explain.

6.22 This verse seems to be a paraphrase of MBh 6.39.14 (BhG 17.14; see it in the apparatus).

6.23 Note the use of the singular (etat) next to a number, and the stem form noun in pāda c.

[Penance] in which bodily [and verbal actions] mix is taught by the great-souled ones to be these five: benediction, greetings, blessings, and the worship of the guest and the guru.

*maṇḍūkayogī hemante grīṣme pañcatapās tathā |
abhrāvakaśo varṣāsu tapaḥsādhanaṃ ucyate || 6:25 ||*

[Being] a [so-called] frog-yogin in the winter, or one with the five fires in the summer, or having the clouds [i.e., the open sky] for shelter in the rainy season: these are called accomplishments of penance.

*svamāṃsoddhṛtya dānaṃ ca hastapādaśīras tathā |
puṣpaṃ utpādya dānaṃ ca sarve te tapasādhanaḥ || 6:26 ||*

Carving out his own flesh as a gift, or [offering his own] hand, feet and head, or drawing [his own] blood (puṣpa) as gifting: all these are accomplishments of penance,

6.24 See ŚDhŚ 11.73–79 (and Bisschop et al. 2021, 91–93 and 120–121) for a somewhat similar discussion on ‘kind speech.’ I take āśīrbhir as a separate item primarily because we need five items here.

6.25 Pādas a and c are ma-vipulās. Manu 6.23 mentions three kinds of penance that correspond to three seasons:

*grīṣme pañcatapās tu syād varṣāsv abhrāvakaśīkaḥ |
ādravāsāś tu hemante kramaśo vardhayaṃs tapaḥ ||*

It is translated in Olivelle 2005, 149 as: ‘[He should] surround himself with the five fires in the summer; live in the open air during the rainy season; and wear wet clothes in the winter—gradually intensifying his ascetic toil.’ This and ŚDhSaṃgr 9.32ab (quoted in the apparatus) may suggest that being a ‘frog-yogin’ could be the same as wearing wet clothes or standing in water for a long time. A footnote to MBh 12.309.9 in the Kumbakonam edition of the MBh (Krishnacharya and Vyasacharya 1906–1914; śuklavāsāś ca durvāsāḥ śāyī nityam adhas tathā | maṇḍūkaśāyī ca tathā vīrāsanagatas tathā ||) suggests otherwise: maṇḍūkavat pāṇipādaṃ saṅkocya nyubjaḥ śete iti maṇḍūkaśāyī. (‘The word “frog-sleeper” means somebody who sleeps like a frog, with his hands and feet withdrawn and with his back humped.’)

6.26 Note the stem form svamāṃsa in pāda a for the accusative. The translation of pāda c is tentative, but puṣpa as ‘blood’ does occur in tantric texts (see, e.g., Siddhayogeshvarīmata 16.49). VSS 17.37–38 teaches blood gifting:

*devī uvāca |
svamāṃsarudhiraṃ dānaṃ dānaṃ putrakalatrāyoh |
kiṃ praśasyaṃ mahādeva tattvaṃ vaktum ibārbasi ||
mahēśvara uvāca |
svamāṃsarudhiraṃ dānaṃ praśaṃsanti maṇiṣiṇaḥ |*

kṛcchrātikṛcchraṃ naktam ca taptakṛcchraṃ ayācitam |
cāndrāyaṇam parākaṃ ca tapaḥ sām̐tapanādayaḥ || 6:27 ||

[as also] the ‘painful penance’ and the ‘extremely painful one’, [eating only] at night, the ‘hot and painful’ and [the one in which only food obtained] without solicitation [can be eaten], the cāndrāyaṇa and parāka penances, the sām̐tapana, etc.

yenedaṃ tapa tapyate sumanasā saṃsāraduḥkhaḥchidam
āśāpāśa vimucya nirmalamatis tyaktvā jaghanyaṃ phalam | svargākāṅkṣyanṛpatvabhogaṃ sarvāntikaṃ tatphalam
jantuḥ śāśvatajanmamṛtyubhavane tanniṣṭhasādhyam vabhet || 6:28 ||

He who performs with a well-disposed mind this penance that puts an end to the suffering caused by transmigration (saṃsāra), abandoning the trap of hope, with a spotless mind, giving up the lowest rewards [such as] wishing for heaven and being a king and having enjoyments for the senses, that man will experience the ultimate (sarvāntika) reward that in this home of eternal births and deaths accomplishes their cessation.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe ṣaṣṭho ’dhyāyaḥ ||

Here ends the sixth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha.

śrūyatām pūrvavṛttāni saṃkṣīpya kathayāmy aham ||

‘Devī spoke: Are one’s own flesh and blood and one’s son and wife praised as donation, O Mahādeva? Tell me the truth please. Maheśvara spoke: The wise praise one’s own flesh and blood as donation. Let’s hear the old legends, I shall tell you briefly.’

6.27 Pāda a is a ma-vīpulās. For short descriptions and the loci classici of these penances, see, e.g., Kane 1941–1962, v. 4, 130–152. For nakta/naktānna, see VSS 8.22 below and, e.g., Śivadharmasāstra chapter ten (Bisschop et al. 2025), and for ayācita, VSS 8.23 below.

6.28 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note my emendation in pāda a (sumanasā from sumanasah) and that in order to restore the metre, I accepted E’s stem form tapa. Note the stem form °pāśa in pāda b metri causa.

[saptamo 'dhyāyaḥ]
[Chapter Seven]

[niyameṣu dānam (4) —
Fourth Niyama-rule: gifting]

dānāni ca tathety ābuh pañcadbhā munibhiḥ purā |
annaṃ vastraṃ hiraṇyaṃ ca bhūmi godāna pañcamam || 7:1 ||

In the past the wise declared that, again, there were five kinds of gifting. The gift of food, clothes, gold, land, and the fifth, the gift of cows.

[annadānam — Gift of food]

annāt tejaḥ smṛtiḥ prāṇaḥ annāt puṣṭir vapuḥ sukham |
annāc chrīḥ kānti vīryaṃ ca annāt sattvaṃ ca jāyate || 7:2 ||

From food [come] energy, memory, the vital breath, growth, body, and happiness. From food arise grace and beauty, heroism, and strength.

annāj jīvanti bhūtāni annaṃ tuṣṭikaraṃ sadā |
annāt kāmo mado darpaḥ annāc chauryaṃ ca jāyate || 7:3 ||

Living beings live on food. Food always satisfies. From food arise desire, rapture, pride, and valour.

annaṃ kṣudhātṛṣāvyādhīn sadya eva vināśayet |
annadānāc ca saubhāgyaṃ khyātiḥ kīrtiś ca jāyate || 7:4 ||

Food drives away hunger and thirst and disease instantly. From gifting food arise beauty, fame, and glory.

annadaḥ prāṇadaś caiva prāṇadaś cāpi sarvadaḥ |
tasmād annasamaṃ dānaṃ na bhūtaṃ na bhaviṣyati || 7:5 ||

7.1 tathety in pāda a is suspicious and my translation of it ('again') is tentative and is supposed to refer back to the fact that all yamas-niyamas so far have been divided into five types. Note how annaṃ, vastraṃ, hiraṇyaṃ and bhūmi (the latter treated as neuter, or given in stem form) are all meant to go with °dāna (again, in stem form, metri causa).

7.2 Note the stem form noun kānti metri causa in pāda c.

He who donates food donates life. He who donates life donates everything. Therefore nothing is equal to the gift of food, nothing was, nothing will be.

[vastradānam — Gift of clothes]

vastrābhāvān manuṣyasya śrīyād api parityajet |
vastrabhīno na pūjyeta bhāryāputrasakhādibhiḥ || 7:6 ||

In the absence of [proper] clothes, a man will also lose his fortunes.
A person without clothes may not be respected by his wife, son, friends, etc.

vidyāvān sukulīno 'pi jñānavān guṇavān api |
vastrabhīnaḥ parādhīnaḥ paribhūtaḥ pade pade || 7:7 ||

Be he a learned person from a good family or an intelligent and virtuous person, without clothes everybody is subdued and humiliated on every occasion,

apamānam avajñāṃ ca vastrabhīno hy avāpnuyāt |
jugupsati mahātmāpi sabhāstrījanasamsadi || 7:8 ||

for a man without clothes is met with contempt and disrespect.
Even a great soul will wish to avoid the court, women, and the assembly.

tasmād vastrapradānāni praśamsanti manīṣiṇaḥ |
na jirṇaṃ sphuṭitaṃ dadyād vastraṃ kutsitam eva vā || 7:9 ||

Therefore the wise praise the gift of clothes. One should not give away old, torn or dirty clothes.

7.5 See some similar verses from the Śivadharmottara, the Mahābhārata, and the Nārada-purāṇa in the apparatus.

7.6 Pāda b is difficult to interpret securely. I translate it as if reading śrīs tam api parityajet or śrīyāpi parityajyate. Consider also Brahmapurāṇa 220.139:

vastrābhāve kriyā nāsti yajñā vedās tapāṃsi ca |
tasmād vāsāṃsi deyaṇi śrāddhakāle viśeṣataḥ ||;

‘If one has no clothes, there is no ritual, no worship, no Vedas or penance. Therefore clothes should be donated, especially at the time of a Śrāddha ritual.’

navam purāṇarabitaṃ mṛdu sūkṣmaṃ suśobhanam |
susaṃskṛtya pradātavyaṃ śraddhābhaktisamanvitam || 7:10 ||

[Clothes] should be donated [only if they are] new, not worn, soft, delicate and beautiful, nicely ornamented, and in good faith and with devotion.

śraddhāsattvaviśeṣeṇa deśakālavidhena ca |
pātradravyaviśeṣeṇa phalam ābuh pṛthak pṛthak || 7:11 ||

They say that the reward [of gifting] is in every case dependent on the particular [donor's level of] faith and purity, the choice of place and time, and on the particular recipient and material.

yādṛśaṃ dīyate vastraṃ tādṛśaṃ prāpyate phalam |
jīrṇavastrapradānena jīrṇavastraṃ avāpnuyāt |
śobhanaṃ dīyate vastraṃ śobhanaṃ vastraṃ āpnuyāt || 7:12 ||

The reward received will be similar to the clothes donated. By donating old clothes, one would receive old clothes [as a reward]. By donating beautiful clothes, one would receive beautiful clothes [as a reward].

dadyād vastra suśobhanaṃ dvijavare kāle śubhe sādaraṃ saubhāgyam atulaṃ labheta sa naro rūpaṃ tathā śobhanaṃ |
tasmin yāti suvastrakoṭi śataśaḥ prāpnoti niḥsaṃśayaṃ
tasmāt tvaṃ kuru vastradānam asakṛt pāratrikotkarṣaṇam || 7:13 ||

Should one bestow very beautiful clothes on a Brahmin at an auspicious time, respectfully, he [i.e. the donor] will receive unequalled attractiveness and a beautiful appearance. When he departs, he will be given hundreds of millions of items of nice clothes, no doubt

7.11 It seems that vidhena ca stands for vidhinā ca or rather vidhānena metri causa in pāda b.

7.12 This teaching sounds slightly surprising if not interpreted as referring to the next life (see next verse).

about that. Therefore do donate clothes often. It is the way up to the other world.

[suvarṇadānam — Gift of gold]

suvarṇadānaṃ vipreṇdra saṃkṣīpya kathayāmy aham |
pavitraṃ maṅgalaṃ puṇyaṃ sarvapātakanāśanam || 7:14 ||

O great Brahmin, now I shall teach you about the gift of gold in a concise manner. It is a pure, auspicious and meritorious [act] and it washes off all sins.

dhārayet satataṃ vipra suvarṇakāṭakāṅgulim |
mucyate sarvapāpebhyo rāhuṇā candramā yathā || 7:15 ||

Should one always wear a golden bracelet or ring, O Brahmin, he will be freed of all sins, just as the moon is freed from [the demon] Rāhu [after an eclipse].

dattvā suvarṇaṃ viprebhyo devebhyas ca dvijaṛṣabha |
tuṭimātre 'pi yo dadyāt sarvapāpaiḥ pramucyate || 7:16 ||

If a person donates gold to Brahmins or gods, O excellent Brahmin, even if it is only in a minute quantity, he will be freed of all sins.

raktimāṣakakarṣaṃ vā palārdhaṃ palam eva vā |
evam eva phalaṃvrddhir jñeyā dānaviśeṣataḥ || 7:17 ||

7.13 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note the stem form vastra in pāda a metri causa. 'on a Brahmin' (in pāda a): literally, 'on a person who is first among the twice-born' (dvi-javare). The final syllable of saubhāgyam in pāda b counts as long by licence; see, e.g., 5.20 and 6.18b. This time the caesura is not involved. Understand tasmin yāti in pāda c as tasmin yāte (past participle in a locative absolute construction) metri causa; °koṭi is treated as neuter or as a stem form (also metri causa).

7.15 I suspect that aṅguli is used in pāda b in the sense of aṅgulīya ('finger-ring').

7.16 Pāda a is a ma-vīpulā. The form tuṭi as a widespread variant of truṭi, see, e.g., (Old) Skandapurāṇa 27.14:

kāñcanaṃ tuṭimātraṃ vā yo dadyād bahu vā mama |
tasya baimavate śṛṅge dadāni grhaṃ uttamam ||

[The amount can be just] one rakti, a māṣaka, a karṣa, half a pala or a pala: this is exactly how the increase in the [size of the corresponding] reward will be, in proportion to the properties [i.e., amount] of the gift.

[bhūmidānam — Gift of land]

sarvādhāraṃ mahīdānaṃ praśaṃsanti maṇiṣiṇaḥ |
annavastrahiranyaṃ sarvaṃ vai bhūmisambhavam || 7:18 ||

The wise praise the gift of land as the basis of everything [else].
Food, clothes, gold etc., all these originate in land.

bhūmidānena vipreṇ dra sarvadhānaphalaṃ labhet |
bhūmidānasamaṃ vipra yady asti vada tattvataḥ || 7:19 ||

O Brahmin, one can obtain all the rewards of gifting by the gift of land. If there is anything that equals the gift of land, O Brahmin, you should definitely tell me.

mātrikuṣṭhivimuktas tu dharaṇīśaraṇo bhavet |
carācarāṇāṃ sarveṣāṃ bhūmiḥ sādadhāraṇā smṛtā || 7:20 ||

ekabastam dvibastam vā pañcāśac chatam eva vā |
sahasrāyutalakṣam vā bhūmidānaṃ praśasyate || 7:21 ||

Be it [only a plot of land measuring] one forearm, two forearms, fifty or a hundred, a thousand, ten thousand, a hundred thousand, the gift of land is held in great esteem.

ekabastam ca yo bhūmiṃ dadyād dvijavarāya tu |
varṣakoṭīśatam divyaṃ svargaloke mahīyate || 7:22 ||

7.17 I suspect that phalaṃ vṛddhir, or phalanvṛddhir, stands for phalavṛddhir (phalasya vṛddhiḥ) metri causa, meaning 'the increase of the reward.' rakti, māṣaka, karṣa, and pala are units of weight.

7.20 I take sādadhāraṇā as one word, but it is possible that the intention of the author was sā dhāraṇā in two words, in fact meaning sādhāraṇa (sā ādhāraḥ, 'it is the basis').

He who donates [as much as] a piece of land of one forearm to a Brahmin will enjoy a billion divine years in heaven.

evam babuṣu hasteṣu guṇāguṇi phalaṃ smṛtam |
śraddhādbhikaṃ phalaṃ dānaṃ kathitaṃ te dvijottama || 7:23 ||

Thus in case of [donating] many forearms [of land], the reward is said to be proportional to the properties [of the land]. O Brahmin, I have taught you about the rewards of gifting that is performed in good faith.

jāmadagnyena rāmeṇa bhūmiṃ dattvā dvijāya vai |
āyur akṣayam āptaṃ tu ihaiva ca dvijottama || 7:24 ||

[Paraśu]rāma, the son of Jamadagni, having donated land to the Brahmin [Kaśyapa], obtained eternal life in this very world, O excellent Brahmin.

7.23 I think that guṇāguṇi, or perhaps guṇaguṇi (which would be unmetrical, containing two laghus in both the second and third syllables of the pāda), should refer to the idea that, e.g., the gift of a plot of land of 2×2 bastas would result in twice, or four times, koṭīśata years in heaven that the result of gifting only 1×1 hasta land, guṇa generally meaning ‘times.’ I take guṇā° as referring to the size of the land donated, and °guṇi[n] as ‘amounting to that many times,’ but this is only a guess, and it would need to be supported by some similar passage, other than 7.17 above.

I suspect that pāda c is an awkward attempt at saying śraddhādbhikadāna(sya) phalaṃ.

7.24 See a summary of the corresponding episodes in the MBh in Mani 1975, 570–571, s.v. Paraśurāma:

‘To atone for the sin of slaughtering even innocent Kṣatriyas, Paraśurāma gave away all his riches as gifts to brahmins. He invited all the brahmins to Samantapañcaka and conducted a great Yāga there. The chief Ṛtvik (officiating priest) of the Yāga was the sage Kaśyapa and Paraśurāma gave all the lands he conquered till that time to Kaśyapa. Then a platform of gold ten yards long and nine yards wide was made and Kaśyapa was installed there and worshipped. After the worship was over according to the instructions from Kaśyapa the gold platform was cut into pieces and the gold pieces were offered to brahmins.

When Kaśyapa got all the lands from Paraśurāma he said thus:—“Oh Rāma, you have given me all your land and it is not now proper for you to live in my soil. You can go to the south and live somewhere on the shores of the ocean there.” Paraśurāma walked south and requested the ocean to give him some land to live.’

Note that without applying the krama licence (ca dvīṣ°), pāda d would be iambic and thus metrically problematic.

[godānam —
Gift of cows]

hemaśṛṅgāṃ raupyakṣurāṃ cailaghaṇṭāṃ dvijottama |
viprāya vedaviduṣe dattvānantaphalaṃ smṛtam || 7:25 ||

[A cow] with golden horns, silver hooves, garment and bell, O Brahmin, when given to a Veda-knowing Brahmin, [produces] rewards that are said to be endless.

[dānaprasaṃsā —
Praise of gifting]

Always rejoicing in the practice of giving, ..., as far as one's capacities go, one should give food, clothes, gold and silver, water, cows, sesame seeds, land, sandals, parasols, seats, jars, cups, or anything else. By giving in good faith (śraddhādānam kṛtvā), with words of unconditioned affection, one's mind [becomes] spotless.

Glory and fortune, which make one happy, come about only by gifting, and one can [thus] gain unequalled fame. Only from gifting will reproach [exercised by] the enemy [turn into] pleasure and 7.25 kṣura in pāda a is a known variant of the better-attested khura. Pāda a is unmetrical. Pāda c is a na-vīpulā.

7.26 Metre (7.26–28): śārdūlavikrīḍita. I am unable to interpret pravartanabhavāṃ in pāda a and I suspect that śakyānurūpaṃ in the same pāda stands for śaktyanurūpaṃ metri causa. Understand gāvas in pāda c as plural accusative (for gās). (Oberlies 2003, 2.15 [p. 68]). abhinnaṛāgavadanaṃ in pāda d is suspect. Perhaps ‘vandanaṃ’ was meant (‘unconditioned affection and adoration’).

happiness. Vigour and unequalled graciousness come from gifting. One can reach attractiveness through gifting. Endless enjoyments surely come only from gifting, and heaven is [reached] also because of it.

dānād eva ca śakralokasakalam dānāj janānandanam
dānād eva mahīm samasta bubhuje samrāḍ mahīmaṇḍale |
dānād eva surūpayonisubbhaś candrānana vīkṣyate
dānād eva anekasambhavasukham prāpnoti niḥsaṃśayam || 7:28 ||

Śakra [conquered] the whole world by gifting only. Gifting makes people happy. Samrāj enjoyed all the land in the world only because of gifting. Skanda appears as handsome and fortunate, and has a good family only because of gifting. One can reach happiness that lasts countless births only through gifting, there is no doubt about that.

7.27 I suspect that khyātīś ca tulyam in the MSS stands for khyātīm atulyām ('and unequalled fame') and that it is not a clumsy attempt to restore the metre, but rather a later correction gone wrong. I have emended the phrase believing that the second (last) syllable of khyātīm may be treated as guru. See the same licence applied in non-anuṣṭubh verses above, e.g., in 5.20a, 6.18b, 7.13b (just before atula). I doubt if E's reading in pāda c, durjayatā ('invincibility') were better than ūrjayatā transmitted in all the MSS consulted. While ūrjayatā is still problematic, it is not inconceivable that it stands for ūrjatā meaning most probably 'being powerful, strength, vigour.' Also, note here the stem form noun saubhāgya metri causa. Note svargam as a neuter noun, and the stem form °bhoga metri causa in pāda d. The lack of sandhi between eva and ananta^o helps restore the metre.

7.28 °lokasakalam in pāda a is suspect and E's silent emendation (°lokam atulam) is not without reason. This line may contain two general statements, the first perhaps saying that even Indra's world can be acquired or reached through gifting. Nevertheless, I suspect that there is a hidden reference to a myth, perhaps that of Dadhīca, who gave his bones to Indra to help him defeat Vṛtra. See VSS 17.47:

dadhīciḥ svatanuṃ dattvā vibudhānāṃ varānane |
bhuktṛvā lokān kramāt sarvān śivaloke pratiṣṭhitāḥ ||

'Dadhīci gave the gods his own body, O Varānana. Enjoying all the worlds in due order, he is now living in Śivaloka.'

One could translate pāda b as a general statement ('A universal monarch...), but again I suspect a reference to a specific person (the son of Citraratha by Ūrṇā?) and a specific legend. The perfect form bubhuje, and the next pāda, at least point to this direction. My translation of pāda d is also tentative. I take surūpayonisubbhaga as surūpa-suyoni-subbhaga. Unfortunately, no relevant specific legend comes to mind. Perhaps the reference is to Brahmā's boon to Tārakāsura, which ultimately led to Skanda's birth.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe dānapraśaṃsādhyaḥ saptaṃ ||

Here ends the seventh chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called Praise of Gifting.

[aṣṭamo 'dhyāyaḥ]
[Chapter Eight]

[niyameṣu svādhyāyaḥ (5) —
Fifth Niyama-rule: study]

pañcasvādhyāyanam kāryam ihāmutra sukhārthinā |
śaivam sāmkyam purāṇam ca smārtaṁ bhāratasaṁbitām || 8:1 ||

Five kinds of study are to be pursued by those who wish to be happy in this life and in the other. [One should study] Śaiva [teachings], Sāmkyha [philosophy], the Purāṇa[s], the Smārta [tradition] and the Bhāratasaṁbitā [i.e., the Mahābhārata].

śaive tattvaṁ vicinteta śaivapāśupatadvaye |
atra vistarataḥ proktaṁ tattvasārasamuccayam || 8:2 ||

As far as the Śaiva tradition is concerned, he should reflect on the truth in both Śaiva and Pāśupata [teachings]. In those teachings the whole essence of truth is taught extensively.

sāmkyātattvaṁ tu sāmkyeṣu boddhavyaṁ tattvacintakaiḥ |
pañcatattvavibhāgena kīrtitāni maharṣibhiḥ || 8:3 ||

Those who reflect on the truth (tattva) can grasp the truth of enumeration [of ontological principles/reality levels] (sāmkyātattva) from Sāmkyha [texts]. The great sages taught [those twenty-five levels of Sāmkyha] in a fivefold grouping of tattvas.

purāṇeṣu mahikoṣo vistareṇa prakīrtitaḥ |
adhordhvamadhyatiryaṁ ca yatnataḥ sampraveśayet || 8:4 ||

8.1 The form svādhyāyana, for the more standard svādhyāyana, does occur in several, typically Buddhist, texts. See, e.g., the Mahāpratisaṇā-mahāvīdyārājñī (Hidas 2011, 153): mahāyānōdgrahaṇalikhanavācanapaṭhanasvādhyāyanaśravaṇadhāraṇā-bhiyuktānām paripālīkeyam mahādhāraṇī. Supply an active verb such as adhyāt/adhīta ('should study') for pādas cd.

8.2 The reading śaivam in pāda a (K₄₁ E) could be smoother than the better attested one (śaive). śaivapāśupatadvaye in pāda b is weakly attested but I think that only this reading yields the appropriate meaning. One could also emend to śaivatattvaṁ in pāda a; compare 8.3a.

8.3 In pāda d, kīrtitāni picks up an implied tattvāni.

In the Purāṇas, it is the layers of the world that are described extensively. [By learning about them], one may indeed enter [the realms] below, above, in the middle, and across.

smārtaṃ varṇāśramācāraṃ dharmanyāyappravartanam |
śiṣṭācāro 'vikalpena grāhyas tatra aśaṅkitaḥ || 8:5 ||

The Smārta [tradition] deals with the conduct of the social classes (varṇa) and disciplines (āśrama), and with Dharmic procedures and lawsuits (nyāya). Good conduct is to be gathered from it without hesitation, with certainty.

itihāsam adbhīyānaḥ sarvajñaḥ sa naro bhavet |
dharmārthakāmamokṣeṣu saṃśayas tena chidyate || 8:6 ||

A man who studies the Itihāsa [i.e., the Mahābhārata] will become omniscient. [All his] doubts about religious duty (dharma), financial gain (artha), carnal desires (kāma), and liberation (mokṣa) will be eliminated.

[niyameṣv upasthanigrahaḥ (6) —
Sixth Niyama-rule: sexual restraint]

śṛṇuṣvāvabito vipra pañcopasthavinigraham |
striyo vā garhitotsargaḥ svayaṇmuktis ca kīrtyate |
svapnopaghātāṃ viprendra divāsvapnaṃ ca pañcamāḥ || 8:7 ||

Listen with great attention, O Brahmin, to the five [spheres of] sexual restraint. Women, forbidden ejaculation, and masturbation are mentioned [in this context, as well as] offence while sleeping, O Brahmin, and fantasising, as fifth.

8.4 Note that tirya seems to be an acceptable nominal stem in this text for tiryañc. I understand the causative form sampraveśayet as non-causative. E's silent emendation to samprabodhayet is understandable since to 'enter' these realms by the study of the Purāṇas makes little sense, at least when taken literally. Kengo Harimoto has suggested emending to sampradeśayet.

8.5 Compare pādas ab with 3.15cd: smārto varṇāśramācāro yamaś ca niyamair yutaḥ. The term smārta seems to be used here in the sense of Dharmaśāstra. The avagraha in 'vikalpena' is not to be found in the witnesses and has been supplied. The form aśaṅkitaḥ is less than perfect here, and may have been intended as an ablative (aśaṅkā-taḥ), as suggested by Judit Törzsök, or adverbially (aśaṅkitam), or even more probably as a loosely added subject (for aśaṅkitena).

8.6 As it is clear from 8.1d, what is primarily meant by itihāsa is the Mahābhārata. Compare VSS 6.5.

[striyaḥ —
Women]

agamyā strī divā parve dharmapatny api vā bhavet |
viruddhastrīm na seveta varṇabhraṣṭādhikāsu ca || 8:8 ||

A woman is not to be approached sexually in the daytime and on the four nights of the changes of the Moon (parvan), even if she is one's lawful wife. One should not have sex with a woman who is taboo or with one that has lost her class (varṇa) or is [of a] superior [varṇa than oneself].

[garbitotsargaḥ — Forbidden ejaculation]

ajameṣagavādīnām vaḍavāmahiṣīṣu ca |
garbitotsargam ity etad yatnena parivarjayet || 8:9 ||

Intercourse with goats, sheep, cows, mares, and buffalo-cows is called forbidden ejaculation, which is to be avoided at all cost.

[svayammuktiḥ — Masturbation]

ayonikaṣaṇā vāpi apānakaṣaṇāpi vā |
svayammuktir iyaṃ jñeyā tasmāt tām parivarjayet || 8:10 ||

8.8 Understand parve as parvani (thematization of the stem in -an).

Compare Manu 11.175 (Olivelle's edition and translation, 2005):

maithunaṃ tu samāsevyā puṃsi yoṣiti vā dvijaḥ |
goyāne 'psu divā caiva savāsāḥ snānam ācaret ||

'If a twice-born has sexual intercourse with a man or a woman in an ox-cart, on water, or during the day, he should bathe with his clothes on.'

Compare also Manu 3.45 (Olivelle's edition and translation):

ṛtukālābhigāmī syāt svadāranirataḥ sadā |
paravarjaṃ vrajec cainām tadvrato ratikāmyayā ||

'Finding his gratification always in his wife, he should have sex with her during her season. Devoted solely to her, he may go to her also when he wants sexual pleasure, except on the days of the moon's change.'

The nominative °strī in pāda c in most witnesses may be the result of an eyeskip to strī in pāda a. Note how the paper MS is the only one transmitting a fully correct form.

8.9 Understand °ādīnām in pāda a as standing for a locative, and °sargam as neuter nominative (instead of °sargaḥ) or, alternatively, understand pāda c with a hiatus bridge: garbitotsarga-m-ity etad.

Rubbing himself against something else than a female sexual organ or rubbing his anus are called masturbation (svayaṃmukti), therefore these are to be avoided.

[svapnaghātam —

Offence while sleeping]

svapnaghātam dvijaśreṣṭha aniṣṭam paṇḍitaiḥ sadā |
svapne strīṣu ramante ca retaḥ prakṣarate tataḥ || 8:11 ||

Offence while sleeping, O best of Brahmins, has always been [considered] undesirable by the learned. [If] somebody enjoys women in his dream, his semen will issue.

[divāsvapnam —

Daydreaming]

divāśayaṃ na kartavyaṃ nityaṃ dharmapareṇa tu |
svargamārgārgalā hy etāḥ striyo nāma prakīrtitāḥ || 8:12 ||

Lying down in the daytime [and fantasising] should always be avoided by those who are intent on Dharma. Women are called ‘the bolts [that block the gate to] the path to heaven.’

8.10 The conjecture in pāda a (ayoni° from anyonya°) involves minimal intervention and makes the sentence much more meaningful than the transmitted version. (Consider also ayonya°.) Compare Manu 11.174 (Olivelle’s edition and translation):

amānuṣīṣu puruṣa udakyāyām ayoniṣu |
retaḥ siktivā jale caiva kṛcchraṃ sām̐tapanaṃ caret ||;

‘If someone ejaculates his semen in non-human females, in a man, in a menstruating woman, in any place other than the vagina, or on water, he should perform the Sāntapana penance...’

The variant strī for tām in pāda d in E may be an example of silent interventions made by Naraharinath in his edition.

8.12 It is not clearly explained why ‘sleeping by day’ or ‘lying down in the daytime’ should count as one of the offences against sexual restraint. A line, perhaps mentioning fantasising about women, may have dropped out here. Pādas cd are clumsy and out of context, especially etāḥ (‘these [women]’), which I left untranslated. This line would fit verse 8.8 better.

[niyameṣu vratapañcakam (7) —

Seventh Niyama-rule: religious observances]

mārjāarakabakaśvānagomahīvratapañcakam |

[mārjāarakavratam —

Cat observance]

svaviṣṭhamūtram bhūmīṣu chādayed dvijasattama |

sūryasomānumodanti mārjāravratikeṣu ca || 8:13 ||

[Hear about] the five religious observances [called] the cat, the heron, the dog, the cow, and the earth. He buries his own urine and faeces in the ground, O truest Brahmin. [Practitioners] rejoice [seeing] the sun and the moon, and fellow practitioners of the cat observance.

[bakavratam —

Heron observance]

bakavac cendriyagrāmaṃ suniyamya tapodbhava |

sādhayec ca manastuṣṭiṃ mokṣasāadhanatatparaḥ || 8:14 ||

O great ascetic, one should suppress all one's senses like a heron, and should cultivate the peace of the mind, focusing on achieving liberation.

8.13 Note °viṣṭha° for viṣṭhā metri causa in pāda c (ma-vipulā). Alternatively, read svaviṣṭhāmūtra bhūmīṣu (pathyā with stem form noun). Note the stem form sūryasoma for sūryasomau (sūryasomāu anu°) in pāda e. It is not entirely clear why cats would rejoice seeing the Sun and the Moon. Perhaps this remark refers to the fact that cats can be active both in the daytime and at night. Unfortunately, the 'cat-vow' (baīḍālavrata) described in Manu 4.195 seems unrelated: 'A man who always displays the banner of righteousness and yet is greedy and deceitful, who deludes the world, who is given to violence, and who beguiles everybody should be viewed as one who observes the "cat-vow"' (Olivelle 2005, 134).

8.14 Cranes are compared to ascetics here probably because of the similarity of their posture when relaxing standing on one leg to ascetics performing penance standing on one leg (such as the ascetic, and a cat, depicted on the famous relief in Mahabalipuram). More specifically, herons apply 'meditation,' so to say, when fishing, as Olivelle (2005, 298) points out commenting on Manu 7.106a (bakavac cintayed arthān), quoting Bhāruci's explanation ad loc.: 'Just as naturally in order to catch a mass of fish who are safe in their water-fort the "heron" finds an effective means to take them by employing meditation, after dedicating himself to the task, so the king should not be despondent realizing that if one employs abundant thought on one's affairs even aims very difficult to achieve are attained'; (yathā abdurgāśrayaṃ matsyabalaṃ svabhāvatas tad-

Dog observance]

mūtraviṣṭhe na bhūmiṣu kurute dhunadam sadā |
tuṣyate bhagavān śarvaḥ śvānavratacarō yadi || 8:15 ||

[In this case the practitioner] does not [bury] his urine and faeces in the ground, and he barks constantly. Lord Śarva [i.e., Śiva] is satisfied when one practises the dog observance.

[govratam —
Cow observance]

mūtravarco na rudhyeta sadā govatiko naraḥ |
bhīmas tuṣṭikarāś caiva purāṇeṣu nigadyate || 8:16 ||

A man practising the cow observance should never hold back his urine and faeces. This is a terrifying [observance] that gives satisfaction, [as] stated in the Purāṇas.

grahaṇārthaṃ bakaḥ paryupāsanaḥ tadgrahaṇopāyaṃ dhyānayogād āśādayati, evaṃ arthacintābhiyogātīśayena suduṣprāpā apy arthā āśādyanta iti matvā na nirvedaṃ gacchet |. Unfortunately, the ‘heron-vow’ (bakavrata) described in Manu 4.196 seems unrelated: ‘A twice-born who goes around with downcast eyes but is cruel, given to furthering his own ends, crooked, and being falsely sanctimonious, is a man who is observing the “heron-vow”’ (Olivelle 2005, 134).

8.15 dhunadam (‘barking?’) in pāda b may not be the intended form; perhaps understand dhunanam (related to dhvanana), or emend to dhvananam. A possible explanation for Śiva being satisfied with an ascetic practising this observance is that Śiva’s Bhairava form often has a dog as his mount. See, e.g., Bakker 2014, 232–233 on a 5-6th-century image of Bhairava and a dog carved in rock at Muṇḍeśvarī Hill not far from Vārāṇasī.

The so-called dog observance has ancient roots. Its practitioner, the kukkuravatika appears in Majjhimanikāya 2.1.7, in the Kukkuravatiyasutta, alongside with a practitioner of the govrata (govatika), an observance that comes up in the next verse in the VSS: evaṃ me sutam. ekaṃ samayaṃ bhagavā kolīyesu viharati baliddavasanaṃ nāma kolīyānaṃ nigamo. atha kho puṇṇo ca kolīyaputto govatiko, acelo ca seniyo kukkuravatiko yena bhagavā tenupasaṅkamimsu... See more on this in Acharya 2013, 127–128. Acharya summarises the Kukkuravatiyasutta thus: ‘The Kukkuravatiyasutta from the Majjhimanikāya (II.1.7) presents a govatika together with a kukkuravatika. They are observing their vows, and have adopted the behaviour of a bull and a dog respectively. The Buddha tells them that as they are cultivating bullness and dogness, the state of mind of these animals, they will go to hell or become reborn as animal. They are alarmed at this and take refuge in the Buddha.’ See also Selva 2019, especially pp. 337ff, for arguments about the Vedic and Pāśupata roots of animal observances, and reflections on Acharya’s observations.

8.16 I prefer reading bhīma and tuṣṭi° as two separate words, the first one either in [mahīvrataṃ — Earth observance]

kuddālair dārayanto 'pi kīlakoṭīśataiś citaḥ |

Splitting [the earth] with spades and laid out on hundreds of pointed wedges: Goddess Earth bears [this] patiently. This is exactly how one can practise the earth vow.

stem form (C₉₄C₄₅K₈₂K₇P₅₇) or as bhīmas (C₀₂K₁₀E) or bhīmaṃ (em.), to reading these two words as a compound because of the following caiva. I suspect that both bhīma and tuṣṭikara refer to the vrata, rather than its practitioner, but I have not emended bhīmas tuṣṭikaraś to bhīmaṃ tuṣṭikaraṃ because vrata appears as a masculine noun, e.g., in 8.17d below.

Acharya (2013, 116–118) gives a number of significant clues about the origins of this observance. After exploring its links to Pāsupatas, he quotes Jaiminīyabrāhmaṇa 2.113, which contains the phrase yatra yatraiṇaṃ viṣṭhā vindet tat tad vitiṣṭheta, in Acharya's translation: 'Wherever he feels the urge to evacuate faeces, right there he should evacuate.' This is an instruction in a Vedic text that is close to what the VSS teaches above. Incidentally, the Jaiminīyabrāhmaṇa adds: tena haitenottaravayasy e[va] yajeta (translated by Acharya as: 'One should perform this [sacrifice] in the final years of one's life').

8.17 While dārayanto, as an active participle in the masculine nominative, is acceptable as an irregular form, the precise interpretation of pādas a and b remains problematic. My translation of this verse is therefore tentative, and the description seems too condensed to be fully intelligible. Kengo Harimoto has suggested that C₀₂ and E might preserve the correct reading, in which case the reference would be to soil piled up by millions of insects (kīṭakoṭī°), rather than to points of wedges (kīlakoṭī°). Nevertheless, I now think that the reference could be Bhīṣma's dying scene in the MBh, where the great warrior is lying on a bed of hundreds of arrows: sa śete śaratalpastho medinīm asprśaṃs tadā: 'Then he lay there on his bed of arrows, without touching the ground' (MBh 6.115.8ab). The word cita is used in a similar context in MBh 12.47.4ab: vikīrṇāṃśur ivādityo bhīṣmaḥ śaraśataiś citaḥ: 'Bhīṣma, laid on a hundred arrows, was like the Sun with its scattered rays of light.'

If this interpretation of VSS 8.17 is correct, the observance described here may require The reference to the Earth in pāda c may have been inspired by lines such as MBh one to dig the ground, set up wedges, and lie upon them, in the manner of fakirs. 6.115.11cd: raraśa pṛthivī caiva bhīṣme śāmtanave bate: 'The Earth cried out when Bhīṣma, the son of Śāmtanu, was killed.'

In Bhaviṣyapurāṇa 4.121, called 'The Description of eighty-five observances' (vrata-apañcāṣṭitvarṇana), we find this on mahīvrata:

dadyāt triṃśatpalād ūrdhvaṃ mahīm kṛtvā tu kāmcanīm |
kulācalādriśabitām tilavastrasamanvitām || 152 ||
tiladroṇopari gatām brāhmaṇāya kutumbine |

vratapañcakam ity etad yaś careta jitendriyaḥ |
sa cottamam idaṃ lokaṃ prāpnoti na ca saṃśayaḥ || 8:18 ||

He who practises these five religious observances with his senses subdued will, without doubt, reach this superior world [i.e. heaven?].

[niyameṣv upavāsaḥ (8) —

Eighth Niyama-rule: eating restrictions]

śeṣānnam antarānnaṃ ca naktāyācitam eva ca |
upavāsaṃ ca pañcāitat kathayīṣyāmi tac chṛṇu || 8:19 ||

Eating leftovers, [not] eating in-between [breakfast and dinner], eating [only] at night, eating food obtained without solicitation, and fasting: listen, I shall teach you these five.

[śeṣānnam —

Eating leftovers]

vaiśvadevātithiśeṣaṃ pitṛśeṣaṃ ca yad bhavet |
bhṛtyaputrakalatrebhyaḥ śeṣāśī vighasāśanaḥ || 8:20 ||

[He who eats] the leftovers belonging to all the gods, to guests, and to the ancestors, he who eats the leftovers (śeṣāśin) of servants, sons and wives, is [called in general] the one who consumes the remains of food (vighasāśana).

A tentative translation of this passage would go as follows: ‘One should donate a golden [model of the] Earth weighing more than thirty palas (approx. one kilogram), depicting the chief mountain-ranges, together with [the gift of] sesame seeds and clothes—the sesame seeds [weighing] more than a droṇa (approx. ten kilograms)—to a householder Brahmin. One should keep the milk-observance [i.e., subsisting on nothing but milk] for one day, and one will enjoy delight in Rudraloka. This is called the Earth Observance whose range is seven æons.’ (I take the values for weights from Olivelle 2005, 997.) Matsya-purāṇa 101.52 gives similar instructions, as do the descriptions of the dharāvṛata and the śubbadvādaśī observances in Kane 1941–1962, v. 5, 321 and 429. The VSS’s mahāvṛata seems different, however, and more in line with the somewhat transgressive and wild—perhaps Pāśupata-oriented—nature of the four preceding observances.

8.18 Note the neuter idaṃ picking up the normally masculine lokaṃ in pāda c, and that the same idaṃ would make more sense if the interlocutor were a deity, e.g., Śiva, referring to his abode, and not Anarthayajña, the ascetic. Perhaps emend to paraṃ, as suggested by Florinda De Simini.

8.19 Note how this category of nīyama-rules was called upavāsa (‘fasting’) in 5.3c above but how in fact upavāsa is just the fifth subcategory withing this group of eating restrictions.

8.20 Pāda a is a sa-vipulā.

[antarānnaṃ —

[Not] eating in-between breakfast and dinner] antarā prātarāśī ca sāyamāśī tathaiva ca |

sadopavāśī bhavati yo na bhunkte kadācana || 8:21 ||

If he fasts between breakfast and dinner, he will be regarded as one who is always fasting.

[nakṭānnaṃ —

Eating [only] at night]

na divā bhojanaṃ kāryaṃ rātrau naiva ca bhojayet |
nakṭavele ca bhoktavyaṃ nakṭadharmaṃ samīhatā || 8:22 ||

One should eat neither in the daytime nor in the evening, one should eat [only] at midnight (nakṭavelā) if he wishes to follow the practice of [eating only at] night (nakṭadharma).

[ayācitānnaṃ —

Eating food obtained without solicitation]

anārabhya ya āhāraṃ kuryān nityaṃ ayācitam |
parair dattaṃ tu yo bhunkte tam ayācitam ucyate || 8:23 ||

He who consumes food without ever initiating [the gifting], without asking for it, and eats [only] that which has been given by others is called [one who eats] unsolicited [food].

[upavāsaḥ —

Fasting]

bhakṣyaṃ bhojyaṃ ca lehyaṃ ca coṣyaṃ peyaṃ ca pañcamam |
na kāṅkṣen nopayuñjīta upavāsaḥ sa ucyate || 8:24 ||

8.21 My translation here follows the parallel verse in the MBh and Ganguli's (1883–1896) rendering. The syntax of the version here in the VSS is less smooth than that in the MBh, and the VSS's reading prāntarāśī definitely required emendation.

8.22 Note °vele for °velāyāṃ in pāda c. On nakṭabhojana, see Śivadharmasāstra chapter ten (Bisshop et al. 2025).

8.23 anārambhasya ('of someone who has not yet started/initiated') in pāda a seems suspect, hence my conjecture (anārabhya ya) that involves minimal intervention and yields better sense. I take ayācitam in pāda b adverbially. Note the accusative with the passive in pāda d (tam... ucyate).

Chewable and unchewable food, food to be sipped or sucked or drunk, as the fifth [category]: if one does not long for and does not consume [any of the above], that is called fasting (upavāsa).

[niyameṣu maunavratam (9) —

Ninth Niyama-rule: observing silence]

mīthyāpiśunapāruṣyatīkṣṇavāg apralāpanam |

maunapañcakam ity etad dhārayen niyatavratatḥ || 8:25 ||

One who is steady in his religious observances should observe silence with regards these five: deceitful speech, malignant speech, insult, abusive speech, and banter.

[mīthyāvacanam —

Deceitful speech]

asambhūtam adṛṣṭam ca dharmāc cāpi bahiṣkṛtam |

anarthāpriyavākyaṃ yat tan mīthyāvacanam smṛtam || 8:26 ||

Fictitious [speech], [speech about] unknown [things], [speech about things] outside the range of Dharma, meaningless and unfriendly speech: these are called deceitful speech.

[piśunatḥ —

Malignancy]

paraśrīm nābhinandanti parasyaiśvaryaṃ eva ca |

aniṣṭadarśanākāṅkṣī piśunatḥ samudāhṛtatḥ || 8:27 ||

8.24 For a detailed discussion of the categories bhakṣya, bhojya, lehya and coṣya, see Kaffe 2020, 245, n. 534. See also Śivadharmottara 8.13:

bhakṣyaṃ bhojyaṃ ca peyaṃ ca lehyaṃ coṣyaṃ ca picchilam |

iti bhedāḥ ṣaḍannasya madhurādyāś ca ṣaḍguṇāḥ ||.

8.25 pāruṣya seems to be the correct reading in pāda a, as opposed to C₀₂'s sambhinnā, because in the following a short section on the category of pāruṣya is coming up (in 8.28). As far as the readings prṣṭavāg and prṣṭavāg are concerned, I suppose prṣṭavāg is not inconceivable (as suggested by Judit Törzsök), for in 8.29 it is, in a way, questions that are given as relevant examples. Another possibility, as suggested by Kengo Harimoto, could be mṛṣāvāg ('lying'), although this does not fully fit the corresponding examples. All in all, I conjectured tīkṣṇavāg here, relying on 8.29. As it will become clear below, apralāpa stands for asatpralāpa ('prattling about untrue things'). Compare the five types of maunavrata taught here with the four types of mauna, as part of the seventh Yama-rule, in VSS 4.68–69 above.

One who does not rejoice in others' fortune or in others' power, one who would like to see something disadvantageous [for others] is called somebody utters malignant speech.

[pāruṣyam — Insult]

mṛta mātā pitā caiva hānisthānaṃ katham bhavet |
bhuñkṣva kāmam amṛṣṭānāṃ pāruṣyaṃ samudāhṛtam || 8:28 ||

‘[May your] mother and father be dead! How come you fail? Enjoy the love of unclean women!’ [These are] called insult.

[tikṣṇavāk — Verbal abuse]

hṛdi na sphuṭase mūḍha śiro vā na vidāryase |
evamādīny anekāni tikṣṇavādī sa ucyate || 8:29 ||

‘[Why] don’t you burst in your heart, stupid? [Why] don’t you break your head?’ [If one utters] these or similar [curses], he is said to be engaging in verbal abuse.

[asatpralāpaḥ — Banter]

dyūtabhojanayuddham ca madyastrikatham eva ca |
asatpralāpaḥ pañcāitat kīrtitaṃ me dvijottama || 8:30 ||

Stories about gambling, food, fights, drinking, and women are five [examples of] banter. [Thus] have I taught [reasons for observing silence], O excellent Brahmin.

8.27 Note the plural form abhinandanti in pāda a presumably only for metrical reasons.

8.28 Understand mṛta as a stem form noun for, presumably, mṛtā. My translation of pāda b, or rather of the whole verse, is tentative. I am not at all certain that I understand correctly what these abusive phrases imply. Should we read bhā niṣṭhā na katham bhavet (‘Oh how could [you] avoid death?’) in pāda b? Alternatively, should we emend to sthānisthānaṃ katham bhavet (‘How come you have such a high position?’).

8.30 I take °katham in pāda b as an alternative nominative form of °kathā metri causa and as belonging to all the categories here thus: dyūtakathā, bhojanakathā, yuddhakathā, madyakathā, strikathā. There are various definitions of asatpralāpa, of which the most useful for understanding this verse is perhaps Siṃhabhūpāla’s (Rasārṇa-

*maunam eva sadā kāryaṃ vākyaśaubhāgyam icchatā |
apāruṣyaṃ asambhinnaṃ vākyaṃ satyaṃ udīrayet || 8:31 ||*

Those who long for eloquent speech should always observe silence.
One should speak true words without insult and idle talk.

*yaś tu maunasya no kartā dūṣitaḥ sa kulādhamaḥ |
janme janme ca durgandho mūkaś caivopajāyate || 8:32 ||*

He who does not observe silence is defiled and is the black sheep of the family. For a number of rebirths, [his mouth] will stink and he will become mute.

*tasmān maunavratam sadaiva sudṛḍham kurvīta yo niścitam
vācā tasya alaṅghyatā ca bhavati sarvāṃ sabhāṃ nandati |
vaktrāc cotpalagandham asya satatam vāyanti gandhotkatāḥ
śāstrāṇekasahasraśo giri naraḥ proccāryate nirmalam || 8:33 ||*

Therefore the speech of a person who observes silence always [at the proper time], firmly, with resolution, will become inviolable and [it will cause] everybody in the assembly to rejoice, and the fragrance of lotuses [and other kinds of] rich fragrances will constantly blow from his mouth. Thousands of faultless śāstras will be declared in the words of this person.

vasudbhākara 3.382–383): asambaddhakathālāpo 'satpralāpa itīritah ('Relating incoherent stories is called asatpralāpa.')) This is illustrated with an incoherent and illogical verse from the play Vīrabhadravijyāmbhaṇa. It is possible that what the author of this section in the VSS had in mind was boasting about these categories or boastful speech while engaging in activities in connection with them.

Note the use of the singular next to a number in pāda c and understand me in pāda d as mayā. The latter usage appears in the epics, see Oberlies 2003, 102–103 (4.1.3).

8.32 The form janme for janmani often occurs in Śaiva tantras as a typically Aīśa phenomenon. See, e.g., Nīśvāsa nayasūtra 1.86a and Brahmayāmala 45.8b, 452a, 559a. Thematisation of stems in -an occurs also in the epics, see Oberlies 2003, 88 (3.10).

8.33 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note the krama licence in °vratam: the last syllable of mauna° counts as light. In pāda b, understand nandati in a causative sense, or accept the reading sarvā sabhā. To make sense of pāda d, we are forced to take śāstra as a stem form noun and naraḥ as a (regular) genitive from nṛ. (I thank Judit Törzsök for this interpretation.)

[niyameṣu snānam (10) —
Tenth Niyama-rule: bathing]

snānam pañcavidhaṃ caiva pravakṣyāmi yathātatham |
āgneyaṃ vāruṇaṃ brāhmaṇyaṃ vāyavyaṃ divyam eva ca || 8:34 ||

And now I shall teach you the five kinds of bathing as they really are: the fire bath, water bath, Vedic bath, wind bath, and divine bath.

[āgneyaṃ snānam —
Fire bath]

āgneyaṃ bhasmanā snānam toyāc chataguṇaṃ phalam |
bhasmapūtaṃ pavitraṃ ca bhasma pāpaprāṇāśanam || 8:35 ||

Fire bath is [performed] with ashes. [Its] fruits are a hundred times bigger than [those of a] water [bath]. [For anything] cleaned with ashes is pure. Ashes destroy sin.

tasmād bhasma prayuñjīta dehinām tu malāpaham |
sarvaśāntikaraṃ bhasma bhasma rakṣakaṃ uttamam || 8:36 ||

Therefore one should use ash for it purifies humans of their defilement. Ashes yield appeasement for everyone. Ash is the ultimate protector.

bhasmanā tryāyuṣaṃ kṛtvā brahmacaryavrate sthitam |
bhasmanā ṛṣayaḥ sarve pavitrikṛtam ātmanaḥ || 8:37 ||

8.34 For a similar set of five types of baths, see, e.g., Parāśarasmr̥ti 12.9–11:

snānāni pañca puṇyāni kīrtitāni manīṣibhiḥ |
āgneyaṃ vāruṇaṃ brāhmaṇyaṃ vāyavyaṃ divyam eva ca || 9 ||
āgneyaṃ bhasmanā snānam avagāhya tu vāruṇaṃ |

yat tu sātapavarṣeṇa tat snānam divyam ucyate |

Similar passages are to be found, e.g., in Padmapurāṇa 1.47.4ff, Revākhaṇḍa 177.6ff, and in a citation attributed to Bhṛgu in Maskari's commentary ad Gautamadharmasūtra 2.14.

Drawing [the sectarian marks on their foreheads while reciting] the Tryāyuṣa [mantra], observing chastity, all the sages purified themselves with ashes.

bhasmanā vibudhā muktā vīrabhadrabhayaṛditāḥ |
bhasmānuśamsaṃ dr̥ṣṭvaiva brahmaṇānumatiḥ kṛtā || 8:38 ||

The gods, afflicted by their fear of Vīrabhadra, were set free with the help of ashes. Seeing the glory of ashes, Brahmā consented [to the use of this otherwise impure substance].

8.37 Note tryāyuṣa in the sense of the three puṇḍra-lines on the forehead and compare with 11.28c. Understand sthitam in pāda b as sthitāḥ if we are to connect this line to the next. Understand pavitrikṛtam as pavitrikṛtvantaḥ. The reference here may be to a story in which Kaśyapa and other Ṛṣis are burnt to ashes, to be later reanimated by Vīrabhadra, in the Śokara forest. See Padmapurāṇa 5.107.1–14ff:

8.39 One could simply accept the reading of C₀₂ (°betunā) in pāda d, but all other rejected readings hint at an original hetutaḥ (as remarked by Judit Törzsök).

8.40 The reading vividham in pāda b seems to be the lectio difficilior as opposed to the rejected vidhivat.

8.41 The Ṛgvedic mantra starting with āpo hi ṣṭhā (RV 10.9.1–3) is traditionally [vāyavyaṃ snānam —

These fifty Dharmic [teachings] wipe off all defilement. There will be no rebirth [for one who follows these rules], not even in millions of æons.

associated with mārjana ('cleaning, wiping'). According to Kane (1941–1962, v. 4, 120), a Brahmin 'should bathe thrice in the day, should perform mārjana (splashing or sprinkling water on the head and other limbs by means of kuśas dipped in water after repeating sacred mantras) with the three verses 'apo hi sthā' [sic] (Rg. X.9.1–3) [...]' This suggests a method of bathing that is more of a ritual than an actual bath.

8.42 See similar teachings on vāyavyasnāna, e.g., in Kūrmapurāṇa 2.1814ab: gavāṃ hi rajasā proktaṃ vāyavyaṃ snānam uttamam, and in Parāśarasmr̥ti 12.10d: vāyavyaṃ gorajaḥ smṛtam (see note to 8.34 above). This version of bathing seems to be a way of taking a shower in the holy dust raising from under the hooves of cows.

8.44 Metre: mālinī. This verse marks not only the end of a long section on the Niyama rules, but also the end of a major part of the text that discusses the ten Yama and ten Niyama rules, spanning 3.16–8.44. There are two stem form nouns in pāda b:

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe niyamapraśaṃsā nāmādhyaṃyo 'ṣṭamaḥ ||

Here ends the eighth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgrāha called Praise of the Niyama-rules.

I suspect that E is right assuming that in order to restore the metre, we must have nigadita, as opposed to nigaditas, the reading transmitted in all the witnesses; also understand sarvalokānukampya in pāda b as sarvalokān anukampya.

Understand sakalamalapahārī in pāda c as sakala-mala-apahārī, which would be unmetrical, and compare it with duritamalapahārī in 4.89c. Take etan/etad as either picking up °pahārī or rather a plural corresponding to °pañcāśad. The latter phenomenon, namely the use of the singular after numbers, is one of the hallmarks of the text.

By ‘fifty Dharmas,’ the text refers to the ten main Niyama-rules, each having five subcategories ($10 \times 5 = 50$).

The licence of an word-ultimate short syllable treated as long (°janma in pāda d) is also frequently seen in this text (see pp. 41ff). Note also puna for punar metri causa.

[Chapter Nine]

[traiguṇyam — System of three qualities]

[anarthayajña uvāca |]
trikālaguṇabhedena bhinnam sarvacarācaram |
tasmāt triguṇabandhena veṣṭitam nikhilam jagat || 9:1 ||

All that move or do not move are divided by the three subdivisions (guṇa) of time. Therefore the whole world is bound by the ties of the three qualities (guṇa).

vigatarāga uvāca |
traikālyam iti kiṃ jñeyam traidhātukaśārīriṇaḥ |
kiṃcid vistaram eveha kathayasva tapodhana || 9:2 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: What does the term ‘the three times’ mean for an embodied creature that is made up of the three constituents (traidhātuka)? Teach me about this in a somewhat more extended manner, O great ascetic.

9.1 It is only M, a MS not collated for this chapter, that inserts, post correctionem, anarthayajña uvāca at the beginning of this chapter. It is not really needed: Anarthayajña’s teaching continues without interruption here. Another possibility is that this verse was originally the continuation of the end of chapter two (2.40ef: traikālyakalanāt kālas tena kālaḥ prakīrtitaḥ). At least it seems to directly connect there topic-wise. My translation of guṇa in pāda a is tentative.

9.2 I have included the element traī° in the lemma from pāda b only because C₀₂ has a slightly unusual ligature there (mtraī).

As for the interpretation of traidhātuka in pāda b, an intelligent guess would be a reference to the three so-called ‘humours’ of the body, namely pitta, vāyu/anila/vāta, and śleṣman. They are discussed later in VSS chapter 23 in the context of types of sleep. MBh 12.330.21–22ab clearly states that the three dhātus, pitta, śleṣma, and vāyu keep the body alive:

trayo hi dhātavaḥ khyātāḥ karmajā iti ca smṛtāḥ |
pittaṃ śleṣmā ca vāyuś ca eṣa saṃghāta ucyate ||
etaiś ca dhāryate jantur etaiḥ kṣīṇaiś ca kṣīyate |.
See also Uttarottaramahāsaṃvāda (C₉₄ f. 179r line 4):
tridhātukaṃ śarīram vai manuṣasya ca dehināḥ |
śleṣmā pittaṃ ca vāyuś ca śarīram tena vyāpitam ||.

anarthayajña uvāca |
traikālyam triguṇam jñeyam vyāpī prakṛtisambhavaḥ |
anyonyam upajīvanti anyonyam anuvartinaḥ || 9:3 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: The three times are the three qualities (guṇa). They are [all-]pervading and are born from Prakṛti. They support each other, they follow each other.

sattvaṃ rajas tamaś caiva rajasḥ sattvaṃ tamas tathā |
tamaḥ sattvaṃ rajasḥ caiva anyonyamithunāḥ smṛtāḥ || 9:4 ||

Sattva, Rajas and Tamas; Rajas, Sattva and Tamas; Tamas, Sattva and Rajas; they are mutually each other's pairs.

sāttviko bhagavān viṣṇuḥ rājasasḥ kamalodbhavaḥ |
tāmaso bhagavān īśasḥ sakalamvikaleśvaraḥ || 9:5 ||

Lord Viṣṇu is Sattvic. [Brahmā], the one who was born from a lotus, is Rājasa. Lord Īśa is Tāmasa, [both in his] complete (sakala) [form] and [as] formless (vikala) Īśvara.

The present verse in the VSS contains the only occurrence of the term traidhātuka in the text. In 5.11cd, dhātu is probably used in the same Āyurvedic sense that I am proposing here (dhātuvaiśamyanāśo 'sti na ca rogāḥ sudārunāḥ). Elsewhere dhātu means 'verbal root' (3.3), 'metal' (16.6: yathā vai sarvadhātūnām doṣā dahyanti dhāmyatām | tathā pāpāḥ pradahyante dhravaṃ prāṇasya nigrhāt ||), and 'gross element' (for Sāṃkhya-style *mahābhūta*s in chapter 20). To slightly complicate things, chapter thirteen claims that the human body is made up of two dhātus: somadhātu and agnidhātu. Semen contains somadhātu, menstrual blood agnidhātu, and the new-born baby is thus made up of both. See e.g. 13.21–22:

śukraśoṇitasamīyogād garbhotpattis tataḥ smṛtā |
agnisomātmakam devi śarīram dvayadhātutaḥ ||
somadhātu smṛtam śukram agnidhātu rajasḥ smṛtam |
agnisomāśrayam devi śarīram iti samjñitam ||.

9.3 Understand pāda b as referring to the neuter traikālyam or rather triguṇam (gender confusion).

9.4 I have failed to fully understand what this verse tries to convey. Perhaps it simply states Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas form various pairs. See the pairs in 9.21–22 and 9.24–28.

9.5 My altering the reading viṣṇu to viṣṇuḥ in pāda a against all witnesses may be regarded as an overcorrection and the stem form could be original, but compare BrahmanḍaP 1.4.6cd (in the apparatus). My translation of *pāda*s cd is tentative. I suspect that pāda d is one single compound, the anuvāra is only inserted to avoid the metric fault of two laghu syllables at the second and third position. I understand vikala as a synonym of niṣkala. For the tantric connotations of the pair sakala-niṣkala see, e.g., TAK III s.v. niṣkala.

sattvaṃ kundenduvarṇābhāṃ padmarāganibhāṃ rājaḥ |
tamaś cāñjanaśailābhāṃ kīrtitāni manīṣibhiḥ || 9:6 ||

Sattva is of the colour of jasmine and the moon. Rajas is of the colour of ruby. Tamas is of the colour of lamp-black and black pigment. [This is how the colours of the qualities] are taught by the wise.

sattvaṃ jalaṃ rajo 'ṅgāraṃ tamo dhūmasamākulam |
etaḥ guṇamayair baddhāḥ pacyante sarvadehināḥ || 9:7 ||

Sattva is water, Rajas is charcoal, Tamas is a mass of smoke. All living creatures are being cooked, bound by these qualities (guṇa).

vigatarāga uvāca |
kena kena prakāreṇa guṇapāśena badhyate |
cibnam eṣāṃ prthaktvena kathayasva tapodhana || 9:8 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: By what sort of nooses of the qualities (guṇa) is [a person] bound? Teach me the signs connected to them one by one, O great ascetic.

anarthayajña uvāca |
anekākārabhāvena badhyante guṇabandhanaiḥ |
mohitā nābhijānanti jānanti śivayogināḥ || 9:9 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: [Living beings] are bound in many ways and by many conditions by the fetters of the qualities (guṇa). Those who are deluded do not know. The Śivayogins do know.

ūrdhvaṃgo nityasattvastho madhyago rajasāvṛtaḥ |
adhogatis tamo'vasthā bhavanti puruṣādhamāḥ || 9:10 ||

He who is always established in Sattva goes upwards. He who is covered with Rajas goes in the middle. Those lowest of men in the state of Tamas go downwards.

9.7 °maya° in pāda c is probably superfluous; understand etair guṇair baddhāḥ.

9.9 For the possible identification of the figure of the Śivayogin in the context of the Śivadharmas, see, e.g., De Simini 2016a and 2022, Mirnig 2019, and Bisschop et al. 2021.

9.10 Note the conjecture in pāda a (ūrdhvaṃgo, 'going upwards,' for ūrdhvaṅgo, 'the upper part of the body'). Understand adhogatis in pāda c as a bahuvrīhi in the plural (adhogatayas).

*svarge 'pi hi trayo vaite bhāvanīyās tapodhana |
mānuṣeṣu ca tīryeṣu guṇabhedās trayas trayah || 9:11 ||*

These three [guṇas] are to be acknowledged even in heaven, O great ascetic. The threefold classification by Quality (guṇa) is there among humans, and also among animals.

[sāttvikottamāḥ — Superior Sattva-type]
*brahmā viṣṇuś ca rudraś ca dharmā indrah prajāpatiḥ |
somo 'gnir varuṇah sūryo daśa sattvottamāḥ smṛtāḥ || 9:12 ||*

The ten superior Sattva [beings] are: Brahmā, Viṣṇu, Rudra, Dharma, Indra, Prajāpati, Soma, Agni, Varuṇa, and Sūrya.

[sāttvikamadhyamāḥ — Middle Sattva-type]
*rudrādityā vasusādhyā viśveśamaruto dhruvah |
ṛṣayah pitaraś caiva daśaite sattvamadhyamāḥ || 9:13 ||*

The ten middle-ranking Sattva [categories of divine beings] are: Rudras, Ādityas, Vasus, Sādhyas, Viśveśa, the Maruts, Dhruva, the sages, and the ancestors.

[sāttvikādhāmāḥ — Low Sattva-type]
*tārā grabhāḥ surā yakṣā gandharvāḥ kiṁnaroragāḥ |
rakṣobhūtapiśācāś ca daśaite sāttvikādhāmāḥ || 9:14 ||*

The ten low-ranking Sattva [entities] are the stars, the planets, the Suras, the Yakṣas, the Gandharvas, the Kiṁnaras, the Serpents, the Rakṣases, the Ghosts, and the Piśācas.

9.11 The expression trayas trayah probably hints at both the threefold classification by guṇa and also the threefold subtypes of each (uttama, madhyama, adhama), described below.

9.12 Note that Brahmā was labelled as Rajas-type in 9.5b above.

9.13 Pāda a is a sa-vīpulā. Note that there seems to be only nine names/categories listed here unless we try to interpret viśveśa as viśvedevāḥ and īśah.

[rājasottamāḥ — Superior Rajas-type]

ṛtvik purohitācāryayajvāno 'tithi vijñanī |
rājā mantrī vratī vedī daśaite rājasottamāḥ || 9:15 ||

The ten superior Rājasa [categories] are the Ṛtvij priest, the domestic chaplain, the teacher, the sacrificer, the guest, the scholar, the king, the minister, people engaged in religious observances, and [Brahmins] who know the Vedas.

[rājasamadhyamāḥ — Middle Rajas-type]

sūto 'mbaṣṭhavaṇiś cograḥ śilpikārūkamāgadhbāḥ |
veṇavaidehakāmātyā daśaite rajamadhyamāḥ || 9:16 ||

The ten middle-ranking Rājasa [categories] are [the following castes and professions]: Sūta [coachman/bard], Ambaṣṭha [doctor], Vaṇij [merchant caste], Ugra [combatant?], Śilpin and Kārūka [both artisans], Māgadha [bard], Veṇa [musician], Vaidehaka [guard], and Āmātya [counsellor].

[rājasādhamāḥ —
Low Rajas-type]

carmakṛt kumbhakṛt kolī lohakṛt trapunīlikāḥ |
naṭamuṣṭikacaṇḍālā daśaite rajasādhamāḥ || 9:17 ||

The ten low-ranking Rājasa [professions] are: leathersmith, potter, Kolī, blacksmith, tinsmith, dyer, dancer, goldsmith, Caṇḍāla.

9.15 I take 'tithi as a stem form noun and vijñanī as vijñānī, both metri causa. rājamantrī as 'minister' makes sense, but by emending rāja^o to rājā in pāda c I aim to arrive at a list of ten categories instead of nine.

9.16 Since all the witnesses consulted treat vaṇi as an acceptable stem in pāda a, I have refrained from correcting it to vaṇij/vaṇik. The English equivalents that I give in square brackets are in some cases little more than traditionally accepted guesses.

9.17 Problems with this verse include the following. There are only nine professions/castes listed here instead of the expected ten. kolī is difficult to interpret; later texts of the Jātiviveka genre such as Gopinātha's Jātiviveka (see O'Hanlon et al. 2015) mention kolī as a regional name for the caste Niṣāda (sometimes: a falconer). I take trapu tentatively as trapukṛt although I cannot see any attestation of that form. And taking nīlikā as a (female) dyer is again tentative.

Superior Tamas-type]
gogajagavayā aśvamṛgacāmarakiṃnarāḥ |
siṃhavyāghravarābhāś ca daśaite tāmasottamāḥ || 9:18 ||

These are the ten superior Tāmasa [creatures]: cows, elephants, Gayal oxen, horses, deer, Yaks, Kiṃnaras, lions, tigers, and wild boar.

[tāmasamadhyamāḥ — Middle Tamas-type]
ajameṣamahiṣyāś ca mūṣikānakulādayaḥ |
uṣṭrarāṅkuśaśagaṇḍā daśaite tamamadhyamāḥ || 9:19 ||

The ten middle-ranking Tāmasa [animals] are: goats, sheep, buffaloes, mice, mongooses etc., camels, Raṅku deer, hares, and rhinoceroses.

[tāmasādhāmāḥ —
Low Tamas-type]
ṛkṣagodhāmṛgaśṛṅgibakavānaragardabhāḥ |
sūkaraśvānagomāyur daśaite tāmasādhāmāḥ || 9:20 ||

The ten low-ranking Tāmasa [beings] are: bears, alligators, deer, horned animals, cranes, apes, donkeys, boar, dogs, and frogs.

[tamasāttvikāḥ —
The Tamas–Sattva category]
krauñcahaṃsaśukaśyenabhāṣabāruṇḍasārasāḥ |
cakrābhvaśukamāyūrā daśaite tamasāttvikāḥ || 9:21 ||

9.18 Note that Kiṃnaras have already appeared in another category in 9.14 above.

9.19 °mahiṣyāś seems to be an equivalent of °mahiṣāś metri causa. Again, we expect ten items in this list but we find only nine. Pāda c is a sa-vipulā.

9.20 Pāda a is a sa-vipulā. Translating śṛṅgi, śṛṅgin, or perhaps śṛṅgī as ‘horned animals’ is little more than a guess. Other possibilities such as ‘elephants’ or simply ‘bulls’ are less attractive because we have had them above in other categories, although repetitions do occur across, and sometimes within, these lists: see, e.g., mṛga mentioned both in 9.18 and 20, śyena in both 9.21 and 22, and śuka repeated in 9.21.

The ten Tāmasa–Sāttvika [beings] are: curlews, geese, parrots, falcons, vultures, B[h]āruṇḍa birds, cranes, Cakra[vāka] birds, parrots, and peacocks.

[tamarājasāḥ —

The Tamas–Rajas category]

balākāḥ kukkuṭāḥ kākāś cillalāvakatittirāḥ |
grdhrakaṇkabakaśyena daśaite tamarājasāḥ || 9:22 ||

The ten Tāmasa–Rājasa [beings] are: Balāka-cranes, wild cocks, crows, Bengal kites, painted quails, partridges, vultures, herons, Bakas, and hawks.

[tāmasādhamādi —

Low Tamas-type etc.]

kokilolūkakañjalyakapotāḥ pañca eva ca |
śārikāś ca kuṇḍīgāś ca daśaite tāmasādhamāḥ || 9:23 ||

The ten lowest Tāmasa [beings also include]: cuckoos, owls, Kañjala-birds, doves, and the five[?], Śārika birds and sparrows.

makaragobhanakrāś ca ṛkṣāś ca tāmasāttvikāḥ |
kacchapaśiśukumbhīramaṇḍūkāś tamarājasāḥ |
śaṅkhaśuktikaśambūkāḥ kavayyas tamatāmasāḥ || 9:24 ||

Makara crocodiles, cow-killing alligators, and bears are of Tamas–Sattva. Tortoises, porpoises, crocodiles of the Ganges, and frogs 9.21 Although all the manuscripts consulted read kroṇca° in pāda a, I have decided to accept E's standard spelling in this case. In pāda b, I left °bāruṇḍa° thus, although what is really meant is probably bhāruṇḍa, bhāruṇḍa or bhurūṇḍa. Note the repetition of śuka in this stanza.

9.22 It would be easy to correct the stem form °śyena in pāda c to śyenā (plural) but I suspect that the form could be original, possibly because it was confused with an instrumental.

9.23 My impression is that the reading °kiñjalka° (usually: 'the filament of a lotus') in pāda a is either a mistake for, or rather an altered form metri causa, maybe a regional form, of kañjala (a kind of bird). C₉₄C₀₂K₈₂ (kiñjalya) may be slightly closer to the required form (kañjalaka/kañjalka?). My emendation is a compromise. Note that there are only six items in this list and that pāda b is difficult to make sense of in this context. Something must have gone wrong here.

are of Tamas–Rajas. Conch-shells, pearl-oysters, shells, and Kavayī fish are Tamas–Tāmasa.

candanāgarupadmaṃ ca plakṣodumbarapippalāḥ |
vaṭadāruśamībilvā daśaite tamasāttvikāḥ || 9:25 ||

Sandalwood, aloe wood, lotus, waved-leaf fig-tree, Ficus Glomerata, holy fig-tree, Banyan, Devadāru tree, Śamī tree, wood-apple tree: these ten are Tamas-Sattva.

jāmbīralakucāmrātadāḍimākolavetasāḥ |
nimbanīpo †dhravāvaś ca† daśaite tamarājasāḥ || 9:26 ||

The ten Tamas–Rajas [trees] are: Citron trees, bread-fruit trees, hog-plum trees, pomegranate trees, jujube trees, rattan trees, Neem trees, Kadamba trees and ...

vrkṣavallīlatāveṇutvaksāratrṇabbūrubāḥ |
mīrajās ca śilāśasyā daśaite tamasāttvikāḥ || 9:27 ||

9.24 Note the two laghus in pāda a. The reading that yields ‘and bears’ (vrkṣās ca) is my conjecture for a problematic ṛṣā ca. It is far from satisfactory since bears have already appeared in verse 9.20 above. My emendation of the word śusu to śisu (‘porpoise,’ for śīśuka or śīśumāra, lit. ‘child-killer’) in pāda c is based on the fact that, most probably, we need an aquatic animal here, rather than a hare (śāśa). The readings kabandhyās and kabanas in pāda f make no sense. I conjecture kavayyas (the plural of kavayī), which is a type of fish. See them mentioned in MahāSubhS 388:

ajājījambāle rajasi maricānām ca luṭhitāḥ |
kaṭutvād uṣṇatvāj janītarasanausthavyatikarāḥ |
anīrvāṇotthena prabalaratātailāktatanavo
mayā sadyo bhrṣṭāḥ katipayakavayyaḥ kavalitāḥ ||

See a translation of this verse in the MahāSubhS (ed. Sternbach, vol. 1, p. 67): ‘I rolled them in a cumin swamp / and in a heap of pepper dust / till they were spiced and hot enough / to twist your tongue and mouth. / When they were basted well with oil, / I didn’t wait to wash or sit; / I gobbled that mess of koji fish / as soon as they were fried. (D. H. H. Ingalls’s translation).’

9.25 In pāda d, tamas° or tamaḥ° are unmetrical and might be the result of scribal correction. The original may have been the metrical tama°, here transmitted only in E. Cf. 9.27d.

9.26 There seems to be only nine items here instead of the expected ten. I have not been able to interpret the last one, dhravāvaś, which might conceal two names—possibly dhava (Grislea tomentosa or Anogeissus latifolia) and aśvattha (Ficus religiosa).

[Other] trees, creepers, winding plants, cane, bamboo, grass, plants, seaweed, rocks, and grains are the ten Tamas–Sattva ones.

bhramarāli pataṅgās ca krimikīṭajalaukasah |
yūkoddamaśamaśānām ca viṣṭhājās tamasāttvikāḥ || 9:28 ||

Bees, black bees and butterflies, worms, insects, aquatic animals, lice, bugs, mosquitoes, and creatures in faeces are Tamas–Sattva ones.

dayā satyaṃ damaḥ śaucaṃ jñānaṃ maunaṃ tapaḥ kṣamā |
śīlaṃ ca nābbhimānaṃ ca sāttvikās cottamā janāḥ || 9:29 ||

[These ten expressions describe] people who are the best within the Sāttvika [type]: having compassion, truthfulness, self-control, purity, knowledge, observing silence, penance, patience, integrity, lack of self-conceit.

kāmatṛṣṇāratidyūtamāno yuddhaṃ madaḥ spṛhā |
nirghṛṇāḥ kalikartāro rājaseṣūttamā janāḥ || 9:30 ||

[These ten words describe] people who are the best among the Rājasa [ones]: desire, thirst, pleasure, gambling, arrogance, fight, intoxication, delight, cruel, quarrelling.

himsāsūyāghṛṇāmūḍhanidrātandrībhayālasāḥ |
krodho matsaramāyī ca tāmaseṣūttamā janāḥ || 9:31 ||

[These words describe] people who are the best among the Tāmasa [type]: violence, envy, incompassionate, stupid, sleepy, lazy, cowardly, idle, anger, greedy, cheating.

laghuprītiprakāśī ca dhyānayoge sadotsukāḥ |
prajñābuddhivirāgī ca sāttvikāṃ guṇalakṣaṇam || 9:32 ||

The Sāttvika can be characterised as follows: light, joyful, bright, always eager for yoga meditation, wise, intelligent, and dispassionate.

9.28 The reading ādi in pāda a could be misplaced, in order to avoid the metrical fault of two laghu syllables in the second and third syllables (understand bhramara-pataṅgādayas ca), but since in this way we have only nine items here, I emended bhramarādi° to bhramarāli° to include another category, ali, that seems fitting.

bālako nīpuṇo rāgī māno darpaś ca lobhakaḥ |
spṛhā īrṣā pralāpī ca rājasam guṇalakṣaṇam || 9:33 ||

The Rājasa can be characterised as follows: childish, skilful, passionate, proud, arrogant, greedy, desirous, jealous, and chattering.

udvega ālaso mohaḥ krūras taskaranirdayaḥ |
krodhaḥ piśuna nidrā ca tāmasam guṇalakṣaṇam || 9:34 ||

The Tāmasa can be characterised as follows: anxious, lazy, deluded, cruel, a thief, pitiless, angry, wicked, and sleepy.

[āhāras traiguṇye —

Food and the three qualities]

vigatarāga uvāca |
kena cibhena vijñeya āhāraḥ sarvadehinām |
traiguṇyasya pṛthaktvena kathayasva tapodbhava || 9:35 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: By what signs can the food of each [category of] humans be recognised? Teach [them] to me one by one with regards to the three qualities (guṇa), O great ascetic.

anarthayajña uvāca |
āyuh kīrtiḥ sukham prītiḥ balārogyavivardhanam |
hr̥dyasvādurasam snigdha āhāraḥ sāttvikapriyaḥ || 9:36 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: The Sāttvikas prefer food that yields [long] life, fame, happiness, joy, which increases strength and health, which is savoury, tastes nice, and which is soft.

atyuşṇam āmlalavaṇam rūkṣam tīkṣṇam vidāhi ca |
rājasasreṣṭha-āhāro duḥkhaśokāmayapradāḥ || 9:37 ||

The best food for the Rājasas is rather warm, acidic, salty, hard, hot, and pungent. It gives you pain, a burning sensation, and indigestion.

9.34 In pāda a, piśuno, the reading of all MSS consulted, could be the right choice instead of E's piśuna: in this way the pāda could be a (slightly wrong) ra-vīpulā, dr in nidrā not making the previous syllable long, a licence often occurring in this text (krama licence).

9.37 Note the lack of sandhi within what was meant to be a compound in pāda c (understand rājasasreṣṭha-āhāro), and the total lack of gender agreement between the adjectives in pādas ab, and āhāro and pradāḥ.

abbakṣyāmedhyapūti ca pūti paryuṣitaṃ ca yat |
āmayārasavisvāda āhāras tāmasapriyaḥ || 9:38 ||

Tāmasas prefer food that is prohibited, impure and foul-smelling, stinky, and stale. It causes indigestion, is sapless, and tasteless.

[guṇātītam —
 Beyond the qualities]

vigatarāga uvāca |
guṇātītaṃ kathaṃ jñeyam saṃsāraparapāragam |
guṇapāśanibaddhānām mokṣaṃ kathaya tattvataḥ || 9:39 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: How can one recognize [the state of getting] beyond the guṇas, which leads one to the other shore of [the ocean] of mundane existence? Tell me truly about the liberation of those who are bound by the noose of the guṇas.

anarthayajña uvāca |
ātmavat sarvabhūtāni samyak paśyeta bho dvija |
guṇātītaḥ sa vijñeyah saṃsāraparapāragah || 9:40 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: Well, he who looks at all living beings in the correct way, as his own Self, O Brahmin, is to be known as one beyond the qualities (guṇa), as one who has reached the other shore of [the ocean of] mundane existence.

īrṣādveśasamo yas tu sukhaduḥkhasamās ca ye |
stutinindāsamā ye ca guṇātītaḥ sa ucyate || 9:41 ||

He who is indifferent to envy and hate, he who treats happiness and sorrow as equal, he who treats praise and reproach as equal, is called ‘one who is beyond the qualities (guṇa).’

tulyapriyāpriyo yaś ca arimītrasamas tathā |
mānāpamānayos tulyo guṇātītaḥ sa ucyate || 9:42 ||

9.38 Understand °pūti in pāda a as standing for °pūti metri causa (which is oddly repeated in pāda b), and note that °āmedhya° in the same pāda is an emendation (correcting K₇’s reading). I have conjectured āmayārasa° for āyāmarasa° in pāda c because the transmitted readings make little sense and because āmaya appeared in 9.37d above.

9.40 Note verses from the BhG (6.32, 12.13, 14.24–25) quoted in the apparatus to the critical edition, of which VSS 9.40–42 seem to be echoes of.

He who treats pleasant and unpleasant things, enemy and friend, respect and contempt equally, is called ‘one who is beyond the qualities (guṇa)’.

eṣa te kathito vipra guṇasadbhāvanirṇayaḥ |
guṇayuktas tu saṃsārī guṇātītaḥ parāṅgatiḥ || 9:43 ||

O Brahmin, thus has the exposition of the essence of the qualities (guṇa) been taught to you. Those who are bound by the qualities (guṇa) are subject to transmigration, while (saṃsārī), those beyond the qualities (guṇa) tread the supreme path.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe traiguṇyaviśeṣaṇīyo nāmādhyāyo navamaḥ ||

Here ends the ninth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgrāha called Particulars of the Three Guṇas.

9.43 I have accepted E’s parāṅgatiḥ in pāda d, as opposed to the even more problematic parāṅgatim of the MSS, both probably standing for the bahuvrīhi compound para-gatiḥ metri causa. Alternatively, accept parām gatim and supply yāti or gacchati.

[Chapter Seven]

[kāyatīrthopavarṇanam —

Description of the pilgrimage places in the body]

vigatarāga uvāca |
katamaṃ sarvatīrthānāṃ śreṣṭhaṃ ābur manīṣinaḥ |
kathayasva muniśreṣṭha yady asti bhuvi kāmadaṃ || 10:1 ||

Vigatarāga spoke: Which pilgrimage place (tīrtha) do the wise consider the best of all? Tell me, O best of sages, if there is one in the world that fulfils [all] desires.

anarthayajña uvāca |
atigubhyaṃ idaṃ praśnaṃ prṣṭaḥ snehād dvijottama |
bravīmi vaḥ purāvrtaṃ nandinā kathito 'smy ahaṃ || 10:2 ||

Anarthayajña spoke: This question is an extremely deep secret. [Now that you] ask [me], O excellent Brahmin, I shall teach you, out of fondness, an ancient legend that Nandi told me.

nandikeśvara uvāca |
kailāsaśikhare ramye siddhacāraṇasevite |
tatrāsīnaṃ śivaṃ sākṣād devī vacanaṃ abravīt || 10:3 ||

Nandikeśvara spoke: On the beautiful peak of Mount Kailāsa, which is frequented by Siddhas and celestial singers (cāraṇa), Devī asked Śiva, who was sitting there in his manifest form (sākṣāt).

devy uvāca |
bhagavan devadeveśa sarvabhūtajagatpate |
praṣṭum icchāmy ahaṃ tv ekaṃ dharmagubhyaṃ sanātanam || 10:4 ||

10.1 Strictly speaking katamat would be a more grammatical form in pāda a than katamaṃ.

10.2 On the syntax of pāda d, see pp. 35 ff.

10.3 Note the change of speaker here: Nandikeśvara is also the main interlocutor of the ŚDhŚ and the ŚDhSaṃgr. This verse marks the beginning of the layer that can be labelled Śaiva (see pp. 11 ff). On Nandi/Nandin/Nandikeśvara not being Śiva's bull, see Bhattacharya 1977 and pp. 6 ff. above.

Devī spoke: O Lord, Lord of the chiefs of the gods, O ruler of all beings and of the whole world, I would like to ask you about an eternal secret concerning Dharma, atitīrtham param guhyaṃ saṃsārād yena mucyate |

manuṣyāṇāṃ hitārthāya brūhi tattvaṃ mahēśvara || 10:5 ||

about the transcendental and highly secret pilgrimage place at which one can be liberated from mundane existence (saṃsāra). O Maheśvara, teach me the truth for the benefit of mankind.

mahēśvara uvāca |
ko māṃ prcchati taṃ praśnaṃ muktvā tvāṃ eva sundari |
śṛṇu vakṣyāmi taṃ praśnaṃ devair api sudurlabham || 10:6 ||

Maheśvara spoke: Who else could ask me that question except for you, O Sundarī? Listen, I shall expound that question, which is difficult to grasp even for the gods.

kurukṣetraṃ prayāgaṃ ca vārāṇasīm atah param |
gaṅgāgniṃ somatīrtham ca sūryapuṣkaramānasam || 10:7 ||

If one gets to know Kurukṣetra, Prayāga, Vārāṇasī, Gaṅgā, Agni[tīrtha], Somatīrtha, Sūrya[tīrtha], Puṣkara, Mānasa, naimiṣaṃ bindusāraṃ ca setubandhaṃ suradrahaṃ |

ghaṇṭikeśvaravāgīśaṃ jñātvā niścayapāpahā || 10:8 ||

Naimiṣa, Bindusaras, Setubandha, Suradraha, Ghaṇṭikeśvara, and Vāgīśa, one will certainly be able to destroy one's sins.

umovāca |
evamādi mahādeva pūrvavat kathitāsmi aham |
svargabhogaḥ pradaṃ tīrtham eteṣāṃ suranāyaka || 10:9 ||

10.4 It is not unlikely that in pāda d, sanātanam was intended to refer to dharmā^o ('eternal Dharma'), or that dharmaguhya should be corrected to dharmam guhyaṃ ('... ask you about the secret and eternal Dharma').

10.8 Note bindusāraṃ for bindusaras/^o*saraṃ*/^o*sarasam* metri causa. Although some of these toponyms are difficult to identify and some may refer to southern locations (e.g. Setubandha), in general they suggest a North Indian focus. See details on the pilgrimage places in this chapter on pp. 19 ff.

Umā spoke: I have been taught this previously, O Mahādeva. [Which is] the pilgrimage place that yields all kinds of enjoyment, O Suranāyaka?

katham mucyeta saṃsārāj jñānamātreṇa īśvara |
kautūhalaṃ mahaj jātaṃ chindhi saṃśayakārakam || 10:10 ||

[And] how is one liberated from mundane existence by merely knowing [the pilgrimage places], O Īśvara? Dispel [this] great curiosity arising [within me], which gives rise to doubt.

rudra uvāca |
kiṃ na jānāmi tat tīrthaṃ sulabhaṃ durlabhaṃ ca yat |
sulabhaṃ gurusevīnāṃ durlabhaṃ tad vivarjayet || 10:11 ||

Rudra spoke: How could I not know [the difference between] that pilgrimage place that is easy to reach and that which is difficult to reach? The easy one is for those who serve their guru. One can abandon the one which is difficult to reach.

[kurukṣetram — Kurukṣetra]

kurukṣ puruṣa vijñeyayaḥ śarīraṃ kṣetra ucyate |
śarīrasthaṃ kurukṣetram sarvatīrthaphalapradaṃ || 10:12 ||

Kuru- [in Kurukṣetra] is to be known as the soul (puruṣa), -kṣetra as the body. Kurukṣetra in the body yields the fruits of [visiting]

10.9 I take pūrvavat in pāda b as if used in the sense of pūrvam ('previously'), and eteṣāṃ in pāda d as eteṣu. It would also be possible to take eteṣāṃ in 10.9d and jñānamātreṇa in 10.10b as connected ('by the mere knowledge of them'; actually, one should understand svargabhogapradānāṃ tīrthānāṃ eteṣāṃ), but the former solution, namely taking eteṣāṃ as eteṣu, seems to work also in 10.14, where again a genitive (teṣāṃ) may stand for a locative (teṣu). On the syntax of pāda b, see p. 35.

10.10 We are forced to agree with E's printing °kāarakam in pāda d because all the other readings seem out of context, whether they refer to Śiva in the vocative or nominative.

10.11 Note sevinām for sevinām in pāda c metri causa.

My translation here is slightly tentative and is fashioned to make sense in light of what is coming: the praise of internalised pilgrimage places, contrasting them with real, external pilgrimage places.

all pilgrimage places.

sarvayajñaphalāvāptiḥ sarvadānaphalāni ca |
sarvavratatapaś cīrṇaṃ tatphalaṃ sakalaṃ bhavet || 10:13 ||

[And there will be] the obtaining of the fruits of all sacrifices, the fruits of all [possible] gifting, and all the fruits of all religious observances and penance performed.

evam eva phalaṃ teṣāṃ tīrthapañcadaśeṣu ca |
anaghānaṃ mahāpuṇyaṃ mahātīrthaṃ mahāsukhaṃ || 10:14 ||

This is how the fruits [are said to be also] in the case of those fifteen pilgrimage places [from Kurukṣetra to Vāgīśa]. [Kurukṣetra,] the great and faultless pilgrimage place is extremely auspicious and pleasant.

devy uvāca |
atīva romaḥarṣo me jāto 'sti tridaśeśvara |
sulabhaṃ sukaraṃ sūkṣmaṃ śrutvā tuṣṭiś ca me gatā || 10:15 ||

Devī spoke: I am extremely thrilled, O Tridaśeśvara. Hearing about that which is easy to obtain, easy to perform, and is subtle, my contentment has left me [that is, I want to hear more].

caturdaśa paro bhūyaḥ kathayasva manoharam |
prayāgādi prthaktvena tattvatas tu sureśvara || 10:16 ||

Teach me further about the remaining fourteen pleasant [pilgrimage places], Prayāga and the others, one by one, as they really are, O Sureśvara.

10.12 In pāda b, one could apply K₈₂'s reading that has the standard neuter nominative form kṣetram as opposed to the form transmitted in all other witnesses (kṣetra) but the latter might be original, influenced by the stem form puruṣa in pāda a.

10.14 anaghānaṃ in pāda c is problematic. It may simply stand for anaghaṃ ('faultless'). That is how I translate it. Originally it may have involved a stem form adjective: anaghaitan (anagha + etad).

10.15 We could read śrutvātuṣṭiś (i.e. śrutvā-atuṣṭiś) in pāda d ('hearing this, my discontent is gone'), but interlocutors in this text usually want to hear more when they are still unsatisfied, and hungry for more teaching. See, e.g., Kiss 2021. (Or shall we read śrutvātuṣṭiś ca me 'gatā, 'hearing this my discontent has not yet disappeared'?)

10.16 Note again the use of the singular next to numbers (caturdaśa ... manoharam prayāgādi), a frequent phenomenon in this text.

[prayāgo vārāṇasī ca —
Prayāga and Vārāṇasī]

rudra uvāca |
suṣumnā bhagavatī gaṅgā idā ca yamunā nadī |
etāḥ srotovahā nadyaḥ prayāgaḥ sa vidhīyate || 10:17 ||

The Suṣumnā[-tube] is the Honourable Gaṅgā, the Idā[-tube] is the river Yamunā. [At the confluence of] these surging rivers is [the pilgrimage place] called Prayāga.

dakṣiṇā vāruṇī nāsā vāmanāsā asi smṛtā |
vāruṇā-asimadhyena tena vārāṇasī smṛtā || 10:18 ||

The right nostril is [the river] Vāruṇī, the left nostril is known as [the river] Asi. Because [it is] at the confluence of Vāruṇā and Asi, [the city/internalised pilgrimage place there] is known as Vārāṇasī.

10.17 There seems to be only two yogic tubes mentioned here (and in 10.20–21 and 11.21): Suṣumnā and Idā, instead of the more usual triad of Idā, Piṅgalā, and Suṣumnā. This is strikingly similar to what we see in the archaic yoga of the Nisvāsa nayasūtra, see Goodall et al. 2015, 33–34. According to Barois 2020, 23 and 46 the case is similar in the Dharmaputrikā. This is slightly doubtful because a third tube, called Turyā, is mentioned immediately after Idā and Suṣumnā in DharmP 4.57:

idā vāmā suṣumnā ca dve nādī nāsikāśrite |
bhruvor madhye parā nādī tajjñais turyeti kīrtitā ||.

It is also possible that the third tube is there, as Prayāga, in our obscure VSS 10.17cd, which may intend to say that at the confluence of the Gaṅgā/Suṣumnā and the Yamunā/Idā, there is the internalised pilgrimage place, or tube, called Prayāga. Compare MBh Suppl. 6.3A.41–44:

idā bhagavatī gaṅgā piṅgalā yamunā nadī |
tayor madhye tṛtīyā tu tat prayāgam anusmaret ||
idā vai vaiṣṇavī nādī brahmanādī tu piṅgalā |
suṣumnā caīśvarī nādī tridhā prāṇavahā smṛtā ||.

Note that the Yamunā has not been mentioned as a tīrtha in VSS 10.7–8 above. See also Haṭhayogapradīpikā 3.110:

idā bhagavatī gaṅgā piṅgalā yamunā nadī |
idāpiṅgalayor madhye bālaraṇḍā ca kuṇḍalī ||.

Note also E's attempt to make pāda a metrical.

10.18 This verse most probably describes the spot between the eyebrows as an internalised pilgrimage place.

[gaṅgā —
Gaṅgā]

ākāśagaṅgā vikhyātā tasyāḥ sravati cāmṛtam |
ahorātram avicchinnam gaṅgā sā tena ucyate || 10:19 ||

[There is] the famous ethereal Gaṅgā. The nectar of immortality issues from her day and night uninterruptedly. That is why [this internalised pilgrimage place] is called Gaṅgā.

[somatīrtham — Somatīrtha]

somatīrtham idā nāḍī kinṅiṇīravacibhitā |
taṁ tu śrutvā na saṁdehaḥ sarvapāpakṣayo bhavet || 10:20 ||

Somatīrtha is the tube Iḍā. It is characterised by the ringing of small bells. Upon hearing that [ringing], all of one's sins will be destroyed.

[sūryatīrtham — Sūryatīrtha]

sūryatīrthaṁ suṣumnā ca nīravārasaṁyutā |
śrutimātrād vimucyeta pāparāśir mahān api || 10:21 ||

Sūryatīrtha is the [tube] Suṣumnā, the one that emits a soundless thunder. One is liberated by merely hearing it, even if one has mountains of sin.

[agnitīrtham — Agnitīrtha]

agnitīrthārjunā nāḍī brahmaghoṣamanoramā |
tat tad akṣaram ākarṇya amṛtatvāya kalpate || 10:22 ||

Agnitīrtha is the Arjuna tube. It is charming because of the hum of Veda recitation. Upon hearing this or that syllable, one's share will be immortality.

10.19 This verse may describe a bodily location such as the soft palate as an internalised pilgrimage place. The word gaṅga is interpreted here as an intensive form from the verbal root gam, related to the better-attested intensive stems jaṅgam and ganīgam (see the latter two, e.g., in Whitney 1989 [1924], §1003).

10.20 Note that Iḍā has already been identified as the Yamunā in 10.17b.

10.21 Suṣumnā has already been identified as the Gaṅgā in 10.17a.

10.22 agnitīrtha is most probably in stem form in pāda a.

[puṣkaram — Puṣkara]

puṣkaram hṛdi madhyastham aṣṭapattraṃ sakarṇikam |
cintayet sūkṣma tanmadhye janmamṛtyuvinaśanam || 10:23 ||

Puṣkara is a lotus with eight petals and a pericarp in the centre of the heart. One should visualize the Subtle One in its centre. It will destroy birth and death.

[mānasam — Mānasa]

mānasasaramadhyastham sa haṃsaḥ kamalopari |
salilo līlayācārī parataḥ parapāragaḥ || 10:24 ||

That goose on a lotus in the middle of the Mānasa lake is playful, acting gracefully, rising far beyond the other shore.

[naimiṣam — Naimiṣa]

naimiṣam śṛṇu deveśi nimiṣā pratyayo bhavet |
samyag chāyāṃ nirikṣeta ātmāno vā parasya vā || 10:25 ||

I am not aware of any yogic teachings that involve a nāḍī called arjunā. Maybe aruṇā or varuṇā was meant? A vāruṇī nāḍī does occur in some texts, such as the Yogasāikhopaniṣad (5.26, Sastri 1920, 444), the Haṭharatnāvalī (4.34–35, Mallinson and Singleton 2017, 5.1.10), and the Śivasamhitā (2.15, ibid. 5.2.4). On the other hand, ‘red’ (aruṇa) would be an appropriate label for Agnitīrtha, not to mention that fact that it is a synonym of piṅgala, the name of the nāḍī that is conspicuously missing in this chapter and in 11.21.

10.23 hṛdi was probably meant to be nominative, as in 10.27, here potentially compounded with madhyastham. On sūkṣma (here in stem form metri causa), see note to verse 11.46 below.

10.24 Understand mānasasara° in pāda a as mānasasaro° (metri causa). To make sense of this verse, especially the masculine nominatives in pādas cd, I have conjectured sa haṃsaḥ for what seems to a compound: sahaṃsakamalopari. I suspect pāda a to qualify, clumsily, kamala in pāda b. Other possibilities include sahaṃsa° meaning ‘with the syllables HAṂ and SA on it.’

The association of Lake Mānasa on Mount Kailāsa with lotuses, and especially with geese or swans, is well-known. See, e.g., MBh 6.114.90ff: Gaṅgā sends the great sages, who inhabit Lake Mānasa in the form of geese, to visit the dying Bhīṣma. Although the interpretation of this verse, which obviously refers to an internalised form of this pilgrimage place, is still problematic, the goose/swan most probably signifies to the soul.

Listen to Naimiṣa, O Deveśi. It yields assurance in a moment. One can observe the shadow of one's own and others' soul properly.

*āyatam aṅgulīmātram nemiṣākṣiḥ sa paśyati |
drṣṭvā pratyayam evaṃ hi naimiṣajñāḥ sa ucyate || 10:26 ||*

He will see [the soul's] length with his eyes shut as one finger-breadth. When one has seen the proof thus, one is called the knower of Naimiṣa.

[bindusaraḥ — Bindusaras]

*tīrthaṃ bindusaraṃ nāma śṛṇu vakṣyāmi sundari |
dehamadhye hṛdi jñeyam hṛdimadhye tu paṅkajam || 10:27 ||*

Listen, O Sundarī, I shall teach you the pilgrimage place called Bindusaras. The heart is to be known to be located in the centre of the body. In the centre of the heart, there is a lotus.

karṇikā padmamadhye tu binduḥ karṇikamadhyataḥ | bindumadhye sthito nādaḥ sa nādaḥ kena bhidyate || 10:28 ||

There is a pericarp in the centre of the lotus, and the subtle sonic matter (bindu) in the centre of the pericarp. In the centre of the 10.25 This obscure verse (coupled with the next one) might have something to do with a type of meditation, chāyādhyanā, mentioned in Niśvāsa uttarasūtra 5.6:

*tattvadhyānaṃ prathamakaṃ chāyādhyanam dvitīyakam |
ghoṣadhyānan tṛtīyan tu lakṣadhyānaṃ caturthakam ||.*

Later on in the same text (5.12 and 16), this meditation on 'the shadow of the soul/puruṣa' is mentioned again. Niśvāsa uttarasūtra 5.16 states that '[f]ocussing on[?] one's awareness on [one's] "shadow" (chāyācittam), one will see the soul (pumān = pumāṃsam?) in the sky (viyatstham). Practising in this way, one attains success and becomes Śiva.' (Translation from Goodall et al. 2015, 391.) The Sanskrit reads:

*chāyācittam samālambya viyatstham paśyate pumān |
evam abhyasamānas tu siddhyate ca śivo bhavet ||.*

But as the editors of the Niśvāsatattvasambitā put it with reference to the four elements of meditation given there: '[v]ery little of this is clear and almost nothing is certain' (Goodall et al. 2015, 389).

10.26 Pādas ab involve an emendation and a conjecture, without which it is difficult to understand this line.

10.27 Understand °saraṃ in pāda a as °saro (thematization). Take hṛdi as a nominative in pāda c and d (and see 10.23a).

subtle sonic matter (bindu), there is the subtle sound (nāda). How is that subtle sound (nāda) divided?

ukāraṃ ca makāraṃ ca bhittvā nādo vinirgataḥ |
taṃ viditvā viśālākṣi so 'mṛtatvaṃ labbeta ca || 10:29 ||

Cutting through the sounds U and M, the subtle sound (nāda) arises. Realizing that [subtle sound], O Viśālākṣi, one can obtain immortality.

[setubandham — Setubandha]

vakṣye te setubandhaṃ duritamalaharaṃ nādatoyappravāhaṃ
jihvākaṇṭhorakūlā svaragaṇapulināvartaghoṣā taraṅgā |
kumbhīrāghoṣamīnā daśagaṇamakarā bhīmanakrā visargā sānusrvāre gabbhīre madasukharasanaṃ setubandhaṃ vrajasva || 10:30 ||

I shall teach you Setubandha, which sports a current whose water of subtle sound (nāda) cleanses you of the dirt of your sins. [It is a river, so to say, whose] banks are the tongue, the throat, and the chest, and its sandbanks are the group of vowels (svara). It ripples with whirlpools of voiced consonants (ghoṣa). Voiceless consonants (aghoṣa) are its crocodiles and fish, the ten verbal classes (gaṇa) are its sea-monsters, visargas are its terrifying alligators. It is located in the deep-sounding anusvāra (sā-anusrvāre). Go to Setubandha taste the pleasure of intoxication.

10.28 For a general discussion on nāda and bindu, see, e.g., TAK III s.v. nāda. Our text considers the internalised manifestation of the pilgrimage place Bindusaras to be bindu, or subtle sonic matter.

10.29 VSS 10.27–29ab seem to paraphrase Niśvāsa kārīkā 5.55–57ab; see the apparatus to VSS 10.27–29ab.

10.30 Metre (10.30–33): sragdharā. Note that °kaṇṭhōra° is a conjecture based on the context: this line speaks about sounds and the production of sounds. For this, urab/ura ('chest') seems better than ūru ('thigh'). It is not immediately evident why pādas b and c retain feminine endings. I take this as qualifying an implied nadī, partly because the similarly structured 10.33 below explicitly mentions nadī, even though this may not align with the fact that Setubandha is the name of the ridge of rocks extending from Rāmeśvara to Śrī Laṅkā. The authors may have had only a hazy idea of the true nature

Suradraha]

saptadvīpāntamadhye śṛṇu śaśivadane sarvaduḥkḥāntalābham
īśānenābhijuṣṭam hr̥di brada vimalam nādaśītāmbupūrṇam | tatraikam jātapadmaṃ prakṛtidalayutam keśaram śaktibhinnaṃ
pañcavyomaprasaṣṭam gatiparamapadam prāptukāmena sevyaṃ || 10:31 ||

O Moon-faced goddess, listen to [the description of Suradraha], the way to the cessation of all sorrow, in the centre of the seven islands. It is frequented by Īśāna, a spotless lake in the heart full of the cool water of sound (nāda). There is a lotus arising there whose petals are Prakṛti and whose filaments are split between Śaktis, praised as the five gross elements (vyoman). It is to be honoured if one wishes to obtain the path to the supreme abode.

[ghaṇṭikeśvaram — Ghaṇṭikeśvara]

†nāḍyaikāsaṅgatāni† nīpatitam amṛtam ghaṇṭikāpārakeṇa
tr̥pyante tena nityaṃ hr̥di kamalapuṭam sthānubhūtāntarātmā |
yaṃ paśyantiśabhaktāḥ kalikaluṣaharam vyāpinam nīsprapañcam
deveśam ghaṇṭikeśāmarabhavam abhavam tīrtham ākāśabindum || 10:32 ||

The tubes join[?]. The nectar of immortality (amṛta) has descended by the Saviour Ghaṇṭikā. Those whose inner selves have become of Setubandha, or refer here to a different pilgrimage place, possibly in Nepal. Some of the compounds here are inverted or split: understand āvartaghoṣa taraṅgā as ghoṣāvar-taraṅgā, kumbhīrāghoṣamīnā as aghoṣakumbhīramīnā, and bhīmanakrā visargā as vis-argabhīmanakrā. Nevertheless, the general idea seems to be clear: the internalised version of the pilgrimage place Setubandha, externally probably understood as Rāmeśvara in the South, is now the sounds of recitation.

10.31 The first syllable of brada in pāda b does not make the previous syllable long (krama licence), otherwise the line would be unmetrical. Understand the same brada as a stem form standing metri causa for the accusative. keśaram śaktibhinnaṃ in pāda c should probably be understood as a bahuvrīhi compound thus: śaktibhinna-keśaram. For vyoman as ‘gross element,’ see notes to VSS 4.32 above, but note that the expression ‘fifty voids’ (pañcāśadvyoman) comes up again in 10.33 below, and also in 20.7. It is not clear why this internalised pilgrimage place, or the filaments of the lotus mentioned, would be praised as the five elements.

Sthāṇu [i.e. Śiva] are continuously delighted in Him, as he is embraced by the lotus in their hearts. [He is the one] whom Īśa's devotees can behold, who drives off the impurity of the Kali age, who is all-pervading (vyāpin) and non-manifest (niṣprapañca), the lord of gods, Ghaṇṭikeśa of undying existence. The ærial bindu is a non-mundane (abhava) pilgrimage place.

[vāgīśvaratīrtham — Vāgīśvaratīrtha]

mīmāṃsāratnakulā kramapadapulinā śaivaśāstrārthatoyā
mīnaughā pañcarātram śrutikuṭilagatiḥ smārtavegā taraṅgā | yogāvartātīśobhā upaniṣadivahā bhāratāvartaphenā
pañcāśadvyomarūpī rasabhavananadī tīrtha vāgīśvarīyam || 10:33 ||

The banks [of Vāgīśvaratīrtha] are the gems of Mīmāṃsā, its sandbanks the [Vedic] kramapadas, its water the meaning of the Śaiva manuals. Its flock of fish is the Pañcarātra [tradition], its winding path is the Śruti [tradition], its rapid waves the Smārta [tradition]. It is beautified by whirlpools of yoga. Its currents are the Upaniṣads. The foam made by its whirlpools is the Mahābhārata. This river, whose form is the fifty voids (vyoman), is the abode of the elixir. [This is the description of] the pilgrimage place Vāgīśvara.

10.32 The interpretation of this verse is not without problems. The cruxed expression in pāda a is difficult to repair; it may involve nāḍī or nāḍyā, ekā, and saṃgata. These suggest that it may hint at a point of confluence where the bodily tubes (nāḍī) join. Possibly understand nāḍyā ekasaṃgatāḥ. In pāda b, sthāṇu is my conjecture for sthānu, and I understand °ātmā as standing for the plural nominative. I take ghaṇṭikeśa in pāda d as a stem form noun in sandhi with amara, notwithstanding the (unmetrical) reading ghaṇṭikeśamara° in C₉₄C₄₅K₁₀K₇.

The external pilgrimage place related to Ghaṇṭikeśvara the redactors of the VSS may have had in mind here may or may not be 'Virajā, modern Jaipur in the Cuttack District of Orissa' presided over by Ghaṇṭīśa, Mahāghaṇṭeśvara or Mahāghaṇṭa Bhairava (Sanderson 2009, 113, n. 241). See Introduction, pp. 19 ff.

As for the yogic interpretation of this verse, it seems plausible that ghaṇṭikā is taken here as the uvula, from which amṛta is said to be dripping down the throat. See TAK II s.v. ghaṇṭikā and Mallinson 2007.

10.33 By kramapada, most probably a particular method of reciting Vedic texts (better known as padakrama) is meant. Note the split compounds in pāda b. Understand

*yas taṃ vetti sa vetti vedanikhilaṃ saṃsāraduḥkhaḥchidaṃ janmavyādhiviyogatāpamaraṇaṃ kleśārṇavaṃ duḥsaham |
garbhāvāsaṃ atīva sahyaviṣayaṃ dustīryaduḥkhālayaṃ
prāptaṃ tena na saṃśayaḥ śivapadaṃ duḥprāpya devair api || 10:34 ||*

One will know all the Vedas by knowing Him who puts an end to the suffering of transmigration, to birth, disease, separation, suffering, death, the floods of unbearable pain, to dwelling in the womb, to extremely insufferable sensations, and to places of suffering that are difficult to escape from. Such a person will, without doubt, reach Śiva's world that is difficult to enter even for the gods.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe kāyatīrthopavarṇano nāmādhyāyo daśamaḥ ||

Here ends the tenth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called the Description of the bodily pilgrimage places.

mīnaughā pañcarātraṃ as pañcarātramīnaughā, and smārtavegā taraṅgā as smārtavegatarāṅgā. Note the form upaniṣadi for a stem form of upaniṣad in upaniṣadi-vahā in pāda c. This phenomenon is similar to what we see in 10.23 and 27 above with hr̥di. The lack of sandhi between °śobbā and upaniṣadi° is also notable. tīrtha in pāda d is a stem form noun metri causa. The exact meaning of pañcāśadvyoma° is not clear to me. Could it be the fifty sounds of Sanskrit? All in all, Vāgīśvaratīrtha here represents the religious traditions and scriptures.

10.34 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. I take pādas b and c as if °chidaṃ in pāda a were implied for each element there, and atīva sahya° as standing for atīvāsahya° metri causa. Understand duḥprāpya as a stem form adjective (for duḥprāpyaṃ) metri causa.

[Chapter Eleven]

[caturāśramadharmavidhānaḥ —

Regulations on the Dharma of the four social disciplines]

devy uvāca |

sarvayajñāḥ paraśreṣṭha asti anyāḥ surottama |

alpakleśa-m-anāyāsa arthaprāyaṃ vineśvara || 11:1 ||

The Goddess spoke: O Paraśreṣṭha, O Surottama! Is there another [form of] sacrifice that is for all (sarvayajña), free of pain, easy to perform, and requiring no abundance of materials, O Lord?

sarvayajñaphalāvāpti daivatais cāpi pūjitam |

kathayasva suraśreṣṭha mānuṣāṇāṃ hitāya vai || 11:2 ||

For the benefit of mankind, teach me, O Suraśreṣṭha, how one may obtain the fruits of [this] universal sacrifice (sarvayajña), which is praised even by the gods.

11.1 I understand pāda c as containing a sandhi bridge thus: alpakleśa-m-anāyāsa. The sandhi between pādas c and d is irregular, understand °anāyāso 'rtha°, or °anāyāsaḥ artha°.

Śivadharmasāstra 1.7–11ab express a sentiment similar to the one expressed here, using the word āyāsa, but giving a somewhat clearer reason for asking for a new form of devotion, namely that twice-born members of society with limited financial resources struggle to perform expensive Vedic rituals (see ŚDhŚ 1.9ab below):

11.2 Note °avāpti as neuter in pāda a, unlike 10.12a, which contains the same compound but ends in a visarga.

maheśvara uvāca |

Maheśvara spoke: I know of no other compassion for living beings like yours, O Bhāminī. What else could I teach [you] with respect to which [your] compassion is not evident?

sadāśivamukhāt pūrvam śrutam me varasundari |
śṛṇu devi pravakṣyāmi dharmasāram anuttamam || 11:4 ||

I once heard [the following] from the mouth of Sadāśiva, O Varasundarī. Listen, O Goddess—I shall teach you the ultimate essence of Dharma.

[gr̥hasthaḥ —
 The householder]

vinārthena tu yo yajñāḥ sa yajñāḥ sārvaśāntikāḥ |
akṣayaś cāvyayaś caiva sarvapātakanāśanaḥ || 11:5 ||

Sacrifice [performed] without materials fulfils all desires. It is undecaying and imperishable, and it removes all sins.

11.3 I understand dayā in pāda b as if it were instrumental: tava dayayā bhūteṣu tulyaṃ na paśyāmi. Alternatively, as suggested by Csaba Dezső, pādas ab could be interpreted as two sentences: ‘I cannot see anything comparable to you. [You have great] compassion towards living beings, O Bhāminī.’

11.4 Note me for mayā in pāda b (Oberlies 2003, 102–103 [4.1.3]), and the evident distinction here between Maheśvara, the interlocutor, and Sadāśiva, who, in this context seems to be superior, being the ultimate source here of the following teaching. This might hint at a familiarity with the Tantric sequence of tattvas, on which see, e.g., Goodall et al. 2015, 45.

11.5 The subchapter heading is tentative here because in this chapter the category of the gr̥hastha never gets mentioned. This category is simply labelled āśramaḥ prathamah in 11.25a. Nevertheless, it is most probably the gr̥hastha that is implied, and it is mentioned elsewhere (see 4.74c, 5.9a, and 15.17a, which reads āśramāṇām gr̥hī śreṣṭho). The teaching on sacrifice without materials (vinārthena yajñāḥ or anarthayajñāḥ), which is fundamentally internalised sacrifice, is a central teaching of the VSS: in addition to the present chapter, the expression appears as the main interlocutor’s name (Anarthayajña) in chapters 1–9 and 19–21, and his life is discussed in chapter 22. Thus the name Anarthayajña or the concept of anarthayajña appears in each major layer of the text. On this see pp. 11 ff, and Kiss 2021. That anarthayajña is basically internalised worship is also hinted at in 10.12cd–13 above, and in 13.2, which reads:

svaśarīre sthito yajñāḥ svaśarīre sthitaṃ tapaḥ |
svaśarīre sthitaṃ tirthaṃ śruto vistarato mayā ||

*bahuvighnakaro hy artho bahvāyāsakaras tathā |
brahmahatyā ivendrasya pravibhāgaphalā smṛtā || 11:6 ||*

Material objects (artha) bring countless obstacles and great hardship—just as Indra’s slaying of the Brahmin [Viśvarūpa] resulted in [sin] being distributed [among trees, lands etc.].

*pañcaśodhyena śodhyeta arthayajño varānane |
śodbite tu phalaṃ śuddham aśuddhe niṣphalaṃ bhavet || 11:7 ||*

Material sacrifice may be purified with the five purifications, O Varānanā. When purified, its fruits too are pure; when impure, it yields no fruit.

*devy uvāca |
pañcaśodhye suraśreṣṭha saṃśayo ’tra bhaven mama |
kathayaśva vibhāgena śrotum icchāmi tattvataḥ || 11:8 ||*

The Goddess spoke: I am not sure about the five purifications, O Suraśreṣṭha. Please teach [them to] me one by one, I want to hear them just as they really are.

*rudra uvāca |
manaśuddhis tu prathamam dravyaśuddhir ataḥ param |
mantraśuddhis tṛtīyā tu karmaśuddhir ataḥ param |
pañcamī sattvaśuddhis tu kratuśuddhis ca pañcadhā || 11:9 ||*

Rudra spoke: First is the purification of the mind, then the purification of the substances; third is the purification of mantras, then 11.6 The context of pādas cd is this: Viśvarūpa was a son of Tvaṣṭṛ. Viśvarūpa’s heads were struck off by Indra and Indra’s sins were distributed among the earth, water, trees, and women. See, e.g., Bhāgavatapurāṇa 6.9.6:

*brahmahatyām aṅjalīnā jagrāha yad apīśvaraḥ |
saṃvatsarānte tad agham bhūtānām sa viśuddhaye |
bhūmyambudrumayośidbhyaś caturdhā vyabhajad dharīḥ ||*

‘Even though [Indra was] the Lord, he took on himself, with folded hands, the sin of killing a Brahmin. At the end of the year, Hari [= Indra] distributed that sin in four parts to the earth, water, trees and women for the self-purification of living beings.’

the purification of the ritual; the fifth is the purification of Sattva.
The purification of the sacrifice is [thus] fivefold.

manaśuddhir nāma aviparītabhāvanayā |
dravyaśuddhir nāma ananyāyopārjitadravyena || 11:10 ||

Purification of the mind is by mentally creating what is not against [the rule or Dharma]. Purification of the substances is through [using] only lawfully obtained materials.

mantraśuddhir nāma svaravyaṅjanayuktatayā |
kriyāśuddhir nāma yathākramāviparītatayā |
sattvaśuddhir nāma rajastama-apradhānatayā || 11:11 ||

Purification of mantras is by correctly linking vowels to consonants.
Purification of the ritual is by not altering the proper sequence [of the elements of ritual]. Purification of Sattva is through the nonprevalence of Rajas and Tamas.

vidhim evaṃ yadā śudhyed yadi yajñam karoti hi |
tasya yajñaphalāvāptir janmamṛtyuś ca no bhavet || 11:12 ||

He who has purified the ritual (vidhi) thus and has performed the sacrifice, will obtain the fruits of the sacrifice, and will not undergo births and deaths [any more].

vinārthena tu yo yajñam karoti varasundari |
na tasya tatphalāvāptiḥ sarvayajñeṣv aśeṣataḥ || 11:13 ||

11.9 Pāda a is unmetrical unless the krama licence is applied for the first syllable of prathamam (for prathamā), turning the line into a na-vipulā.

Sets of five types of purification are a commonplace in Tantric Śaivism, but they are usually somewhat different from what we see here. They usually include ātmaśuddhi, sthānaśuddhi, dravyaśuddhi, mantraśuddhi and liṅgaśuddhi. See Goodall's entry on this in TAK III s.v. dravyaśuddhi.

11.10 The passage 11.10–11 is in fact prose.

11.12 An alternative to my conjecture in pāda a (yadā śudhyed for yadā śūyed, sūryed, pūrya, and pūyed) has been suggested by Dominic Goodall, namely that one could apply the reading of C₄₅ thus: yadāpūrya ('when having completed').

But he who performs the sacrifice without materials, O Varasundarī, will gain not only its fruits, but the fruits of all sacrifices without exception.

yajñavāṭa kurukṣetraṃ sattvāvāsakṛtālayaḥ |
pratyābhāra mahāvedi kuśaprastara saṃyamaḥ || 11:14 ||

The sacrificial ground is [now the inner] Kurukṣetra. The abode made is [now:] dwelling in Truth (sattva). The great altar is the withdrawal of the senses (pratyābhāra). The kuśa grass seat is restraint (saṃyama) [in internalised sacrifice].

vidhi niyamavistāro dhyānavahniḥ pradīpitaḥ |
yogendhanasamijjvālatapodbhūmasamākulaḥ || 11:15 ||

Vedic injunction (vidhi) is the great collection of Niyama-rules. [The Vedic ritual fire is now] the fire of meditation (dhyāna) lit

11.13 I tentatively interpret sarvayajñeṣu in pāda d as a locative for genitive, and in a sense that does not reflect the meaning in which I took sarvayajñāḥ in 11.1a above. Compare the conclusion of this section, 11.24cd: āsahasrasya yajñānām phalaṃ prāpnoti nityaśaḥ.

11.14 It would be easy to correct yajñavāṭa in pāda a to yajñavāṭaḥ, and to normalise all the similarly positioned stem form nouns in the following verses because there are no metrical constraints that would prevent us from doing so, but it seems to me that there is a pattern here and that these stem forms are being emphasised, highlighted, or being items in a list (see 11.14c and d, 15a, 16a and b, 17a, 18d, etc.). Nevertheless, some of the expression in the upcoming verses should be interpreted as bahuvrīhis qualifying the sacrificer or yogin. In fact, we could read yajñavāṭakurukṣetraḥ and pratyābhāramahāvediḥ as bahuvrīhis here.

Kurukṣetra was defined as an internalised pilgrimage place in 10.12, which fits well with the presently introduced teaching of internalised sacrifice. Both are summarised, together with bodily penance, in 13.2 (see note to 11.5). The term sattvāvāsa has elsewhere, but probably not here, a distinctively Buddhist flavour, denoting the seven or nine ‘abodes of beings,’ see, e.g., Edgerton 1953, vol. 2, s.v. sattvāvāsa, and Sferra 2022, 1155. Note that if pāda c followed the pattern of pāda a, namely that ‘X in Vedic ritual is now Y in this internalised sacrifice,’ we would need to read mahāvedi pratyābhāra, but that would be unmetrical.

saṃyama is mentioned only a few times in the VSS (e.g., in a similar context, in 22.12), and is never explained, in contrast with the niyama-rules mentioned in the next verse, which are expounded in detail in 5.1–8.44. saṃyama may perhaps be used here in the sense in which it appears in the YS: the yogic application, or appearance, of dhāraṇā, dhyāna, and samādhi at the same time (see Yogasūtra 3.1–4).

and flaring with the fuel of the firewood of yoga and abounding in the smoke of penance.

pātranyāsa śivajñānaṃ sthālīpāka śivātmakāḥ |
ājyāhutim avicchinnāṃ lambakasruvapātitaḥ || 11:16 ||

The placing of the chalice is the knowledge of Śiva. [The offering of] boiled rice is [now the process of] be[com]ing Śiva. The continuous oblation of clarified butter (ājyāhuti) is poured with the ritual ladle (sruva) of the uvula (lambaka).

dhāraṇādhvaryuvat kṛtvā prāṇāyāmaś ca ṛtvijaḥ |
tarkayuktaḥ savistāraḥ samādhir vayatāpanaḥ || 11:17 ||

Concentration (dhāraṇā) takes the role of the Adhvaryu [priest;
the phases of] breath control will be the [other Vedic] priests[, the Hotṛ, the Brahman, and the Udgātṛ]. Extensive Samādhī, accompanied by reflection (tarka) is the [Vedic ritual of] burning the oblation (vaya[s]-tāpana).

brahmavidyāmayo yūpaḥ paśubandho manonmanaḥ |
śraddhā patnī viśālākṣi saṃkalpa pada śāśvatam || 11:18 ||

The sacrificial post is made of the knowledge about the Brahman.
The binding of the sacrificial animal is [the mental state called]

11.15 I have chosen the reading in pāda b that is the easiest to interpret. Alternatively, the intended expression may have been dhyānena vahnīḥ pradīpitaḥ. Instead of taking °samijjvāla° as a tatpuruṣa compound in pāda c (°samidh-jvāla°), consider emending it to °samujjvāla°, which would stand metri causa for °samujjvāla°.

11.16 The interpretation of pāda b is tentative. Ignoring the problems concerning grammatical gender and case, we may presume that the intended meaning in pādas cd could be expressed thus: ājyāhutir avicchinnā lambikāsrūvena pātitaḥ. I suspect that lambaka simply stands for lambikā (‘uvula’), which fits the internalised nature of this ritual. See also ghaṇṭikā possibly as ‘uvula’ in 10.32d.

11.17 Understand pādas a as dhāraṇām adhvaryuvat kṛtvā (dhāraṇā in the MSS being in stem form). Note how taking 11.14c and 15b together with the present verse, all six auxiliaries of the śaḍaṅga yoga of VSS chapter 16 have now been mentioned in this chapter. See 16.18:

pratyābāras tathā dhyānaṃ prāṇāyāmaś ca dhāraṇā |
tarkaś caiva samādhīś ca śaḍaṅgo yoga ucyaṭe ||

My interpretation of vayatāpana in pāda d as ‘burning of oblation’ (vaya possibly standing for vayas metri causa) is tentative.

mind-nonmind (manonmanas). [The householder's] wife is Faith, O Viśālākṣī. [His] ritual resolve (saṃkalpa) is the attainment of the eternal abode.

pañcendriyajayotpannaḥ puroḍāśo 'mṛtāśanaḥ |
brahmanādo mahāmantraḥ prāyaścittānilo jayaḥ || 11:19 ||

The rice-offering is the consumption of the nectar of immortality, born from conquering the five senses. The great [Vedic] mantra is [now] the sound of Brahmā. Expiation is mastery over breath.

somapāna parijñānam upākarma caturyamah |
itihāsa jalasnānaṃ purāṇakṛta-m-ambaraḥ || 11:20 ||

Drinking Soma is [substituted now with] complete knowledge. The commencement [of the Vedic ritual] is the four Yama-rules. The ritual water-bath is [the study of] the Itihāsa, and his garment is made of [his study of] the Purāṇas.

11.18 Verse 11.49 below mentions manonmanas again. Verse 19.43 mentions manonmanah as the final state of becoming equal to Śiva. The final section of VSS chapter 20, a chapter on the tattvas of Sāṃkhya, discusses the perhaps similar mental state of unmanas:

unmanastvaṃ gate vipra nibodha daśalakṣaṇam |
na śabdaṃ śṛṇute śrotraṃ saṅkhabherīśvanād api ||, etc.

In pāda d, understand saṃkalpaḥ padaṃ śāśvataṃ (both saṃkalpa and pada are stem form nouns in the verse, the latter metri causa).

11.19 The term brahmanāda in pāda c may refer to the same concept as brahmabīlasvara does in 11.29d. It may be the same as the (haṭha)yogic concept of mahānāda ('great sound' or 'unstruck sound'), on which see Mallinson 2007, 225, nn. 359 and 361. My translation tentatively presupposes that mantra in mahāmantra refers to Vedic mantras, now contrasted with a yogic experience. (See mahāmantra referring to Vedic/Śrauta mantras in SkandaP 13.132cd: śrutigītair mahāmantrair mūrtimadbhir upasthitaiḥ.)

Understand pāda d as prāyaścitto 'nilajayaḥ. It would be possible to correct °cit-tānilo to °citto 'nilo, but since °nilajayaḥ would be unmetrical and since stem form nouns abound in this chapter, I believe that prāyaścittānilo could be original.

11.20 caturyamah in pāda b is baffling. The VSS teaches ten Yama-rules in 3.16–4.89. Dominic Goodall has suggested that caturyamah could stand for ca tu yamāḥ metri causa. Another possibility would be to interpret catur as caturtha ('fourth') and then the phrase may refer to the fourth Yama-rule, absence of hostility (ānṛsaṃsya, 4.31–49). Note the stem form itihāsa in pāda c, and see notes to verses 6.5 and 8.6 to clarify what itihāsa most probably means in the VSS (the Mahābhārata). There is a hiatus-filler (-m-) in pāda c in °kṛta-m-ambaraḥ, which is a metrical solution for °kṛto 'mbaraḥ.

idāsuṣumnāsaṃvedye snānam ācamanam sakṛt |
saṃtoṣātithim ādṛtya dayābhūta^odvi^ojārcitaḥ || 11:21 ||

Ritual bathing and sipping water takes place simultaneously at the confluence of Idā and Suṣumnā. Honouring Contentment as a guest, he salutes the Brahmin—Compassion.

brahmakūrca guṇātīta havirgandha nirañjanaḥ |
brahmasūtraṃ trayas tattvaṃ bodhanā muṇḍitaṃ śiraḥ || 11:22 ||

The Brahmakūrca [observance] is the [state of mind called] ‘beyond the Qualities’ (guṇātīta), the fragrance of the sacrifice is the ‘spotless’ (nirañjana) [state of mind]. [His] sacred thread is the three truths (tattva); the shaven head [of the snātaka] is enlightenment.

11.21 For the teaching on the internalised pilgrimage places Gaṅgā, i.e. Suṣumnā, and Yamunā, i.e. Idā, and their internalised confluence, Prayāga, see 10.17. Note that Idā and Suṣumnā are then reinterpreted as Somatīrtha and Sūryatīrtha, respectively, in 10.20–21. saṃtoṣa^o is either meant to be compounded with atithim in pāda c or is in stem form for saṃtoṣam atithim; for the latter possibility cf., e.g., 11.17a above. Similarly, dvija^o may be in stem form in pāda d, for dvijo rcitaḥ, or simply correct it to the same.

11.22 Note the stem form nouns in pādas ab.

On the brahmakūrca observance, see, e.g., Kane 1941–1962, vol. 4, 146, where the references given include Mitākṣarā ad Yājñavalkyasmṛti 3.314: yadā punaḥ pūrvedyur upoṣyāparedyuḥ samantrakam samyujya samantrakam eva pañcagavyaṃ pīyate tadā brahmakūrca ity ākhyāyate; ‘And when one fasts one day, and on the next day mixes the five products of the cow together while reciting mantras, and drinks [the mixture] while reciting mantras again, that is called brahmakūrca.’

On the guṇātīta state of mind, see 9.39–43. See the term nirañjana mentioned as a characteristic of the soul (jīva) in 1.11 and 15.4, of the puruṣa in 20.3, as a state of mind in 11.48, and as one of ten meditative states in 22.30.

It is difficult to know what the three tattvas mentioned in pāda c are. (Understand trayas tattvaṃ as tattvatrayaṃ, trīṇi tattvāni, tritattvāni, or tritattvaṃ.) VSS chapter four teaches four tattvas as objects of meditation: ātman, vidyā, bhava, and sūkṣma (see, e.g., 4.72). VSS chapter six discusses five tattvas: sūrya, soma, agni, sphaṭika, and sūkṣma (see, e.g., 6.7). VSS chapter twenty enumerates the twenty-five tattvas of Sāṃkhya. One possibility would be to interpret the set of three tattvas as the three padārthas of the Śaivāsiddhānta: pati, paśu, and pāśa. See, e.g., TAK III, s.v. patipaśupāśa. Dominic Goodall has tentatively suggested reading here in VSS 11.22c, with K₈₂, brahmasūtra-trayaṃ tattvaṃ (‘the three strands of the sacred thread is truth’). The problem is firstly that we have trayas tattvaṃ repeated in 11.29c below, and secondly that what we need here is three entities compared to the three strands of the sacred thread. What is clear here is that even the investiture of the sacred thread (upanayana) is supposed to be internalised in this teaching of non-material sacrifice.

*nivṛtṭyādi caturvedaś catuḥprakaraṇāśanaḥ |
dakṣiṇām abhayaṃ bhūte dattvā yajñam yajet sadā || 11:23 ||*

The four Vedas are [now] nivṛtti etc. His seat is the four prakaraṇas.
He should always perform a[n internalised] sacrifice after offering the priestly fee of granting being[s] freedom from danger.

*vināṛthaṃ yajñasamprāptiḥ kathitā te varānane |
āsahasrasya yajñānām phalaṃ prāpnoti nityaśaḥ || 11:24 ||*

The attainment of sacrifice without materials has been taught to you, O Varānanā. [The sacrificer] shall, in any case, gain the fruits of up to a thousand [Vedic] sacrifices.

*āśramaḥ prathamāś tubhyaṃ kathito 'sti varānane |
sadāśiveṇa saddharmaṃ daivatair api pūjitam || 11:25 ||*

The first social discipline (āśrama) has been taught to you, O Varānanā, [as revealed] by Sadāśiva; [this is] the true Dharma, revered even by the gods.

11.23 My assumption is that pāda a here hints at those four, later five, categories, called kalās, that are well-known from Tantric Śaivism: nivṛtti, pratiṣṭhā, vidyā, śānti, and śāntyatīta. For this, I had to emend the reading found in all witnesses consulted, nivṛ-tyā°. I consider nivṛti for nivṛtti a common and plausible error. As Dominic Goodall has suggested, here the four kalās, originally possibly the four Śaktis of the Lord, may be reinterpreted as yogic states. The fact that the VSS is aware of only four kalās here may hint at a relatively early date of composition of this section (see pp. 28 ff). On the history and interpretation of these kalās, see TAK II s.v. kalā 6.

catuḥprakaraṇāśanaḥ may be taken as catuḥprakaraṇāṇy āsanam, or, as I take it in my translation, a bahuvrīhi compound qualifying the practitioner. As to what the four prakaraṇas ('chapters?') refer to here, I am without a clue. Perhaps the phrase was meaningful in a context whereof this section was taken out. It may stand for yogic karaṇas, postures, which are mentioned, but then not clearly described, in 16.1:

*adbhunā śrotum icchāmi yogasadbhāvanirṇayam |
karaṇam ca yathānyāyamaṃ kathayasva sureśvara ||*

11.25 sadāśiveṇa in pāda c could also be interpreted as the agent of pūjitam in pāda d ('it is revered by Sadāśiva'), but Sadāśiva was mentioned as the original teacher of this ritual in 11.4 above, which makes it probable that he is being referred to in a similar manner here. Cf. also 11.30 below.

[brahmacārī —
The chaste one]

brahmacaryaṃ nibodhedam śṛṇuṣvāvahitā śubhe |
dvitīyaṃ āśramaṃ devī sarvapāpavināśanam || 11:26 ||

[Now] listen to this, the practice of chastity (brahmacarya). Pay close attention, O Śubhā. This is the second social discipline (āśrama), O Devī—the destroyer of all sins.

vratam brahmaparaṃ dhyānam sāvitṛī prakṛti-r-layam |
brahmasūtrākṣaram sūkṣmaṃ triguṇālaya mekhalam || 11:27 ||

Religious observance is [now] meditation focused on the Brahman. The Sāvitṛī [hymn] is absorption in Prakṛti. The Brahmanical cord (brahmasūtra) is the subtle syllable; the girdle is the abode of the three Qualities (guṇa).

dama daṇḍa dayā pātraṃ bhikṣā saṃsāramocanam |
tryāyuṣaṃ dvyakṣarātitaṃ jñānabhasma-alakṛtam || 11:28 ||

The staff is self-restraint, the begging-bowl is compassion. Alms are liberation from transmigration (saṃsāra). The Tryāyuṣa is the one beyond the two syllables. [The three lines are] prepared with 11.26 idam in nibodhedam in pāda a sounds clumsy with brahmacaryaṃ (lit. ‘listen to this practice of chastity’) but in fact the MBh and the Purāṇas contain countless similar, albeit smoother, expressions, e.g., MBh 5.145.15ab (dur̥yodhana nibodhedam kulārthe yad bravīmi te), BrahmaP 133.10ab (bharadvāja nibodhedam vākyaṃ mama samāsatāḥ), etc. See some remarks on the disciplines, or life-stages (āśrama), and especially on their order, in the VSS in Kiss 2021.

11.27 One could emend prakṛtir layam in pāda b to the expected prakṛtau layaḥ (see, e.g., AgniP 379.1d: vairāgyāt prakṛtau layam). Nevertheless, I retained the reading of C_{9.4}K_{8.2}K₇E because it may have been the way in which the compound prakṛtilaya was originally made metrical. In other words, I suspect the -r- to be only a link between the two elements of this compound. I also retained the neuter ending. Compare 16.8d, where the same expression is transmitted in all the witnesses consulted so far as prakṛtālayam.

Note the stem form nouns in pādas cd (°sūtra and °ālaya). The ‘subtle syllable’ may be om̐ (cf. 1.9–10), traditionally analysed as made up of three sounds, here corresponding to the three strands of the sacred thread. In pāda d, triguṇālaya might rather mean ‘absorption in the three Qualities’ (triguṇeṣu layaḥ) although in my translation I translate it as triguṇa-ālayaḥ.

the ashes of knowledge.

*snānavratam sadāsatyaṃ śīlaśaucasamanvitam |
agnihotra trayas tattvaṃ japa brahmabilasvaraḥ || 11:29 ||*

The vow of bathing is lifelong truthfulness, accompanied by purity and moral conduct. The Agnihotra sacrifice is the three tattvas. Recitation is the sound [heard] at the aperture of Brahmā.

*dvitīya āśramo devī yathāha bhagavān śivāḥ |
mamāpi kathitaṃ tubhyaṃ janmamṛtyuvināśanam || 11:30 ||*

The second discipline (āśrama) has also been taught to you, O Devī, just as Lord Śiva taught it to me—the means to destroy birth and death.

[vānaprasthaḥ —
The forest-dweller]

*vānaprasthavidhiṃ vakṣye śṛṇuṣvāyatalocane |
yathāśrutam yathātathyaṃ ṛṣidaivatapūjitam || 11:31 ||*

Listen, O Long-eyed goddess—I shall teach you the forest-dweller's way of life, revered by sages and gods alike, just as I heard it, just as it [truly] is.

11.28 The Tryāyusa is a Vedic mantra, see, e.g., Ṛgveda-khila 5.3.6: tryāyuṣam jamadagneḥ kaśyapasya tryāyuṣam | agastyasya tryāyuṣam yad devānām tryāyuṣam tan no astu tryāyuṣam |; ‘The threefold vitality of [the sage] Jamadagni, that of [the sage] Kaśyapa, and of Agastya, that which is that of the gods—may it be ours!’ (translation based on Bisschop et al. 2021, 28). ‘In the Vedic domestic ritual codes, this is the mantra to be recited over the razor or over the student who is about to be shaven before bathing at the end of his studies’ (ibid.). In ŚivaUp 5.20ab, this mantra is prescribed to accompany the application of the tripuṇḍra—the three lines on the forehead. Thus here in VSS 11.28cd, tryāyuṣa and the mention of ashes make it clear that the next element of the ritual life of the brahmacārin to be internalised is the application of the tripuṇḍra. As for the duyakṣarātīta, which should be a mantra, it perhaps means a three-syllable mantra, possibly a-u-m or śivāya.

11.29 On the problem of understanding what the three tattvas are in this text, and on the phrase trayas tattvaṃ, see notes on verse 11.22 above. Perhaps brahmabilasvara in pāda d refers to the same concept as brahmanāda does in 11.19c.

11.30 One may consider correcting mamā° to mayā° (‘it has been taught by me’), but mama, linked to the first hemistich, may be original, with api then—slightly unusually—placed at the beginning of a new phrase in the sense of ‘too/also’ (as, e.g., in Raghuvamśa 5.44 and 9.8c).

vairāgyavanam āśritya niyamāśramam āharet |
śīlāśailadr̥ghadvāre prākāre vijitendriyaḥ || 11:32 ||

Having entered the forest of detachment, he should take residence in the hermitage of Niyama-rules, encircled by walls fortified by the stone gate of moral conduct, with his sense-faculties conquered.

adhibhūtaḥ smṛto mātā adhyātmaś ca pitā tathā |
adbidaivikam ācāryo vyavasāyāś ca bhrātaraḥ || 11:33 ||

His mother is the material realm, his father is the Self; his guru is the divine; his brothers are his own resolutions.

śrutiḥ smṛtiḥ smṛtā bhāryā prajñā putraḥ kṣamānujaḥ |
maitrī bandhur jaṭā cāpaṃ karuṇā supavitrakam |
muditā mauna catvāraḥ sarvakāryam upekṣakā || 11:34 ||

Śruti and Smṛti are his wives; Wisdom is his son; Patience his younger brother. Benevolence is his kinsman, his twisted hair [and] his bow.
Compassion is his sacred thread. Sympathy constitutes the four ways of observing silence. All his religious duties are equanimity.

11.32 āharet ('should take away, get, use') in pāda b is suspect; āvaset ('should settle') or āśrayet ('should take refuge') would make more sense in this context.

11.33 Note the krama licence applied in pāda d: the syllable bhrā does not make the previous syllable long.

I have accepted Dominic Goodall's suggestion to emend adhibhautika in pāda c to adbidaivika. In this way, we arrive at the well-know triad of adhibhūta, adhyātma, and adbidaivika (or more often: ādhībhautika, ādhyātmika, and ādhidaivika; see, e.g., Yō- gabbāṣya ad YS 1.31 and 3.22, and SāṃkhyK 1.1 in most commentators' interpretation).
adhibhautika in pāda c may be the result of an eyeskip to pāda a, and the final -m of ad- bidaivika could be interpreted as a hiatus-filler. The triad in question usually qualify three types of suffering or bad omen: pertaining to the material world, one's own self or body, and to the world of gods, respectively. Here in the VSS, they seem to refer to realms of knowledge, or as Bhagavadgītā 8.1–4, a possible source for the present verse, define them, adhibhūta is mundane existence (kṣaro bhāvaḥ), adhyātma is one's true nature (svabhā- vaḥ), and adbidaivata the puruṣa.

11.34 bhāryā in pāda a is probably meant to be in the dual (bhārye) but the use of the singular could be original. Note how notions expressed by feminine nouns in pāda b are associated with male relatives (prajñā is a son, kṣamā a brother).

In pāda c, jaṭā cāpaṃ is problematic. One would expect here an abstract notion corresponding to a real-life element of the forest-dweller life, as in the above verses. Also, a bow is not naturally associated with the life of a forest hermit. jaṭā and cāpa are either still yamavalkalasaṃvītas tapaḥkṛṣṇājīnādharaḥ |

uttarāsaṅgam āsīno yogapattadr̥ḍhavrataḥ || 11:35 ||

Instead of bark-cloth, he wears the Yama-rules; instead of the black antelope skin, he wears austerity. He sits upon the supreme seat of non-attachment, his yogic belt is a firm observance.

vedaghoṣeṇa ghoṣeṇa prāṇāyāmo 'gnihāvanam |
jītaprāṇa mṛgākūlo dhr̥ti yajñāḥ kriyā japaḥ || 11:36 ||

The fire-offering accompanied by the murmuring of the Vedas becomes breath-control accompanied by its hissing sound. The herd of deer [in the forest where the forest-dweller normally lives] is [now his] conquered breaths. His sacrifice is resolve; his ritual is mantra-recitation.

arthasaṃgraha śāstreṣu sakhā damadayādayaḥ |
śivayajñam prayujjīta sādhanāṣṭakapūjanam || 11:37 ||

identified with maitrī (that is how I translate the pāda) or there is a need to emend, e.g., to jaṭācāraḥ ('good conduct is his twisted hair'). I prefer the former solution because in this way the four Buddhist brahmavihāras—maitrī-karuṇā-muditā-upekṣā—appear in one uninterrupted sequence. One could even emend to jaṭā cāyam or jaṭā cāpi. The brahmavihāras may seem to be out of context in a Brahmanical text but the source for them may have been YS 1.33: maitrīkaruṇāmuditopekṣāṇām sukhaduḥkhaḥpunyāpunyaviṣayāṇām bhāvanātaś cittaprasādanam. See them mentioned also in verse 4.71 above, and in 11.56 below.

Note mauna in pāda e in stem form, and upekṣakā for upekṣā, both metri causa. For the four mauns, see 4.69.

11.35 I think that K₇'s jīnādharaḥ in pāda b may be the original reading, and it lengthens the final a of jina^o metri causa, and the remaining sources try to restore the standard form of ajina and thus ruin the metre. Cf., e.g., MBh 1.123.18:

sa kṛṣṇam maladigdhanāgam kṛṣṇājīnadharam vane |
naiṣādim śvā samālakṣya bhaṣaṃ tasthau tadantike ||

The accusative uttarāsaṅgam in pāda c is acceptable, but one may understand the final -m as a hiatus-filler after a locative (°saṅga āsīno), or in the middle of a compound (°saṅgāsīno).

11.36 hāvana in pāda b stands for havana metri causa. I suspect that °mṛgākūlo in pāda c stands for an unmetrical mṛgakulo. Incidentally, even by inverting the order of the two elements in this pāda, there would remain the metrical error of two lagbus: mṛgakulo jītaprāṇo. Also, note °prāṇa and dhr̥ti in pādas cd as nouns in stem form.

His collected goods are in the śāstras; his companions are self-control, compassion, and the like. He should sacrifice to Śiva by the worship that is the eight [yogic] practices (sādhana).

pañcabrahmajalaih pūtaḥ satyatīrthaśivabrade |
snānam ācamanam kṛtvā saṁdhyātrayam upāsayet || 11:38 ||

Purified by the waters of the five Brahma[-mantras], he should bathe and sip water in the auspicious (śiva) lake at the pilgrimage site of Truth, and should honour the three junctures of the day.

akṣamālā purāṇārthaṁ japa śāntaṁ divānīśam |
jñānasalīlasampūrṇa-m-itihāsakamaṇḍalūḥ || 11:39 ||

The rosary is the meaning of the Purāṇas. Recitation is his peace of mind by day and night. His jar of epics is filled with the water of knowledge.

pañcakarmakriyotkrānti japa pañcavidhaḥ sukham |
sādhanaṁ śivasamkalpo yogasiddhiphalapradāḥ || 11:40 ||

The application of the five [medical] procedures (pañcakarman) is yogic suicide (utkrānti). Recitation corresponds to the five kinds of joy. The Śivasamkalpa [hymn] is [his yogic] practice (sādhana), yielding the fruits of yogic accomplishments.

11.37 See the word saṁgraha (here in stem form) used probably in a similar sense in 11.45 below. See a reference to eight *sādhana*s in Dharmaputrikā 2.1 (quoted in the apparatus to the present verse in the critical edition). These may or may not point to the same set of practices.

11.38 The reading of the witnesses in pāda d, upāśrayet, might be acceptable, but I consider my emendation, upāsayet, better, especially because that is the verb used in 11.58d below, in a similar context.

11.39 Pāda b may allow for various interpretations. The one I have chosen seems to be the simplest. It involves a stem form noun, japa, and śāntaṁ in the sense of śāntiḥ. Understand the middle of pādas cd as containing a hiatus-filler to bridge the vowels in a standard °pūrṇa itihāsa°.

11.40 My translation of this verse is tentative. Note that utkrānti (usually in similar contexts: ‘yogic suicide’) is a yogāṅga in chapter sixteen. See also 17.31, which mentions suicide by entering fire. I take japa tentatively as a stem form noun, and pañcavidhaḥ as if it read pañcavidham. BodhisattvaBh 1.3.4 teaches five kinds of sukha: hetusukhaṁ vedītasukhaṁ duḥkha-prātipakṣikaṁ sukhaṁ vedītopacchedasukhaṁ avyabādhyāṇ ca pañca-

saṃtoṣaphalam ābhāraḥ kāmakrodhaparājitaḥ |
āśāpāśajayābhyaśo dhyānayogaratipriyaḥ |
atithibhyo 'bhayaṃ dattvā vānaprasthaś cared vratam || 11:41 ||

His food is the fruit of contentment. He conquers lust and anger.
 His practice is the victory over the trap of hope. He delights in the joy of yogic meditation. The forest-dweller should observe his vow by offering fearlessness to his guests.

vānaprastham ayaṃ dharmam gadita yat pūrvam avadbhāritaṃ
saṃsāroddharaṇam anityaharaṇam ajñānanirmūlanam |
prajñāvṛddhikaram amoghakaraṇam kleśārṇavottāraṇam
janmavyādhikaram akarmadahanaṃ sevet sa dharmottamam || 11:42 ||

He should practise the Dharma of the forest-dweller—the supreme Dharma—which has been taught and which, when first properly understood, leads beyond rebirth, removes impermanence, uproots ignorance, increases wisdom, yields fruit, saves one from the flood maṃ sukham. This would not be the first occasion in this chapter to see Buddhist categories introduced, see 11.34 above.

I think that E's silent correction of °pradaḥ to °pradam, making pāda d qualifying sādhanaṃ in pāda c, is reasonable, but since this form is not attested in any of the witnesses consulted, I hesitate to follow it. Nevertheless, I understand the sentence thus: that which is normally the śivasamkalpa is now, in this internalised version of the forest-dweller's life, (yogic) practice that yields siddhis. I suppose that the reference is to Vājasaneyisaṃhitā 34.1–6, usually called Śivasamkalpa:

yaj jāgrato dūram udaiti daivaṃ tad u suptasya tathaivaiti |
dūraṃgamam jyotiṣāṃ jyotir ekaṃ tan me manaḥ śivasamkalpaṃ astu ||, etc.;

‘The divine that travels far for the waking one moves just the same for the one who sleeps. That far-going, single light of all lights—may that mind of mine be endowed with auspicious resolve;’ etc.

See this hymn referred to in Manu 11.251 in a context of expiation:

sakṛj japtvāsyavāmīyaṃ śivasamkalpaṃ eva ca |
apahrtya suvarṇam tu kṣaṇād bhavati nirmalaḥ ||.

In Olivelle's translation: ‘A man who has stolen gold, on the other hand, becomes instantly stainless by reciting softly[? rather: once] the Asyavāmīya hymn and the Śivasamkalpa formulas.’ Other texts that reference the Śivasamkalpa include Niśvāsa guhyasūtra 2.77, Agnipurāṇa 259.74, and Līṅgapurāṇa 1.64.76. See more on the Śivasamkalpa in Scheffelowitz 1906 and 1921.

of suffering, destroys rebirth and disease, and burns away bad karma.

[parivrājakaḥ —

The wandering mendicant]

parivrājakadharmo 'yaṃ kīrtayiṣyāmi tac chrṇu |
sukhaduḥkhaṃ samaṃ kṛtvā lobhamohavivarjitaḥ || 11:43 ||

Now listen—I shall teach you the Dharma of the wandering mendicant (parivrājaka). Making joy and sorrow equal, he should abandon greed and delusion.

varjayaṃ madhu māṃsāni paradārāṃś ca varjayet |
varjayec cīravāsaṃ ca paravāsaṃ ca varjayet || 11:44 ||

He should avoid honey and meat, and other men's wives. He should avoid staying long [in one place], and avoid staying in the homes of others.

varjayet śṛṣṭabhojyāni bhikṣāṃ ekāṃ ca varjayet |
varjayet saṃgrahaṃ nityaṃ abhimānaṃ ca varjayet || 11:45 ||

He should not eat discarded food, nor should he always beg from the same household. He should always refrain from amassing goods and from self-conceit.

susūkṣmaṃ manasā dhyātvā dṛṣṭau pādaṃ vinikṣipet |
na kupyeta anālābhe lābhe vāpi na harṣayet || 11:46 ||

11.42 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. In some MSS, pāda a gives a first impression of being an anuṣṭubh line with metrical problems. But, as Dominic Goodall remarked, the variants suggest that it may belong to the upcoming Śārdūlavikrīḍita verse. This is all the more so because that verse would otherwise contain only three pādas. My reconstruction of the now pāda a is still highly problematic; gadita is in stem form, and the final syllable of pūrvam scans as heavy. While these are acceptable in the language of the VSS (see pp. 30 ff), some elements remain questionable, namely the first syllable of dharmam as a short syllable, and the second syllable of avadhāritam as long. The pāda may have gone through some heavy corruption, possibly involving an eyeskip to 11.43a. It is also unclear if the first half of the pāda is to be interpreted as vānaprastham ayaṃ, vānaprastho 'yaṃ [sevet], vānaprastham idaṃ, or vānaprasthamayaṃ. I translate the first of these options, taking both ayaṃ and dharmam as neuter nominative. Word-final short syllables treated as heavy also appear in pādas bcd: °haraṇam (twice), °karam, and °haram.

11.45 See the term arthaśaṃgraha in 11.37c, probably in a sense similar to that in pāda c here.

Meditating on the extremely subtle one, he should keep his gaze fixed on his own feet [while begging]. He should not get angry if he receives nothing, nor rejoice if he does.

arthatṛṣṇāsv anudvigno roṣe vāpi sudārune |
stutinindā samaṃ kṛtvā priyaṃ vāpriyaṃ eva vā || 11:47 ||

He should remain unmoved by thirst for material things, and untouched by violent anger. He should treat praise and blame equally, as well as pleasant and pain.

niyamās tu parīdhānaṃ saṃyamāvṛtamekhalāḥ |
nirālambaṃ manaḥ kṛtvā buddhiṃ kṛtvā nirañjanām || 11:48 ||

His garment is the Niyama-rules, and his girdle is constraint (saṃyama). He should make his mind supportless, his intellect spotless.

11.46 The ‘extremely subtle one’ (susūkṣma) is usually an epithet of the highest divinity, most often Śiva. See VSS 1.1b, 15.13 (susūkṣmaḥ sarvago vyāpī...), 22.27cd (tasya madhye ’mbaraṃ dhyāyet susūkṣmaṃ śivam avyayaṃ); see also Śivadhar-mottara 10.45ab (on the 27th Tattva): saptāviṃśatimaḥ śāntaḥ susūkṣmaḥ parame-śvaraḥ, Dharmaputrikā 1.1a: nityaṃ śāntaṃ susūkṣmaṃ tribhuvanānamitaṃ sarvasattvaikanātham, etc.

Pāda b is suspect as transmitted in the MSS (in most sources it reads śucau pādaṃ vinikṣīpet: ‘he should place his foot in the pure?’). My conjecture (drṣau) results in something close to the early Buddhist rule given in the Pāli Pātimokkha on begging, which states that the monk should not make eye-contact with the donor. See Pātimokkha Sekhiyā 7–8 and 28:

okkhattacakkhu antaraghare gamissāmīti sikkhā karaṇīyā |
okkhattacakkhu antaraghare nisidissāmīti sikkhā karaṇīyā | [...]
pattasaññi piṇḍapātaṃ paṭiggahessāmīti sikkhā karaṇīyā |

In Bhikkhu Ñāṇatusita’s translation (Ñāṇatusita 2014, 294 and 303): ‘“I shall go with the eyes cast down inside an inhabited area,” thus the training is to be done. “I shall sit with the eyes cast down inside an inhabited area,” thus the training is to be done. [...] “I shall accept alms-food paying attention to the bowl,” thus the training is to be done.’ The last of these sentences opens up another possibility for emending the text of the VSS: pādaṃ might perhaps be considered as a corruption from pātraṃ (‘on his bowl’). I am not aware of similar Dharmasāstric teachings on avoiding eye-contact. The closest could be BaudhDhS 1.5.11 on observing silence while begging (vāgyatas tiṣṭhet). Not even Manu 5.50–60, a longer section on begging, prohibits eye-contact. If there are indeed no Brahmanical rules on this topic, the verse above in the VSS could be another piece of evidence for Buddhist influence.

11.47 In pāda c, understand stutinindā as a dual (or singular) accusative.

11.48 On saṃyama, see notes on 11.14 above.

ātmānaṃ pṛthivīm kṛtvā khaṃ ca kṛtvā manonmanam |
tridaṇḍaṃ triguṇaṃ kṛtvā pātraṃ kṛtvākṣaro 'vyayaḥ || 11:49 ||

The ground is his self; the sky the mind-nonmind [state] (manonmana). The triple staff [of the parivrājaka] is the three qualities (guṇa); his begging bowl is the imperishable syllable.

nyased dharmam adharmaṃ ca irṣyādvēṣaṃ parityajet |
nirdvandvo nityasatyastho nirmamo nirahaṃkṛtaḥ || 11:50 ||

He should abandon both Dharma and Adharma, and should give up envy and hatred. He should be indifferent to opposites, always dwell in truthfulness, being unselfish, humble.

divasasyāṣṭame bhāge bhikṣāṃ sapta-grhaṃ caret |
na cāśīta na tiṣṭheta na ca debhīti vā vadet || 11:51 ||

He should go on his alms round, visiting seven houses at the eighth part of the day. He should not sit, he should not stay, and he should not say: 'Give me!'

yathālābhena varteta aṣṭau piṇḍān dine dine |
vastrabhojanaśayyāsu na prasajyeta vistaram || 11:52 ||

He should live on what is available, sustaining himself on eight mouthfuls a day. He should not cling for long to clothes, food, or a bed.

nābbhinandeta maraṇaṃ nābbhinandeta jīvitaṃ |
indriyāṇi vaśaṃkṛtvā kāmam hatvā yatavrataḥ || 11:53 ||

He should nor rejoice in death, he should not rejoice in life. Having conquered his senses and overcome desire, firm in his observances, 11.49 °kṣaram avyayam in pāda d would be hypermetrical, that is probably why the nominative appears here. On the 'triple staff' of the renouncer, see Olivelle 1992, 64, 69, 79, 99, 106, and, e.g., Baudhāyanadharmaśūtra 2.(10).18.1: ekadaṇḍī tridaṇḍī vā.

11.51 According to Manu 6.56, the wandering ascetic should go around begging after people have finished their meal. MBh Suppl. 1.52.36 (= LakṣmīNārS 1.238.18ab = VāsiṣṭhaDhS 11.36ab) suggests that the 'eighth part of the day' is around sunset: divasasyāṣṭame bhāge mandibhūte divākare.

*atītaṃ ca bhaviṣyaṃ ca na bhikṣuś cintayet sadā |
krodhamānamadadarpān parivrāḍ varjayet sadā || 11:54 ||*

the mendicant (bhikṣu) should never think about the past or the future. The wandering mendicant (parivrāḍ) should always avoid anger, self-conceit, intoxication, and pride.

*virāgaṃ tu dhanuḥ kṛtvā prāṇāyāmaguṇair yutam |
dhāraṇāśaratikṣṇena mṛgaṃ hatvā manendriyam || 11:55 ||*

Making detachment a bow, strung with the cord of breath-control, he should slay the beast that is the mind and the sense-faculties with the sharp arrow of concentration.

*maitrīkhaḍgasutikṣṇena saṃsārārīm nikṛntayet |
karuṇāvartacakreṇa krodhamattagajam jayet |
muditāvarmabaddhāṅgas tūṇam pūrṇam upekṣayā || 11:56 ||*

He should pierce the enemy that is transmigration with the exceedingly sharp knife of friendliness. He should defeat the rutting elephant of anger with the whirling discus of compassion. His body should be clad in the armour of sympathy; his quiver full of equanimity.

*anākṣaram paraṃ brahma cintayet satataṃ dvija |
brahmaṇo hṛdayam viṣṇur viṣṇoś ca hṛdayam śivaḥ |
śivasya hṛdayam saṃdhyā tasmāt saṃdhyām upāsayet || 11:57 ||*

He should constantly recall the inexpressible syllable—the supreme Brahman, O Brahmin. Brahmā's heart is Viṣṇu; Viṣṇu's heart is Śiva; Śiva's heart is the junctures of the day. Therefore, he should worship the junctures.

*saṃsārārṇavatāraṇam śubhagatīḥ sa brahma saṃdhyākṣaram
dhyāyen nityam atandrito hy anupamam vyaktātṃ mavedyam śivam |*

11.54 Pāda c is a sa-vipulā.

11.55 Understand pāda c as dhāraṇāśaratikṣṇaśareṇa.

11.56 Understand pāda a as maitrīsutikṣṇakhaḍgena, which is even metrical. Note the four Buddhist brahmavihāras, maitrī, karuṇā, muditā, and upekṣā, mentioned in this verse. They appear also in verses 4.71 and 11.56 above.

*rūpair varṇaguṇādibhiś ca vibitaṃ durlakṣyalakṣyottamaṃ
yatnoddhṛtya samāśrayet suraguruṃ sarvārtihartā haram || 11:58 ||*

[Śiva] is deliverance from the ocean of worldly existence, the path to happiness, the Brahman, the junctures, the [sacred] syllable. Always, without weariness, one should meditate on matchless Śiva, who is to be recognized as the manifest soul. He should take refuge in Hara, who is without form, colour, qualities etc.; who is the supreme goal, difficult to perceive, honouring with effort the divine guru who removes all suffering.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrāhe caturāśramadharmavidhāno nāmādhyāya ekādaśamaḥ ||

Here ends the eleventh chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called Regulations concerning the four life-stages.

11.58 Metre: śārdūlavikrīḍita. Note vibita in pāda c probably in the sense of ‘devoid of.’ I take yatnoddhṛtya in pāda d as yatnenoddhṛtya, yatna being in stem form, and °hartā as nominative for accusative.

[dvādaśamo 'dhyāyaḥ]
[Chapter Twelve]

[ātithyadharmah — Rules of hospitality]

devy uvāca |
ahiṃsā paramo dharmah satataṃ parikīrtyate |
ātithyakānāṃ dharmam ca kathayasva yad uttamam || 12:1 ||

The Goddess spoke: Non-violence is always praised as the highest Dharma. Teach me also the supreme Dharma of hospitality.

maheśvara uvāca |
ahiṃsātithyakānāṃ ca śṛṇu dharmam yad uttamam |
trailokyam akhilaṃ devi ratnapūrṇam sulocane || 12:2 ||

Maheśvara spoke: Listen to the supreme Dharma of non-violence and that of hospitality. O beautiful-eyed goddess, [even if] all the three worlds, filled with wealth, caturvedavide dānam na tattulyam ahiṃsakah |

śṛṇu dharmam atithyānāṃ kīrtayiṣyāmi sundari || 12:3 ||

[were given as] a gift to [a Brahmin who] knows the four Vedas, [even that] would not equal [the merit of one] refrains from causing harm. Listen [now] to the Dharma of the hospitable ones. I shall teach it [to you], O beautiful one.

12.1 One could read ahiṃsāparamo dharmah in pāda a. This would translate as ‘A Dharma beyond non-violence is always being praised.’ It is not entirely clear why ahiṃsā is mentioned at the beginning of this chapter. Also, I suspect that by ātithyakānāṃ dharmam, one should simply understand ātithyadharmam.

12.2 Understand ahiṃsātithyakānāṃ as ahiṃsakānāṃ atithyakānāṃ ca or ahiṃsāyā atithyakānāṃ ca.

12.3 Note that this verse appears to be all that Maheśvara teaches in this chapter on ahiṃsā, and that tattulyam ahiṃsakah may either contain a sandhi bridge (tattulyam-ahiṃsakah) or be interpreted as dānam na tat tulyam ahiṃsakena or ahiṃsakasya (‘that gift is not comparable to a non-violent person’ or ‘to that of a non-violent person’). atithyānāṃ in pāda c stands for ātithyānāṃ, ātithyasya, or ātithyakānāṃ, metri causa.

[vipulopākhyānam — Story of Vipula]

āsīd vṛttaṃ purākhyānaṃ nagare kusumābhvaye |
kapilasya suto vidvān vipulo nāma viśrutaḥ || 12:4 ||

This is an old story of something that once happened in a city called Kusuma. [There lived] a famous and wise man named Vipula, the son of Kapila.

dharmanityo jitakrodhaḥ satyavādī jitendriyaḥ |
brahmaṇyaś ca kṛtajñaś ca madbhaktaḥ kṛtaniścayaḥ || 12:5 ||

He always followed Dharma, had conquered anger, spoke only the truth, and had mastered his senses. He was pious, learned, and a devoted worshipper of mine.

dhanādhyo 'tithipūjyaś ca dātā dānto dayāluḥ |
nyāyārjitadhano nityam anyāyaparivarjitaḥ || 12:6 ||

He was wealthy and he honoured his guests. He was generous, self-restrained, and kind. His wealth always came through just means. He always kept away from dishonest dealings.

bhāryā ca rūpiṇī tasya candrabimbaśubhānanā |
pīnottuṅgastanī kāntā sakalānandakārīṇī |
pativratā patiratā patiśuśrūṣaṇe ratā || 12:7 ||

12.4 Kusumapura is Pāṭaliputra, or modern Patna, in Bihar. This is confirmed in verse 12.12, where the confluence of the river Gaṇḍakī and the Gaṅgā is mentioned as a local spot. The dramatis personae in the following story are the following: Vipula—a merchant, Kapila's son; Vipula's wife; a Brahmin guest (Dharma in disguise?); a monkey; Bhīmabala—a traveller; Puṇḍaka—the foreman of the guild; King Siṃhajata; Queen Kekayī; Caṇḍa and Vicaṇḍa—two envoys of the king; Citraratha—the king of the Gandharvas; Sūrya, Soma, Indra, Viṣṇu, and Brahmā.

12.5 Pāda d implies that Vipula is a Śaiva devotee, but there is little further indication in this story of Vipula's affiliation, except for 12.44, where Maheśvara is mentioned. The story as we have it here ends with a praise of Brahmā.

12.6 While one would normally translate atithipūjya (in pāda a) as 'to be worshipped by guests,' in the light of the story I suspect that the intended meaning is that he worshipped his guests.

He had a beautiful wife, whose face was as lovely as the disk of the moon. Her breasts were round and prominent, she was charming and a source of all pleasures. She was faithful and devoted to her husband and his needs.

atha kenāpi kālena sūryarāga-m-abbhūt tataḥ |
grastabhāgatrayas tv āsīt kṛṣṇamādhavamāsike || 12:8 ||

Now, once there was an eclipse of the sun. Three quarters of it were eclipsed, and it took place in the dark half of the month of Mādhava [April-May].

snātukāmāvatīryante sarve pauranṛpādayaḥ |
devāś ca pītarāś caiva tarpyante vidhivat tathā || 12:9 ||

Eager to take a ritual bath, the king and all the citizens went down [to the riverbank]. [There] they worshipped the gods and the ancestors according to the rules.

keciḥ juhvati tatrāgniṃ kecid viprāṃś ca tarpayet |
kecid dānopatiṣṭhanti kecit stuvanti devatām || 12:10 ||

Some offered sacrifices into the fire, some fed Brahmins, some gave gifts in service of others, while others praised the deity.

dhyānayogarātāḥ kecit kecit pañcatape ratāḥ |
evaṃ pravartamāneṣu rājanādiṣu sarvaśaḥ || 12:11 ||

Some practised yogic meditation, others were engrossed in five-fire penance (pañcatapa[s]). All around, ritual waving of lamps and [other ceremonies] were being performed.

12.8 In pāda b, understand sūryarāgam as sūryoparāgaḥ ('eclipse of the sun'). I take °rāga-m-abbhūt an example of irregular sandhi for °rāgo 'bbhūt.

12.9 Understand pāda a as snātukāmā avatīryante. It is an instance of double sandhi or of a stem form noun in sandhi with the following verb.

12.10 Understand agniṃ in pāda a as locative, and tarpayet in pāda b as plural. Note dāna in pāda c in stem form (for the instrumental).

12.11 rājanādiṣu in pāda d is suspect. The intended meaning may be 'the royals and other people,' but I prefer now the option to take it as a shortened form of nīrājanādiṣu, and that is how I translate it. Cf., e.g., ŚivaP 7.30.81cd: nīrājanādikam kṛtvā pūjāśeṣam samāpayet.

vipulo 'pi hi tatraiva gaṅgāgaṇḍakisaṃgame |
bhāryayā sāha tatraiva snātvā kṣomavibhūṣaṇaḥ || 12:12 ||

Vipula too, having bathed at the confluence of the Gaṅgā and the Gaṇḍakī, dressed in linen, together with his wife,

devatāguruviprāṇām anyeṣāṃ tarpaṇe rataḥ |
tatrāvasarasamprāpto brāhmaṇo 'tithir āgataḥ || 12:13 ||

was engaged in satiating the deities, the gurus, the Brahmins, and others. Then, seizing the opportunity, a Brahmin approached them as a guest.

bhāryā tasyātīrūpeṇa mobitā brahmaṇas tadā |
brāhmaṇo 'pi tathaiveha rūpeṇāpratimo bhavet || 12:14 ||

The wife became infatuated with the Brahmin's extraordinary beauty. The Brahmin, [too, felt] the same. His beauty was unmatched in the world.

anyonyadr̥ṣṭisaṃsaktau jātāu tau tu parasparam |
vīpulenāñjaliṃ kṛtvā brāhmaṇa saṃśītaavrata || 12:15 ||

Their eyes became fixed on one another. Vipula joined his hands [and said:] 'O virtuous Brahmin, ājñāpaya dvijaśreṣṭha adya me 'nugrahaṃ kuru |

bhāryābhṛtyapaśuḡrāma ratnāni vividhāni ca || 12:16 ||

12.12 Note gaṇḍaki metri causa for gaṇḍakī in pāda b.

12.14 Pāda d is suspect and the translation of *pāda*s cd is tentative. The expression rūpeṇāpratimo/pratimā bhūvi ('his/her beauty is unparalleled in the world') is common in the MBh and in the Purāṇas. Is that what was meant here? May a dual have been intended? An alternative reading, albeit requiring substantial emendations, could be: brāhmaṇo 'pi tathaivāha rūpeṇāpratimā bhūvi; 'The Brahmin [felt the same] and said [to himself,] her figure is unparalleled in the world.' Nevertheless, I retained the reading found in the MSS, and I interpret pāda d as an indication that this Brahmin was extraordinary, in fact a manifestation of Dharma.

12.15 While the apparatus here appears to indicate that in pāda a I am following E, in fact the majority of the remaining witnesses suggest the same reading.

I am at your service—be gracious to me now, O great Brahmin. My wife, my servants, my cattle, my village, and all kinds of jewels—[all are at your disposal].’

*vīpulaivaiva uktas tu grhīto brāhmaṇo ’bravīt |
yadi satyaṃ pradātāsi suprasannaṃ manas tava || 12:17 ||*

Welcomed and honoured hospitably by Vipula, the Brahmin spoke:
‘If you really intend to give, your heart is indeed very generous.’

*vīpula uvāca |
suprasannaṃ mano me ’dya suprasannaṃ tapaḥphalam |
śīghram ājñāpaya vipra yac cābhilaṣitaṃ tava |
adeyaṃ nāsti viprasya svaśiraḥprabhṛti dvija || 12:18 ||*

Vipula spoke: ‘My heart is generous today—generosity is the fruit of austerity. Command me without delay, O Brahmin. What is your desire? Nothing should be withheld from a Brahmin—not even one’s own head, O Brahmin.’

*brāhmaṇa uvāca |
yady evaṃ vadase bhadra bhāryāṃ me dehi rūpiṇīm |
svasti bhavatu bhadraṃ vaḥ kalyāṇaṃ bhava śāśvatam || 12:19 ||*

The Brahmin spoke: ‘If you speak in this way, dear Sir, then give me your beautiful wife. May happiness be yours, may you be fortunate, and may you prosper eternally!’

*vīpula uvāca |
praticcha bhāryāṃ suśroṇīm rūpayauvanaśālinīm |
akutsitāṃ viśālākṣīm pūrṇacandranibhānanām || 12:20 ||*

12.16 °grāma in pāda c is in stem form, although it would be unproblematic to correct it to the neuter singular (to form a samāhārasamāsa).

12.17 Note that C₀₂’s omission of pādas cd here could be due to an eyeskip from suprasannaṃ in 12.17d to suprasannaṃ in 12.18a, although this would have also led to an omission of the next vīpula uvāca.

12.18 Pāda c is either a sa-vīpulā or by applying the krama licence, by which °pra does not make vi° heavy, a na-vīpulā.

12.19 Pāda c has the metrical fault of two laghus in the second and third position.

In pāda d, bhava is less than satisfactory. One would normally expect bhavate/bhavatām/bhavatu in this context. Alternatively, it is possible that kalyāṇo bhava (‘be happy’) was meant, or E’s reading (tava) could be accepted as a conjecture.

Vipula spoke: ‘Accept my nice-buttocked, young and beautiful wife, who is blameless, large-eyed, and whose face resembles the full-moon.’

bhāryovāca |
parityājyā katham nātha apāpām tyajase katham |
atīva hi priyām bhāryām nirdoṣām ca katham tyajeh || 12:21 ||

The wife spoke: ‘How can you abandon me, my lord? How can you cast away a woman who is sinless? How can you forsake a wife who is supremely kind and without fault?

sakhā bhāryā manuṣyāṇām iha loke paratra ca |
dānam vā sumahad dattvā yajño vā subahuḥ kṛtaḥ || 12:22 ||

A wife is a man’s companion in this world and in the next. [Even if] a man gives enormous donations or performs countless sacrifices, aputro nāpnuyāt svargaṁ tapobhir vā suduṣkaraiḥ |

śruto me pitṛbhiḥ prokto brāhmaṇaiś ca mamāntike || 12:23 ||

or undertakes severe penance, he cannot reach heaven without a son. I have heard this taught by my father, my uncles, and Brahmins in my presence.

aputro nāpnuyāt svargaṁ śrutaṁ me bahuśaḥ purā |
mandapālo dvijaśreṣṭho gataḥ svargaṁ tapobalāt || 12:24 ||

A sonless man cannot reach heaven—I have heard this said so many times! The great Brahmin Mandapāla reached heaven as the fruit of his austerities,

dānāni ca bahūn dattvā yajñāṁś ca vividhāṁś tathā |
vedāṁś ca japayajñāṁś ca kṛtvā sa dvijasattamaḥ || 12:25 ||

12.21 All witnesses consulted read sa instead of my conjectured ca in pāda d. sa might work if we read tyajet (C₄₅C₀₂) instead of tyajeh (C₉₄K₈₂K₇), but even this version sounds a bit out of context (‘how can he abandon...’).

12.23 Note me as instrumental in pāda c (Oberlies 2003, 102–103 [4.1.3]). I translate pitṛbhiḥ in the same pāda as ‘father and uncles,’ and not as ‘ancestors’ because the former fits the context better.

12.24 Note me as instrumental again in pāda b. See details of Mandapāla’s story, summarised here in verses 12.24cd–28ab, in MBh 1.220.5ff.

after giving abundant donations and performing various sacrifices—Vedic sacrifices and sacrifices of recitation, that great Brahmin.

prāptadvāro 'pi yasyāpi devadūtair nivāritaḥ |
aputro nāpnuyāt svargaṃ yadi yajñasatair api || 12:26 ||

But even he, when he reached the very gate [of heaven], was stopped by the celestial messengers: “The sonless cannot enter heaven, not even after hundreds of sacrifices.”

ity uktas tu cyutaḥ svargān mandapālo mahān ṛṣiḥ |
putrān utpādayām āsa śāraṅgāṃś caturo dvijaḥ || 12:27 ||

Thus informed, the great sage Mandapāla fell from heaven. [Later,] the Brahmin begot four sons with a Śāraṅga-bird.

tena puṇyaprabhāveṇa svargaṃ prāpto hy avāritaḥ |
kulatrāṇāt kalatrāsmi bharaṇād bhārya eva ca || 12:28 ||

By virtue of this, he entered heaven without obstruction. I am a wife (kalatra) because I protect the family (kulatrāṇāt), and I am a wife to be supported (bhāryā) because I bear [sons] (bharaṇa).

dārasaṃgraha putrārthe kriyate śāstradarśanāt |
yāni santi grhe dravyaṃ grāmaghoṣagrāhāṇi ca || 12:29 ||

According to the Śāstras, taking a wife is for the sake of having sons. Give that Brahmin all the wealth you find at home—the village, the herdsmen’s stations, and the houses,

12.25 Note dānāni bahūn for dānāni bahūni in pāda a. Understand pāda c as vedayajñān jāpayajñānś ca kṛtvā. (See vedayajña mentioned in VSS 3.37a above.) On jāpayajña, see VSS 6.1–2 and 5 above, as well as, e.g., BhG 10.25c (yajñānām jāpayajño 'smi) and Manu 2.86 (vidhiyajñāj jāpayajño viśiṣṭo daśabhir guṇaiḥ).

12.26 Pādas ab are not perfectly smooth syntactically; yasyāpi is difficult to integrate. Perhaps understand prāptadvāre 'pi yasmin sa devatūtair nivāritaḥ. Alternatively, yasya might reference svargaḥ.

12.28 Note that pāda c is the result of emendations (the majority of the MSS read kalatrāṇām kalatrāsmi), and that bhārya in pāda d is to be understood as bhāryā metri causa. I added ‘to be supported’ in the translation to convey the general meaning of the word bhārya, which seemed to fit the context well.

12.29 Note the stem form saṃgraha used metri causa in pāda a. Also note the number discrepancy between yāni santi and dravyaṃ in pāda c, which is repeated in 12:42a.

dātum arhasi viprāya na māṃ dātum ibārhasi |
bhāryāyā vacanam śrutvā vipulaḥ punar abravīt || 12:30 ||

but do not give me away this time!’ Having heard his wife’s words, Vipula spoke again:

sādhū bhāmini jānāmi sādhu sādhu pativrate |
jito ’smy anena vākyena anenāsmi hi toṣitaḥ || 12:31 ||

‘Alright, my beautiful wife, I understand! Well said, well said, my faithful wife! I am defeated by this speech and I am satisfied with it.

adya grahaṇakāle ca dvija āgatya yācate |
dadāmīti pratijñāya adattvā narakam vraje || 12:32 ||

Today the Brahmin came to me at the time of the eclipse and made a request. I promised him that I would give [you]. If I don’t give [you to him], I shall fall into hell.

narakam yadi gacchāmi kulena saha sundari |
kalpakoṭisahasre ’pi narakastho yaśasvini |
muktim eva na paśyāmi janmakotīśatair api || 12:33 ||

If I fall into hell along with my family, I shall remain there, O radiant woman, for millions of æons, and not find release for millions of births.

adānāc cāśubham devi paśyāmi varavarṇini |
dānena tu śubham paśye svargaloke yad akṣayam || 12:34 ||

I see misfortune, my princess, arising from not giving, O woman with a nice complexion, but from giving, I see eternal good fortune in heaven.

12.30 I have not included C₀₂^{pc}’s vipula uvāca (echoed in E) because after vipulaḥ punar abravīt it seems secondary and unnecessary. Note that the correction in C₀₂ is in a second hand and it is also to be found in paper MSS K₄₁ and K₁₀₇ (on this, see p. 75).

12.33 The reading narakastho in pāda b (K₇E) might not be original but it is definitely the simplest solution. narakasthād may be original, possibly meaning narakasthānād.

nohtaṃ mayānṛtaṃ pūrvam nityaṃ satyavrate sthitaḥ |
satyadharmam atikramya nānyadharmam samācare || 12:35 ||

I have never spoken a lie; I always observe the vow of truthfulness.
 If I were to transgress the Dharma of truthfulness, I would be abandoning all other Dharmas as well.

bhāryā dharmasakhety evaṃ tvayā pūrvam udāhṛtam |
yadi dharmasakhāyāsi so 'dya kāla ihāgataḥ || 12:36 ||

You yourself just said that the wife is [a man's] Dharmic companion. If you are indeed Dharma's companion, then this is the perfect occasion for him to have approached us today.

dvijarūpadharo dharmah svayam eva ihāgataḥ |

 [For] Dharma himself has come to us, disguised as a Brahmin. I am being put to the test. My dear, please do not cause me distress.

mātāvvyaktaḥ pitā brahmā buddhir bhāryā damaḥ sakhā |
putro dharmah kriyācārya ity ete mama bāndhavāḥ || 12:38 ||
 The Unmanifest (avyakta) is my mother, Brahmā is my father, intelligence my wife, self-control my friend. Dharma is my son, and ritual is my teacher. These are my [true] relatives.

kālaśreṣṭho grabhaḥ sūryo gaṅgā śreṣṭhā nadīṣu ca |
candraśayā dinam śreṣṭham naraśreṣṭho dvijottamaḥ || 12:39 ||
 The best time is the moment of a solar eclipse. The best of rivers is the Gaṅgā. The best day is new moon. The best man is the Brahmin.

12.36 I have emended tvayi in pāda d to tvayā because it seems an early random scribal mistake, rather than some linguistic peculiarity. Note the form sakhāyā for a feminine sakhī or sahāyā. I sense a touch of humour or sarcasm in Vipula's spin on his wife's claim in 12.22a that 'a wife is a man's friend': now he suggests that his wife, his 'Dharmic friend,' is actually friends with Dharma.

12.37 jijñāsārtham ahaṃ in pāda c is slightly clumsy. Understand maj-jijñāsārtham ('in order to test me').

12.39 I understand grabhaḥ sūryo in pāda a as sūryagrabhaḥ (or sūryagrahaṇam): the eclipse of the Sun, which appears to be an auspicious day. See, e.g., Āgamakalpalatā 3.128: sūryagrahaṇakālasya samānā nāsti bhūtale |

atra yad yat kṛtaṃ karma anantaphaladaṃ bhavet ||

This short list of 'best of' items anticipates VSS 15.16–29, a longer list of what is best in every possible category, not entirely differently in manner from BhG 10.21–38.

*śuśrūṣaṇārthaṃ viprasya mayā dattāsi sundari |
sarvasvaṃ brāhmaṇe dattvā vanam evāśrayāmy aham || 12:40 ||*

I have given you to the Brahmin to serve him, O beautiful woman.
Once I have given all my wealth to the Brahmin, I shall retire to the forest.’

*śaṅkara uvāca |

Śaṅkara spoke: The wife remained silent, her bewildered eyes filled with tears. [Vipula] took her by the hand and presented the long-eyed woman to the Brahmin.

*yāni santi gr̥he dravyaṃ hiraṇyaṃ paśavas tathā |

‘I am ready to give you all the wealth I possess at home—all the gold and cattle, O great Brahmin, the village, the herdsmen’s stations, the houses, and everything else,

best of Brahmins, given in good faith and with respect.

*prīyatāṃ bhagavān dharmāḥ prīyatāṃ ca maheśvaraḥ |
prīyantāṃ pitarāḥ sarve yady asti sukṛtaṃ phalam || 12:44 ||*

May Lord Dharma be pleased and may Maheśvara be pleased. May all the ancestors rejoice, if indeed merit accrues from righteous acts.’

12.40 Pāda d may give a hint at the connection between this chapter and the end of the previous one: this story is partly a propagation of the life of the vānaprastha.

12.41 Note that the variant maheśvara uvāca in E may seem as an odd alteration by Naraharinath, but in fact paper MSS K₄₁ and K₁₀₇ (neither collated for this chapter) also read the same. See pp. 72 ff.

12.42 See the phrase yāni santi gr̥he dravyaṃ, with number confusion, also in 12.29c.

12.44 Note ŚDhŚ 10.11cd, in a similar context of gifting: bhojayitvā tato brūyāt prīyatāṃ bhagavān śivāḥ. Understand sukṛtaṃ phalam as sukṛtaphalam, a tatpuruṣa compound, metri causa.

and then went off to live in a fine house, taking Vipula's wife with him. As for Vipula, he paid homage to him and circumambulated him.

brāhmaṇam abhivādyaivaṃ gataḥ śīghraṃ vanāntaram |
vane mūlaphalābhāro vicareta mahātale || 12:47 ||

Taking leave of the Brahmin thus, Vipula quickly departed into the forest. In the forest, he lived on roots and fruits, and wandered the earth.

ekākī vijane śūnye cintayā ca pariplutaḥ |
kva gacchāmi kva bhokṣyāmi kutra vā kiṃ karomy aham || 12:48 ||

But, alone in an abandoned and deserted place, he was overcome with anxiety. 'Where should I go? Where could I find food? From whom? What shall I do?

na pathaṃ viṣayaṃ vedmi grāmaṃ vā nagarāṇi vā |
khetakharvaṭadeśaṃ vā jānāmīha na kaṃcana || 12:49 ||

12.45 Note that the variant mabesvara uvāca in E again is to be found in the paper MS K₄₁, but this time not in K₁₀₇ (compare with note to 12.41). One may wonder why the Brahmin is labelled as ascetic (tapasvin) in pāda b.

There are several ways to explain the form āśīḥ in pāda c. The easiest is to treat it as a singular accusative neuter. Alternatively, it could be a plural accusative feminine of āśī and then suvipulaṃ is either to be understood adverbially or as suvipulā[ḥ]. Another way to treat āśīḥ would be to take it as a nominative standing for the accusative.

12.47 Note the metrical problem in pāda a (two laghus).

I do not know these roads, this land, these villages, and these cities, these towns, or these mountain settlements. I know no one here.

amum suśailaṃ paśyāmi vipulodarakandaram |
tam āruhya nirīkṣyāmi grāmaṃ nagarapattanam || 12:50 ||

Yet I can see a fine mountain over there, full of large hollows and caves. I shall climb it and try to find out whether there is a village, a town, or city [nearby].⁷

evam uktvā tu vipulaḥ śanaīḥ parvatam āruhat |
vṛkṣacchāyāṃ samālokyā niśasāda śramānviṭaḥ || 12:51 ||

Having said this, Vipula slowly climbed the mountain. Spotting the shade of a tree, and being exhausted, he sat down [beneath it].

etasminn eva kāle tu vṛkṣaśākhāvatārya ca |
apūrvam ca surūpaṃ ca sugandhatvaṃ ca śobhanam || 12:52 ||

At that very moment, descending from among the branches of the tree, [a monkey appeared and,] carrying an extraordinary, beautiful, fragrant, exquisite,

phalaṃ gr̥hya vicitraṃ ca hṛdayānandanam śubham |
vipulasyāgrataḥ kṛtvā punar vṛkṣaṃ samāruhat || 12:53 || lovely, delightful and pleasant-looking fruit, it put it in front of Vipula, and then climbed back up into the tree.

12.49 In pāda c, I accepted E's reading (°kharvaṭa°, 'a mountain village') against all witnesses consulted. The MSS transmit a reading that is difficult to make sense of (°kharpaṭa°, 'ragged garment'). In pāda d, the reading of all the witnesses, kaścana, seems to be an early scribal mistake for kañcana. But note that the same happens in 12.55d.

12.50 Pāda a is a ma-vipulā.

12.51 I have accepted the reading of E in pāda d (āruhat) because I think that ārubet is an early scribal mistake that is easy to make, and because °āruhat comes up again in 12.53d. Additionally, K₄₁ (paper MS, not collated here) seems to read āruhat too (f. 220r).

12.52 Note the stem form noun °śākhā in pāda b. Understand °śākhāyā avatārya or śākhayāvatārya. Understand sugandhatvaṃ in pāda d as sugandhi.

From this point on, the story might be interpreted as a dream. See especially 12.149cd: svapnabhūtam ivāścāryaṃ paśyāmi ('I see a wondrous vision like a dream').

12.53 Note how the agent of this sentence is omitted here. That it was a monkey that gave Vipula the fruit becomes clear in 12.94 below.

vipulaś citravad dṛṣṭvā vismayam paramam gataḥ |
aho vā svapnabhūto 'smi aho vā tapasaḥ phalam || 12:54 ||

Vipula, looking [at it] as if witnessing a miracle, was astonished.
Wow, am I dreaming? Or is this the fruit of my penance?

na paśyāmi na jighrāmi na ca svādam ca vedmy aham |
vārttāpi na ca me śrotā pratijānāmi kaṃcana || 12:55 ||

Never have I seen, smelt, or tasted anything like this. I have not even heard of anything like it. I shall inform someone about this.

evam uktvā hy anekāni phalam grhya manoramam |
sunirīkṣya punar jighran punar jighran nirīkṣya ca || 12:56 ||

Having repeated this several times, taking that fine fruit, he kept gazing at it, smelling it over and over again.

phalam cātra nirūpyanto deśam vāpy avalokayan |
pātheyarabitaś cāsmi devadattam phalam mama || 12:57 ||

‘While staring at this fruit, and looking over the landscape, I have used up all my provisions. This fruit has surely come to me from the gods.

tat phalam pratigrhyaiva nagaram praviśāmy aham |
prārthayitvā tu yat kiṃcij jīvanārtham carāmy aham || 12:58 ||

12.54 See notes on 12.52 above on how most of the story could be interpreted as a dream.

12.55 Note the use of the (non-historical) present tense in pādas ab clearly pointing to past events. I suspect that śrotā in pāda c is meant to be feminine participle śrutā, but the metre required the first vowel to be lengthened. Understand me as mayā (Oberlies 2003, 102–103 [4.1.3]). In pāda d, the reading of all the witnesses, kaṃcana, seems to be an early scribal mistake for kaṃcana. Note that the same happens in 12.49d.

12.56 Since one of the main points, and a source of conflict, in the story is that there was only one single fruit, we have to interpret anekāni in pāda a as a shortened form of anekavāram (‘repeatedly’). Most sources consulted read jighra or jighrām in both pāda c and d, i.e., most of them do not suggest the participle jighran, which seems to be the correct reading. I have altered this part of the text silently.

12.57 Understand nirūpyanto in pāda a as a thematised present participle in the nominative (nirūpyan). This is also suggested by the standard avalokayan in pāda b.

Therefore, I shall take this fruit and enter that city. I shall go and look for some means of sustenance.’

*tataḥ śailam atikramya nagaram praviveśa ha |
pathi kaścij janāḥ prṣṭhaḥ kiṃnāma nagaram tv idam || 12:59 ||*

Then, crossing that mountain, he entered the city. He asked a man on the road: ‘What is the name of this city?’

*sa hovāca pathikena kim apūrvam ihāgataḥ |
dakṣiṇāpathadeśo ’yaṃ naravīrapuram tv adaḥ || 12:60 ||*

The traveller replied: ‘Have you never been here before? This is the Deccan region, and this city is called Naravīra.

*rājā siṃhajaṭo nāma rājñī tasya ca kekayī |
ativṛddho jarāgrastaḥ kekayī ca tathaiva ca || 12:61 ||*

The king is called Siṃhajaṭa, and his queen is Kekayī. The king is very old, afflicted by age—and Kekayī likewise.

*dātā sarvakalājñaś ca yuddhe vīryabalānvitaḥ |
brahmaṇyo vatsalo loka sarvaśāstraviśāradaḥ || 12:62 ||*

12.60 I understand pathikena as standing for pathikena metri causa (see pathika in 12.64b), and not as two words, pathi kena. This means that we are forced to accept an instrumental as the agent of the finite verb uvāca (ergative structure, see p. 35). I suspect that K₇’s reading (pathiko na) is an attempt to correct the syntax, but in this way na ... apūrvam becomes problematic.

ayam as the end of this verse may have been the original reading and C₄₅ may have corrected it to adaḥ. Another possibility is that an original adaḥ is preserved in C₄₅, and it got corrupted to ayaḥ (C₉₄), and then to ayam (C₀₂K₈₂). In any case, I have chosen the not-so-well attested reading adaḥ simply because it works better. Another possibility would be to echo 12.59d and correct to idam.

Since I am not aware of any attestation of Naravīrapura as a city, I suspect that this name is either a mistake for or a pun on Karavīrapura, possibly modern Kolhapur in Maharashtra. See p. 23, and compare 12.93, in which the Sahya mountain is mentioned, with Padmapurāṇa 6.106.3:

*āsīt sahyādriviśaye karavīrapure purā |
brāhmaṇo dharmavit kaścīd dharmadatto ’tiviśrutaḥ ||*

‘Once upon a time, in the region of Mount Sahya, in Karavīrapura, there was a certain very famous Brahmin called Dharmadatta, who was an expert on Dharma.’

On the area of the Sahya mountain as ‘the southernmost limit of the authors’ map’ in the ‘the Skandapurāṇa’s literary imagining of a Pāśupata landscape,’ see Cecil 2020, 161ff.

He is generous, skilled in all the arts, and renowned for his bravery in battle. He is pious and protective of his subjects, and well-versed in the Śāstras.’

*vipula uvāca |
atra śreṣṭhim upāsyāmi nāma vā tasya kiṃ vada |
katamo deśa tadvāsaḥ kathayasva na saṃśayaḥ || 12:63 ||*

Vipula spoke: ‘As a matter of fact, I am seeking an audience with the foreman of the guild (śreṣṭhi[n]). What is his name? Tell me. In which district is his dwelling? Tell me without hesitation.’

*vipulenaivam uktas tu pathikovāca taṃ punaḥ |
mama bhīmabalo nāma śreṣṭhikasya grhāgataḥ || 12:64 ||*

Thus addressed by Vipula, the traveller replied: ‘My name is Bhīmabala and I am on my way to the house of the foreman of the guild.

*śreṣṭhikaḥ puṇḍako nāma khyātaḥ śreṣṭhika ucyate |
kautukam tava yady asti tad āgaccha mayā saha || 12:65 ||*

The foreman is called Puṇḍaka, and he is said to be a famous foreman. If you are eager [to meet him], come along with me.’

*evam astv iti tenokto vipulena mahātmanā |
tenaiva saha niriyātaḥ śreṣṭhikasya grhaṃ prati || 12:66 ||*

‘Very well,’ replied the great-souled Vipula, and together they set off for the foreman’s house.

*śreṣṭhikaḥ svagrāsino drṣṭaḥ sa vipulena tu |
tasyāntikam upāgamya tat phalaṃ sa niveditaḥ || 12:67 ||*

12.62 Oddly, I had to accept E’s reading in pāda a (°kalā°) as opposed to °kala°) because it is the only one that makes sense. (Paper MS K₄₁ also reads °kala°.) A faint possibility would be correcting the text to sarvakālajñāś (‘knowing all the times, past, present, and future’), but that sounds out of context, being usually the epithet of gods and Buddhas.

12.63 Note the thematised stem śreṣṭhi from śreṣṭhin in pāda a. I have chosen a variant containing a stem form in pāda c (deśa) for metrical reasons. One may even read kata-moddeśa in a similar sense, or as containing uddeśa (for uddiśa) as an imperative: ‘Where is his house, give me directions.’

12.64 Note the stem form pathika in pathikovāca in pāda b. Alternatively, it is an instance of double sandhi (pathika uvāca → pathikovāca).

When Vipula saw the foreman seated in his house, he approached him and presented the fruit.

aho phalam idaṃ śreṣṭham aho phalam ibānitam |
aho rūpam aho gandha-m-aho phalaṃ suśobhanam || 12:68 ||

[Puṇḍaka exclaimed:] ‘Wow, what an excellent fruit! Hey, what a fruit we have here! Wow, what a form, what a fragrance—wow, what a splendid fruit!’

tat phalaṃ na mahījātaṃ na merau na ca mandare |
devalokika suvyaktaṃ na martya-m-upajāyate || 12:69 ||

This fruit does not grow on earth, not even on Mount Meru or Mount Mandara. It clearly comes from the world of gods—it does not grow in the world of humans.

aho ’smi sa phalaṃ bhoktā rājārhaṃ ca na saṃśayaḥ |
dhaukayitvā phalaṃ divyaṃ rājānaṃ toṣayāmy aham || 12:70 ||

Alas! Will I really be the one to enjoy this fruit? Surely, [only] a king is worthy of it. By offering this divine fruit to the king, I shall win his favour.’

12.67 Understand the construction in pāda d as tasmai tena tat phalaṃ niveditam, or read (partly with K₈₂K₇) tat phalaṃ saṃniveditam. Or rather, here niveditaḥ is used as a finite verb; compare na jñāto ’ham in the Newar Vicitrakarṇikāvadānoddhṛta, meaning ‘I don’t know’; see p. 36 n. 85.

12.68 Note ibānitam for ibānītam in pāda b for metrical reasons. I consider the -m- between gandha and aho in pādas cd a hiatus-filler.

12.69 kandare (‘in a cave’) in pāda b must be an early mistake in the MSS for mandare (‘on Mount Mandara’), a location that appears frequently in the epics and the Purāṇas next to Mount Meru. This is why I conjecture mandare here. See, e.g., MBh 3.187.10:

catuḥsamudraparyantāṃ merumandarabhūṣaṇām |
śeṣo bhūtvāham evaitāṃ dhārayāmi vasuṃdharām ||

Understand devalokika in pāda c as being in stem form (metri causa) for a more standard devalaukikaṃ. Understand martya-m-upajāyate in pāda d as martya upajāyate (i.e., martye...) with -m- as a sandhi bridge.

12.70 Pāda a is slightly suspect. It is possible that it originally contained a negation: aho ’smi na phalaṃ bhoktā (‘Ah! I will not eat this fruit’). I have chosen to translate this pāda as a question, interpreting sa as giving emphasis to the grammatical subject. Nevertheless, the slightly odd recurrence of the phrase sa phalaṃ in 12.71 and 72 might suggest that it could at times be interpreted, somewhat surprisingly, as tat phalaṃ.

tatas tvarita gatvaiva phalaṃ gr̥hya manoharam |
ādareṇopasṛtyaiva rājānaṃ sa phalaṃ dadau || 12:71 ||

Then seizing that delightful fruit, he hurried away. Approaching the king with due respect, he offered him the fruit.

rājā ca sa phalaṃ dr̥ṣtvā vismayaṃ paramaṃ gataḥ |
kutaḥ śreṣṭhi tvayā nūtaṃ phalaṃ pūrvam manoharam || 12:72 ||

Seeing the fruit, the king was greatly astonished. ‘O foreman, where did you obtain this marvellous fruit?

svādumūlaṃ phalaṃ kandaṃ dr̥ṣtaṃ pūrvam na tādṛṣam |
rūpagandhaguṇopetaṃ hṛdayānandakāraṇam || 12:73 ||

Never before have I seen such a delicious root or fruit or bulb, with such beauty, fragrance, and qualities—one that so gladdens the heart.

sadya evopayauñjāmi tvayā dattaṃ idaṃ phalaṃ |
kīdṛṣam svāda vijñānaṃ icchāmi kuru māciraṃ || 12:74 ||

I shall eat this fruit, which you have given me, immediately. I want to know what it tastes like. Let there be no delay.’

tataḥ sa bhakṣayām āsa phalaṃ cāmṛtasam̐nibham |
amṛtopamasusvādaṃ sarvaṃ ca bubhuje nr̥paḥ || 12:75 ||

Then he ate that fruit, which looked like ambrosia. The king devoured it entirely, and its taste was [indeed] like that of ambrosia.

sadyaḥ ṣoḍaśavarṣasya yauvanaṃ samapadyata |
na valīpalitaṃ sadyo na jarā na ca durbalaḥ || 12:76 ||

12.71 In pāda a, tvarita, for the adverb tvaritaṃ, is in stem form metri causa.

12.72 On the possibility that saphala is a form in this text simply signifying phala, see notes on 12.70 and 113. pūrvā[m] in pāda d is suspect and E is probably trying to silently emend it. One possibility is that the pāda originally contained a stem form noun: phalāpūrvam manoharam (‘an unparalleled and charming fruit’). Alternatively, pūrvā is an eyeskip to 12.73b.

12.74 I take svāda in pāda c as a stem form noun that stands for the accusative metri causa. I translate kuru māciraṃ in pāda d rather freely, but since the king has already been given the fruit, the second person imperative is slightly odd here.

In an instant, he regained the youthful vigour of a sixteen-year-old boy. In a moment, his wrinkles and grey hair disappeared, along with his ailments and weakness.

keśadantanakhasnigdho dṛḍhadanto dṛḍhendriyaḥ |

His hair, teeth, and nails became smooth and shining; his teeth and senses grew strong. He regained his vital powers, his eyesight, his strength, and his life-energy, all at once.

The minister, the domestic priest, the counsellor, all the servants, the townswomen, the children, and the elderly—everyone was astonished.

rājā śimhajaṭo nāma tuṣṭim eva parāṃ gataḥ |
praharṣam atulaṃ caiva prāptavān sa nareśvaraḥ || 12:79 ||

King Śimhajaṭa, the sovereign, became utterly delighted and filled with joy.

uvāca rājā taṃ śreṣṭhiṃ svārthatatparanirdayaḥ |
kuru bhīmabalaḥ tv evaṃ phalam ānaya adya vai || 12:80 ||

[But] the king, selfish and cruel [by nature], spoke to the foreman of the guild: ‘Tell Bhīmabala to bring another fruit today.

punar me yauvanaprāptis tvatprasādān narottama |
kekayīṃ durbalāṃ vrddhāṃ punaḥ prāpaya yauvanam || 12:81 ||

12.76 I have corrected sadya in pāda a to sadyaḥ because there is no metrical reason to retain this thematised stem form here (cf. sadyo in pāda c).

12.77 I have corrected sadya to sadyaḥ in pāda d, similarly to what I did in 12.76a.

12.78 Note the singular paurastṛī in pāda c clearly for a plural.

12.80 Note the thematised śreṣṭhiṃ in pāda a (for śreṣṭhinam). The syntax of pāda c is confusing. I translate it as if it carried a causative meaning (e.g. kāraya bhīmabalaṃ tv evaṃ: ‘make Bhīmabala act like this’). On the other hand, an instrumental (bhīmabalena) would be better (‘act like this, together with Bhīmabala’).

By your kindness I have regained my youth, O excellent man. Let Kekayī too—who is frail and aged, regain her youth.’

sa rājñā evam uktas tu śreṣṭhī bhīmabalas tathā |
pratyuvāca ha rājānaṃ prāñjaliḥ praṇataḥ sthitaḥ || 12:82 ||

This is how the king addressed the foreman. This time Bhīmabala replied to the king, joining his hands in reverence, standing respectfully with his head bowed:

na vanena vane rājan na vāñijyakṛṣṇa vā |
kenāpi kulaputreṇa tava darśanakāṃkṣayā || 12:83 ||

‘Your majesty, [such a fruit] cannot be obtained [by wandering] from forest to forest. It cannot be acquired through merchants or by cultivating land. Some noble stranger, seeking your audience, datto ’smi tena rājendra mayā datto ’si bhūpate |

na te śaknomy ahaṃ rājan vaktuṃ vaideśinaṃ naram || 12:84 ||

gave it to me, and I, O supreme king, gave it to you, your majesty. But, your majesty, I cannot tell you who this foreigner is.’

śrutvā bhīmabalavākyaṃ pratyuvāca tataḥ punaḥ |
amātyakulaputras tvaṃ brūhi madvacanaṃ punaḥ || 12:85 ||

12.82 I accepted the reading śreṣṭhī (C₀₂) in pāda b although it may be a correction of śreṣṭhi (C₉₄ C₄₅ K₈₂ K₇), an original prātipadika of the thematised form of śreṣṭhin (see 12.63a). All in all, the latter reading is more likely to be the result of a bit of confusion about the two nominatives śreṣṭhī and bhīmabalas, referring to two different persons. That it is Bhīmabala that replies to the king, and not Puṇḍaka the foreman, becomes clear in 12.85a (śrutvā bhīmabalavākyaṃ).

12.83 Pāda a could be construed as na vane na vane rājan (‘Your majesty, there is no [such fruit] in any forest’), but a similar expression, vanena vanaṃ, occurs, e.g., in MBh 1.144.1 meaning ‘from forest to forest’ (te vanena vanaṃ vīrā ghnanto mṛgagaṇān bahūn | apakramya jayū rājaṃs tvaramāṇā mahārathāḥ ||), and this made me choose the other option, na vanena vane rājan. E’s variant, na phaledaṃ vane rājan, is likely an attempt to ‘correct’ the text. The reading of paper MS K₄₁, na vane tava ne rājan, does not give a meaningful alternative.

12.84 On constructions such as datto ’smi in pāda a, see pp. 35ff. Note the form vaideśin for the better-attested videśin or vaideśika in pāda d.

Hearing Bhīmabala's reply, [the king] said: 'You are the son of a noble family of ministers. Convey this message [to Vipula]:

yadi nāsti kiṃ me dattaṃ mayā vā mārgito bhavān |
yatra hy eko bahavo 'tra jāyante nātra saṃśayaḥ || 12:86 ||

If there is no more [of this fruits], why did you give me even one?
This is what I request from you, sir. Where there is one, there must surely be many, that is for sure.

āgamopāyamārgaṃ ca tenaiva sa tu gamyatām |
avaśyaṃ tena gantavyaṃ tena mārgeṇa mārgaya || 12:87 ||

[There must be a] path by which it came. He [Vipula] should follow that very route. By all means, that is the way to go. Track it down by that route.

adattvā phalam anyac ca śiraś chedyāmi durmate |
chedyaś caṇḍavicaṇḍābhyāṃ rakṣa bhīmabalādhamah || 12:88 ||

If you are unable to provide another, I shall have your head cut off, fool! [Vipula] will be slain by Caṇḍa and Vicaṇḍa. Beware, Bhīmabala, he is a scoundrel!

tato bhīmabalaḥ kruddhaḥ khaḍgaṃ grhya śaśiprabham |
alaṅghya vacanaṃ rājñah kulaputra vraja tvaram || 12:89 ||

Then Bhīmabala, angry, drew his sword, which shone like the [crescent] moon. [He said to Vipula:] 'Obey the king's order, O son of a noble family, and go at once!

12.85 Pāda a, as transmitted in C₉₄C₄₅, is a rare sa-vipulā. Some MSS (C₀₂K₈₂K₁₀K₇) read °balam to avoid this.

12.86 Pāda c is a rare sa-vipulā (cf. 12.85a above), as transmitted in C₉₄K₈₂K₁₀K₇. It seems that C₄₅ and C₀₂ try to 'correct' it in different ways.

12.88 Understand chedyāmi in pāda b as chedayāmi. It is difficult to see how the readings chedye and chede in pāda c appeared in C₉₄K₁₀ and C₄₅K₇, respectively. The only MS transmitting chedyaś is K₈₂, but I suppose that this phrase should refer to Vipula being potentially slain by Caṇḍa and Vicaṇḍa, the two royal envoys mentioned in verse 12.126 (rājadūtadvayam), sent along with Bhīmabala to make sure he obeys the king's command. Compare with ŚDhU 7.101, where Yama's attendants are called Caṇḍa and Mahācaṇḍa.

mā ruṣa kulaputra tvaṃ mayā vadhyo bhaviṣyasi |

O son of a noble family, do not take offence, but I have [the king's] authorisation to kill you, if you cannot produce another of these fruits quickly. Bring another for the king before the end of the day!

yatra prāptaṃ phalaṃ divyaṃ tatra vādeśaya tvaram |

Vipula spoke: 'As a foreigner, when I reached your house, I also regained new hope for life. How could one who does his duty be but there is no other such fruit. No one can provide another. Up on the rocky peak of Mount Sahya, I sat down disheartened.

It was a monkey who brought that fruit, gave it to me, and then disappeared. I gave it to you, you in turn gave it to the king.

tatra gacchāva bho śreṣṭhi dṛśyate yadi vānaraḥ |
tvayā mayā ca gatvaiva yācāvaḥ plavagādhīpam || 12:95 ||

12.91 I have conjectured tvaram for tava in pāda b because tava is both unmetrical and meaningless in this context. tava might have been the result of an eyeskip to pāda d, or rather to pāda b of 12.92.

12.92 I emended vaideśibhavanam in pāda b to vaideśi bhavanam to arrive at a much smoother interpretation.

Come, let us go to that place, O foreman, and see whether the monkey is still there. If we reach that place together, we can ask the monkey king [for another fruit].’

śreṣṭhina ca tathety āha gacchāmaḥ sahitā vayam |

The foreman said: ‘Very well, let us all go together to the place where you found that fruit. No doubt we shall be saved.’

Rudra spoke: Climbing that mountain, Mount Sahya, and searching the place thoroughly, Vipula then caught sight of that monkey—the monkey king.

vānara kuru mitrārthaṃ sadyo mṛtyur bhaven mama |
pūrvadattaṃ phalaṃ anyad dehi vānara jīvaya || 12:99 ||

12.95 I have accepted C₄₅’s reading in pāda d (yācāvaḥ plavagādhipam) against all other witnesses (yo vāsaḥ plavagādhipaḥ). The dual seems to nicely follow gacchāva in pāda a, and the verb verbal root yāc also appears in 12.105d (yācasva). Nevertheless, C₄₅ may only be trying to correct the problematic reading found in all the other witnesses: yo vāsaḥ plavagādhipaḥ could be just an awkward way of saying yatra plavagādhipasya vāsaḥ or yatra vasati plavagādhipaḥ.

12.96 Puṇḍaka, the foreman, switches to the plural in his reply, possibly referring to Vipula, Bhīmabala, and himself, and also perhaps to the two envoys of the king, Caṇḍa and Vicaṇḍa (see 12.126cd). Note also tubhyaṃ in pāda c as instrumental (Oberlies 2003, 104 [4.2.2]).

12.97 Note the slightly clumsy syntax here: from the nominatives of pādas ab, we switch to an instrumental in pāda c.

Hey, monkey, do me this favour of friendship—otherwise I shall surely perish very soon. Please give me another fruit like the one you gave me before, and save my life, O monkey.’

vānara uvāca |

The monkey spoke: ‘It was a Gandharva that gave me that fruit, which I in turn gave to you. How could I possibly give you another? But if you wish, go there [where the Gandharvas dwell].’

vipula uvāca |

vānaraḥ punar evāha evaṃ kurvāmahe vayam |
tataś citrarathādvāsam upagamyedam abravīt || 12:102 ||

The monkey replied: ‘Let us do it.’ Then, reaching Citraratha’s dwelling, and approaching him, he spoke as follows:

gandharvarāja kāryārthī tvām ahaṃ punar āgataḥ |
pūrvadattaphalaṃ tv anyad dehi mām yadi śakyate || 12:103 ||

‘O king of the Gandharvas, I have returned to you with a request. If you can, give me another fruit like the one that you gave me before.’

12.99 Note the two laghu syllables in pāda a in second and third position.

12.101 Note tubhyaṃ in pāda a again, as in 12.96d, used in the sense of tvayā (Oberlies 2003, 104 [4.2.2]). Citraratha is the king of the Gandharvas.

12.103 Variants for pāda b are problematic (tvat/tvāt hy ayam/ahaṃ). I conjectured tvām ahaṃ because ahaṃ (in C₄₅K₁₀) seems to work better with punar than ayam (after all, it is the monkey who returns to the Citraratha, and not Vipula), and because it is difficult to accept the ablative tvat as meaning ‘to you.’ The original may have read the enclitic form tvā. Considering tvatsakāśaṃ in 12.107b opens up other possibilities, such as conjecturing tvadvāsam.

Sūrya spoke: 'I went to Soma's world, and it was he who gave me that magical fruit. That is how I came to give you that fruit, out of friendship.

12.104 Understand suḥṛdo in pāda d as a singular nominative of the rare suḥṛda.

12.106 I have emended the correct but unmetrical °ādayaḥ in pāda d to a stem form in order to restore the metre.

12.108 Note the odd syntax of pādas cd. sa phalaṃ may have been influenced by 12.71d and 72a. Here in 12.108 tat phalaṃ would work better but see sa phalaṃ in a similarly odd position in 12.113d. I translate sa again as standing for emphasis ('it was like that that you...'; cf. 12.70a). dattam evāsi is also problematic although similar structures do appear in this text, e.g., in 12.113c (see more on pp. 35 ff). The original may have read tat phalam datta evāsi; or take dattam evāsi as datta-m-evāsi, with a hiatus breaker -m-.

 anything.'

na dattāsi phalam anyan mayā vadhya bhaviṣyasi || 12:112 ||

Sūrya spoke: 'If you can, give me another fruit—I ask for nothing else. If you do not, I shall kill you.'

12.109 Understand purādya as puram adya (stem form metri causa).

12.110 Understand sūryāgrataḥ in pāda a as sūryam agrataḥ (stem form noun).
 Note the thematised form śaśim for śaśinam in pāda d. somāya ... śaśim could be just a clumsy way of saying somaṃ ... śaśinam, or somāya ... śaśine, but I interpret pāda d separately. It is not inconceivable that C₄₅ is right reading karuṇāpekṣayā ('hoping for compassion') instead of kāraṇāpekṣayā.

12.112 Understand pāda c either as na dattaṃ tvayā phalam anyat or na dātāsi phalam anyat. This pāda is a sa-vīpulā, or if we apply a licence mostly seen in the non-anuṣṭubh verses in this text, namely that a word-final syllable can count as heavy, it is a standard anuṣṭubh (pathyā).

Sūrya threatening Soma in a harsh manner is somewhat surprising (pāda d).

sarva eva hi gacchāmo viṣṇulokaṃ grabeśvara |
sarva evopajagmus te phalārtham madhusūdanam || 12:117 ||

Let us all go to Viṣṇu's world, O Lord of the Planets.' They all went to Madhusūdana for the fruit.

12.113 Note sa phalam, potentially for tat phalam, or for emphasis, again, as in 12.108c. The syntax of pādas cd is rather confused (see pp. 35), and datta in pāda d is a stem form participle metri causa. Note also me for mayā (Oberlies 2003, 102–103 [4.1.3]), and bhavān as a dative.

12.115 While somenendram in pāda a is grammatically incorrect and we have a correct, or corrected, reading in K₇ (soma indra°), I have left the phrase thus, since ergative structures are not alien to the VSS. See pp. 35 ff, and, e.g., verse 1.3 above.

Pāda c is either a sa-vipulā or a pathyā if the final syllable of phalam counts as heavy. Cf. 12.112 above.

*evam uktvā gatāḥ sarve devarājapuraskṛtāḥ |

After he spoke thus, they all departed, led by the king of the gods.
In a moment, they reached the world of Viṣṇu, O glorious lady.

*upasṛtya tata indraḥ praṇipatya janārdanam |

Indra then approached Janārdana, bowing down respectfully. ‘I have a request, O Yaśodhara, concerning something that troubles us all.’

*viṣṇur uvāca |

*indra uvāca |

Indra spoke: ‘O Lord whose banner bears Garuḍa, you are capable even of splitting the Cosmic Egg of Brahmā. I know that there is nothing that you cannot do, O Supreme Person.’

*evam uktaḥ punar viṣṇuḥ pratyuvāca purandaram |
phalam ekaṃ parityajya sarvaṃ śaknomi kauśika || 12:122 ||*

12.118 Note how there is a minor confusion here with the order of events. 12.117 informs us that Indra spoke and then they all left. Then 12.118ab restates that after Indra spoke they left. Alternatively, 12.117cd may have been intended to be in the present tense and mean: ‘Everybody goes to Madhusūdana for fruits [anyway].’

12.119 Pāda a is a sa-vipulā.

12.120 The function of tac ca in pāda b is unclear. Perhaps understand atra (‘here’) or, less likely, tvaṃ ca (‘you and [everybody else]’). Understand sarvaṃ ihāgatāḥ as sarva-m-ihāgatāḥ, with a hiatus-filler -m- for sarva (i.e., sarve) ihāgatāḥ. The non-standard neuter form anyam transmitted in most witnesses consulted might be original but I have not found any clear occurrences of it in this text elsewhere. That is why I have chosen K₇’s reading, the standard anyat.

Thus addressed, Viṣṇu replied to Purandara [Indra]: ‘O Kauśika, I am capable of everything—except producing another of that fruit.

upāyo ’tra pravakṣyāmi āgamaṃ śṛṇu gopate |

indraḥ sūryaḥ śaśi caiva gandharvo vānaras tathā |
vīpulaḥ śreṣṭhikaś caiva rājadūtadvayaṃ tathā || 12:126 ||

Indra, Sūrya, the Moon, the Gandharva, the monkey, Vipula, the foreman, and the two royal envoys.

brahmalokaṃ muhūrtena prāptavān surasundari |
dṛṣṭvā brahmasado ramyaṃ sarvakāmaparicchadam || 12:127 ||

In a moment, they reached Brahmā’s world, O beautiful goddess. There, they saw Brahmā’s splendid palace, filled with all desirable things.

12.123 Note that pāda c is a sa-vīpulā.

12.124 In pāda b, by dātum icchasi, Viṣṇu probably means to say prāptum icchasi, or tava dāsyāmīticchasi. For the expression parameṣṭhiprajāpati, see MBh 6.15.35ab: sarvalokeśvarasyeva parameṣṭhiprajāpateḥ.

12.126 Reading this list of characters, the careful reader may ask the question: what happened to Bhīmabala?

12.127 I suppose that the singular prāptavān was intended to refer to the plurality of characters involved.

was a multi-storeyed palace decorated with garlands of pearls, apsarogaṇakoṭībhīḥ sarvābharaṇabhūṣitam |

vimānakoṭikoṭīnāṃ sarvakāmasamanvitam || 12:133 ||

12.128 I take mandāratala as a stem form compound (for mandāratalāni). Note that all witnesses read °kuṭṭimāṃ or °kuṭṭimām for the masculine plural accusative—to go with dṛṣṭvā in 12.127a.

12.129 Pāda a is unmetrical. Understand the nominatives in pādas cd as (plural) accusatives, and pāda c as a compound.

12.130 Note °vṛkṣa in pāda b as a stem form noun for °vṛkṣā or °vṛkṣān (manoramāḥ/-ān). One could simply correct the pāda to nānāvṛkṣān manoramān, but then the next line should also be altered. bhavet in pāda d is out of context.

12.132 Note the odd syntax of pādas ab. Pāda b should be understood as a phrase in the instrumental case. Alternatively, dṛṣṭā is used as a finite verb (see p. 36). C₄₅ tries to correct the syntax by reading dṛṣṭvā. Pāda c is a ma-vipulā.

caturvedāvṛtas tatra mūrtimanta-m-upāsate |

And around him stood the four Vedas themselves, embodied, worshipping him. Gāyatrī, mother of the Vedas, and beautiful Sāvitrī, vyāhṛtiḥ praṇavaś caiva mūrtimān samupāsate |

vauṣaṭkāro vaṣaṭkāro namaskāraḥ sa mūrtimān || 12:137 ||

the Vyāhṛti[s] [Bhūr, Bhuvaḥ, Svar], and Praṇava [Om]—all these stood there in their embodied forms, serving [Him], as did [the mantras] Vauṣaṭ, Vaṣaṭ, and Namaḥ.

12.133 I understand pādas ab as if it read apsarogaṇakoṭibhiḥ sarvābharaṇabhūṣitair bhūṣitam. Perhaps understand vimāṇakoṭikoṭinām as vimāṇakoṭinām koṭibhiḥ and °samanvitam as °samanvitānām. This is what, e.g., ŚDhŚ 10.41 suggests (see the apparatus).

12.134 Pādas c may have intended to read tatra brahmā sukhāsane, or at least āsane is implied in pāda d.

12.136 The context dictates that pāda b be understood in the plural (mūrtimanta upāsate), with a hiatus-filler -m- (cf. Devīpurāṇa 12.12.53cd: saptakoṭimahāmantrā mūrtimanta upāsate). For Gāyatrī being 'the mother of the Vedas,' see, e.g., MBh Suppl. 14.4.494: yo jayet pāvanīm devīm gāyatrīm vedamātaram.

12.137 Note the singular mūrtimān in pāda b governing each singular subject in 12.136cd and 137a.

vipulaś ca mahāsattva āsyatām ratna-āsane |
sādhū bho vipula śreṣṭha sādhu bho vipulam tapaḥ || 12:142 ||

12.138 Understand samūrtimat simply as mūrtimat.

See notes to verses 6.5 and 8.6 on how Itihāsa is primarily the Mahābhārata.

It is difficult to say if sāmṁkhyā-yoga in pāda d signifies one or two things. I could have chosen to separate them, interpreting sāmṁkhyā as a stem form noun, because in other parts of the text, sāmṁkhyā and yoga are usually treated as two different traditions. See 8.1–3, 16.36–37 (here clearly separate), and 23.5c (again, clearly separate). In any case, one should probably understand patañjalam as pātañjalāḥ metri causa, with gender confusion. Another, less likely, possibility is that sāmṁkhyayoga and pātañjalayoga are somehow contrasted here.

12.139 Note C₄₅ and C₀₂'s attempt to include the Atharvaveda in this list. I find it more likely—partly because the 'four Vedas' have already been mentioned in 12.36a—that by arthaveda Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra is being referred to here.

yāvat kalpasahasrāṇi parārdhāni tapodhana |
yatra yatra prayāsitaṃ tatra tatropabbujyatām || 12:146 ||

12.142 Note how Bhīmabala and Puṇḍaka are not mentioned here. They have either not made it to Brahmā's palace, or are kept standing. Note Brahmā's puns on Vipula's name in pāda d and in the next verse.

12.143 Understand °śrīya as the singular masculine vocative of °śrī.

12.144 Pāda b is iambic. MSS C₉₄C₄₅K₈₂K₇ read bhogāṃ for the plural accusative bhogān (silently corrected).

12.145 iyam (f.) in pāda a stands for either ayam (m.) or idaṃ (n.), agreeing with the gender of vimāna. Alternatively, the sentence aims, rather clumsily, to convey the meaning 'all these millions of ærial vehicles...' Note that here, as often in this text, nouns and adjectives stand in the singular after numbers such as a thousand (see pp. 32 ff). Understand tavārtbhāyopasarpanti in pāda e as tavārtbhāyā upasarpanti (double sandhi). tavārtbhāyo° may work as well (C₄₅ and K₈₂) but I consider tavārtbhāyo° the lectio difficilior, thus potentially the original reading.

bowed his head, prostrated himself on the ground again and again, and spoke these gentle words to [Brahmā,] the Grandfather of Brahmāloka:

vipula uvāca |
bhagavan sarvalokeśa sarvalokapitāmaha |
svapnabhūtaṃ ivāścaryam paśyāmi tridaśēśvara |
smṛtibhraṃśaś ca me jāto buddhir jātāndhacetanā || 12:149 ||

Vipula spoke: ‘Revered Sir, Lord of all the worlds, Grandfather of all beings—before my eyes I see a wondrous vision like a dream, O Lord of the Thirty[-Three] Gods. My memory fails me, and my mind’s intelligence is overcome with darkness.

12.147 We are forced to accept E’s reading of bhayatrasta in pāda c because it is far superior to the readings of all other witnesses. In fact, paper MS K₄₁, a source close to E’s sources (not collated for this chapter) reads bhayaṃtrasta, which is close enough. The rejected reading (bhayaś tatra) may have been the result of a simple metathesis (tra-sta to sta-tra).

12.148 The compound brahmalokapitāmahaḥ may sound tautological as an epithet of Brahmā but it does occur in the MBh (12.336.30b) and in other texts (PadmaS 3.193d, JRY 3.14.198b). Otherwise, the word brahma may stand for the accusative here (brahmānam), or may be corrupted from sarva^o (see next verse).

12.149 Note that E adds a line here, see the apparatus. Its translation is the following: ‘I am a fool, how could I praise you? You are beyond knowledge, beyond the ultimate.’ I have not been able to locate this line in any of the available sources, not even in paper manuscripts.

tubhyaṃ trailokyabandho bhava mama śaraṇaṃ trāhi saṃsāraghorād bhīto 'haṃ garbhavāsāj jaramaraṇabhayāt trāhi māṃ mohabandhāt *nityaṃ rogādhivāsam aniyatavapuṣaṃ trāhi māṃ kālapāśāt

tiryaṃ cānyonyabhakṣaṃ bahuyugaśataśas trāhi mohāndhakārāt || 12:150 ||*

You govern the three worlds. Be my refuge. Protect [me] from terrible cycle of rebirth. I am afraid of life in the womb, and of the terror of old age and death. Protect me from the snare of illusions. Dwelling in illness is eternal. Protect me, whose body is not controlled, from the noose of time. Living in animal forms means mutual slaughter over many hundreds of æons. Protect [me] from the darkness of illusion.'

*śrutvaivovāca brahmā vipulamati punar mānayatīvā yathāvad ābhūtasamplavānte bhaviṣyasi tava me janmalobho na bhūyaḥ | garbhāvāsaṃ na ca tvan na ca punamaraṇaṃ kleśaṃ āyāsapūrṇaṃ chittvā mohāndhaśatruṃ vrajasi ca paramaṃ brahmabhūyatvam eṣi
|| 12:151 ||*

Hearing [this], Brahmā spoke to [Vipula], of vast intellect (vipulamati), honouring [him] properly: 'You will live until the floods of cosmic destruction. You will no longer have any desire for rebirth. There will be no life in the womb for you, no rebirth, no wearisome suffering. Killing the enemy that is the darkness of illusions, you will attain the ultimate—absorption into the Brahman.'

12.150 Metre (12.150–151): sragdharā. We have to understand tubhyaṃ, as often in this text, as an instrumental (see 12.96c and 101a above). Note that in pāda c of this Sragdharā verse, the final syllable of rogādhivāsam scans as long. This is a phenomenon seen many times in this text (see p. 41).

12.151 The stem form noun °mati of the bahuvrīhi compound in pāda a may stand for matib (see the unmetrical reading in C₉₄C₄₅K₈₂), and then it should refer to Brahmā himself ('Brahmā, the one with a huge intellect...'). I have chosen to take mati as a stem form noun standing for the accusative, referring to Vipula. This works better because mānayatīvā (and śrutvā) requires an object. Note ābhūtasamplava instead of the more common ābhūtasamplava (both unmetrical here; see also 2.13). me in pāda b is difficult to interpret (perhaps 'you will live with me?'). I take tvan na in pāda c as the ablative tvaḥ used as a genitive, plus na. Note the krama licence in operation in pādas a and b: bra in brahmā, mabheśvara uvāca |

brahmaṇā evam uktas tu viṣṇunā prabhaviṣṇunā |

evam bhavatu bhadraṃ vo yathovāca pitāmahaḥ || 12:152 ||

Maheśvara spoke: When Brahmā had thus addressed [Vipula], Lord Viṣṇu [said:] ‘So be it! May it be as Grandfather has declared. Blessings upon you!’

indreṇa raviṇā caiva somena ca punaḥ punaḥ |

sādhyaḍityair marudrudrair viśvebhir vasavaḥ tathā || 12:153 ||

[Then] Indra, Ravi and Soma, the Sādhya, the Ādityas, the Maruts, the Rudras, the Viśve[śas], and the Vasus [cried out:]

aho tapaḥphalaṃ divyaṃ vipulasya mahātmanaḥ |

svaśarīro divaṃ prāptaḥ śraddhayātithipūjaya || 12:154 ||

‘Wow, what a divine reward for the penance of great-souled Vipula! Through the merit of his sincere hospitality to a guest, he has reached heaven in his very own body.’

evam ādīnyānekaṇi vipule parikīrtitam |

brahmāṇaṃ punar evāha viṣṇur viśvajagatprabhuḥ || 12:155 ||

This and many other things are related in the [story of] Vipula. Then Viṣṇu, Lord of the whole universe, turned back towards Brahmā.

|| iti vṛṣasārasaṃgrabe vipulopākhyāno nāmādhyaḥ dvādaśamaḥ ||

Here ends the twelfth chapter in the Vṛṣasārasaṃgraha called The Story of Vipula.

and possibly śya in bhaviṣyasi do not turn the previous syllable heavy, although the latter is unusual because the syllables taking part in this licence should be at word-final position (see pp. 39).

12.153 Note that I had to accept E’s reading in pāda d, and note vasavaḥ probably for vasubhiḥ.

12.155 The reference here to a ‘Vipula section’ is probably to MBh 13.39.1ff, although this story is not to be found there. See p. 25. Alternatively, vipule simply means ‘concerning Vipula.’

The story ends abruptly here in the VSS. The next chapter starts with a short summary by Devī of the previous chapters:

devy uvāca |

ahimsātithyakānāṃ ca śruto dbarmaḥ suvistarāḥ |

kiṃ na kurvanti manuḥjāḥ sukhopāyaṃ mahat phalam || 13.1 ||

svaśarīrasthito yajñāḥ svaśarīre sthitaṃ tapaḥ |

svaśarīre sthitaṃ tirthaṃ śruto vistarato mayā || 13.2 ||
